T. C. PLATT DENIES HE WED MAE WOOD

Denounces Certificate of Alleged Ceremony at Fifth Avenue Hotel as a Forgery.

CALLED HER "DEAR CATTY"

Admits May Have "Foolishly" Addressed Her by Endearing Name—Calls Many Letters Spurious.

Looking every day as old as the seventy-five years, less a few weeks, he acknowledged to, United States Senator Thomas Collier Platt took the stand yesterday and for two hours gave himself over to the lawyers who are engaged in trying to solve the question as to whether or not he married Mae C. Wood on Nov. 9, 1901.

Mr. Platt emphatically denied that he ever did so, and stigmatized as a forgery the marriage certificate which purports to bear witness to the nuptials. Various other documents introduced in evidence also were declared by the aged Senator to be spurious, although he did admit authorship of several missives addressed to Mrs. Wood couched in more or less endearing terms.

Up to the last minute it was possible that Mr. Platt would be spared the ordeal of the witness stand, but after Justice McCall had denied John B. Stanchfield's motion to dismiss the suit on the ground that Mrs. Wood had not proved a marriage, word was sent to Mr. Platt that his presence was absolutely necessary.

It was about 11 o'clock, and Mr. Stanchfield was reading the deposition of a witness, when a commotion was heard in the rear of the courtroom. Mr. Stanchfield stopped reading as a procession headed by Mr. Platt, who was supported by two attendants, walked down the aisle. He appeared to be very feeble, as he was led forward to the witness chair. He dragged one foot after the other, never taking a step of more than a few inches. His appearance caused a painful sensation, which was not lessened when he was literally lifted into the chair

Mr. Stanchfield, after Mr. Platt had settled himself, at once began his examination. The replies at first came in a weak voice, which, coupled with a peculiar smothering of words, made it difficult for even the stenographer to hear. As the examination progressed, however, Mr. Platt's voice grew stronger, until at times, when he was asked a question that aroused him, he fairly shouted his answers.

Now Nearly 75 Years of Age.

He said in reply to Mr. Stanchfield that he was the defendant in the action, which is for divorce, and that he was nearly 75 years old. His first wife died in February, 1901.

"Do you know the plaintiff in this case?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

Mr. Platt said he did, having met her first in 1901, afterward having some correspondence with her.

"Did you ever see her at the Oriental Hotel, Manhattan Beach?"

"I never remember so doing," replied Mr. Platt. A moment later he became more positive and added: "Never saw her there in my life."

"Now in August, 1901, did you ask her in the Oriental Hotel to marry you?"

"I never did," he said with emphasis. "I don't recall ever speaking with her in the hotel."

In November, 1901, Mr. Platt said he occupied a suite of three rooms and a bathroom at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The number of his drawing room was 158.

"Did you on Nov. 7, 1901, have any conversation with the defendant about marrying her?"

"I never did."

"Did you promise to marry her, saying you would make all the arrangements for the ceremony?"

"I never did."

The note written by him to Mrs. Wood asking her to call at the hotel on Nov. 9, 1901, was then handed to the witness. Mr. Platt admitted seeing the plaintiff on that day. He was questioned as to the alleged ceremony and denied any knowledge of it. He said he never presented a Mr. Rice (the alleged minister) and a witness, Jones, to Mrs. Wood, nor did he have any knowledge of them.

"Was there any marriage ceremony performed between you and the plaintiff at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Nov. 9, 1901?"

"There never was."

"Did you marry her at any time or place?"

"I did not. I never intended to marry her."

"Did you ever promise to or ask her to marry you?"

When He First Heard of It.

Mr. Platt said he first heard of Mrs. Wood's claim that he had married her through a Chicago newspaper, but he could not remember the exact date. He thought it was in 1903. He denied giving her a wedding ring on Nov. 9, 1901, or at any other time, and said that the relations between himself and Mrs. Wood had never been other than proper. The marriage certificate was shown to the witness, and Mr. Stanchfield inquired whether he had ever given it to Mrs. Wood.

"I never did," Mr. Platt replied.

He denied any knowledge of the certificate. Mr. Stanchfield then switched to Washington, and inquired whether the Senator was staying at the Arlington Hotel in that city in 1906. Mr. Platt could not remember.

"Do you remember that some one in 1906 requested you to sign your name on a sheet of paper as an autograph?"

Mr. Platt said that he was frequently asked for his autograph. A letter dated Washington, Dec. 10, 1906, was handed to him, and he was asked whether it bore his signature. He replied that it did. Mr. Stanchfield read the letter, which ran:

"Mae C. Wood, Washington, D. C.

"My Dear Mae: I am willing to admit you are my legal wife, and will sign such a statement, and do irrevocably and unconditionally waive any right under the law to in any way use the papers signed by you on Oct. 14, 1903, as I know the same were unlawfully obtained through

SHOT STUDENT FOR BURGLAR.

Two Columbia Boys Try Robbery for Fun—Policeman Shot One.

Policeman John Hurton of the West 125th Street Station saw two youths working last night at the door of the little shanty at 123d Street and Riverside Drive, where old John Morris sells soda, candy, and tobacco. Hurton ran toward the youths, who saw him coming and took to their heels. The policeman fired his revolver in the air. One lad halted and threw up his hands. Policeman Kearns, who had come up, grabbed him, while Hurton kept on after the other fugitive.

The lad kept running, and Hurton fired again. When the policeman fired the third time he saw the youth drop. The bullet had entered the fugitive's head behind his left ear.

"It's my fault," muttered the young man. "I was a blamed fool to run."

Dr. Webbe took him to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, where it was said that his chances were slim. His companion said that his own name was Howard J. Cole, 21 years old, and his companion's Edgar H. Cook, 18. Both, Cole said, were first year students in the Columbia School of Mines. Cole declared that they had tried to break into the shanty for a lark. He said that Cook, who lives at 432 Central Park West, came from Albany. Cole, who lives in Hartley Hall, a dormitory, was locked up and Cook was placed under arrest in the hospital.

BILLION BAY STATE GAS CO.

Secures a Delaware Charter Enabling It to Do Almost Anything.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., May 20.—The Bay State Gas Company secured a perpetual charter here to-day, with a capitalization of $1,000,000,000. This is the largest capitalization ever authorized in a Delaware charter.

Under a ruling of the Delaware courts a company incorporated by an act of the Legislature may obtain a perpetual charter under the general incorporation laws of this State without paying any charter fees or any annual franchise tax. The Bay State Company having received a sweeping charter from the Legislature in 1893, when Addicks was in his heyday in Delaware politics, and likewise President of the company, the only move necessary to-day was to file with the State Department a formal application for a perpetual charter.

No incorporators are named, but the application is signed by Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, President, and W. Harry Miller of Philadelphia, Secretary.

The charter permits the company to engage in practically any business except railroading and the issuing of money. It may run a bank or series of banks, buy and hold any other company, promote mining, industrial, and agricultural enterprises, build towns, and, incidentally, manufacture gas.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 20.—It is said by Mr. Lawson's friends that in revamping the Bay State Gas Company Mr. Lawson intends to use it as a great speculative and underwriting instrument in Wall Street, and eventually will have $100,000,000 cash capital. At its start Mr. Lawson and his associates, it is declared, are to supply the treasury with $4,000,000 in addition to the cash turned over by the receiver.

Half of the $4,00,000 was turned over to Mr. Lawson a few weeks ago for a demonstration of his idea of what he later intended to do. According to Mr. Lawson, he bought for the benefit of the pool 5,000 Union Pacific, 50,000 Smelters, 30,000 St. Paul, and 50,000 Reading. The deal showed $350,000 profit when day before yesterday he started one of his rapid-fire selling movements to close out. Every share had been sold at 2:30 yesterday, and the pool members were notified last night of the profit.

"When one group of men employing but $2,000,000 and buying but 185,000 shares of stock can start a market such as we have had the last few weeks and clean up over $3,000,000 profit, it should be evident to all what Wall Street could do if it got to work in earnest," said Mr. Lawson to-night. "Yet so absurdly narrow has Wall Street become that we witness the present slump because Wall Street has discovered that the 185,000 shares were sold."

NO GOLD EXPORT TAX.

Cortelyou Rejects Assay Office Plan to Prevent Gold Bar Exports.

In connection with the exhaustion yesterday of the New York Assay Office's supply of gold bars available for export to Europe, it became known that the suggestion was recently made to the Secretary of the Treasury, through the New York Assay Office, that a tax be put on gold bars sufficient to check the outflow of gold to Europe.

The Secretary of the Treasury took the matter under advisement and decided against the suggestion which was regarded as tending to impair New York's position as practically the only free market for gold. The only charge now made to exporters of gold bars is 4 cents on every $100, this charge being made to cover the cost of making and handling the bars.

Bankers frowned on the tax proposal, saying that in the long run the effect of such an innovation would probably only increase shipments of gold coin.

The gold outflow continued unabated yesterday, and in addition to withdrawing all the large bars held by the Assay Office, bankers took $550,000 in gold coin from the Sub-Treasury. The engagements made at the Assay Office on Tuesday, but not formally announced until yesterday, were $2,091,000 by the National City Bank, $266,000 by the Russo-Chinese Bank, $1,084,000 by Lazard Frères, and $445,000 by Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. All the large bars left after these engagements amounted to $241,000, and these were taken late yesterday by the Russo-Chinese Bank.

This brings the total shipments on this movement, which began April 15, up to $30,192,654, including $1,550,000 in coin taken from the Sub-Treasury. In addition, one of the National banks is expected to ship $1,000,000 in bars next week, by which time this additional amount is expected to be available.

Low Tide Travel to Jersey Shore.

By actual count the steamer Monmouth, when she left her pier at West Forty-second Street on the "brokers' trip" to the North Jersey coast resorts in thick weather yesterday afternoon, carried four passengers. This is generally the heaviest run of the day. The vessel is licensed to carry 2,000. Hotel keepers and cottage renters along the coast have complained because the Central Railroad of New Jersey did not put the boats in service until this week.

HYDROPHOBIA VICTIM DIES AS PREDICTED

Opiates Save W. H. Marsh, the Brooklyn Manufacturer, from Much Pain.

PASSES AWAY AS IF ASLEEP

Remarkable Rush of Cranks and Busybodies to the House of Death—Letters from the Country Over.

Surrounded by the members of his family, and with his physician standing helplessly at his side, William H. Marsh, the Brooklyn manufacturer, who was told on Monday by the experts at the Pasteur Institute that he was doomed to die of hydrophobia within a few days, passed away at his home, 74 Ocean Avenue, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Opiates, freely administered at his own request, the doctors say, saved him from the agonies of death from rabies.

Mr. Marsh reached his end gradually and without outward show of pain. For hours he had lain unconscious, and he died as if in sleep. The conviction that his case was utterly hopeless and that his earthly career was fast drawing to a close remained firm with the stricken man until his senses finally left him. And as resignedly and bravely as he had heard the sentence of death spoken by the physicians of the institute he faced the end.

Earlier in the day the last faint hope of his family was dispelled when Dr. W. L. Wheeler of the Pasteur Institute visited the house and declared that nothing could be done but to make death as painless and peactful as possible. For the greater part of twenty-four hours Mr. Marsh had then been unconscious. Before this condition asserted itself he had, with calm deliberation, settled the last of his earthly affairs, bidden a fond and sorrowful farewell to the members of his family, and held a last consultation with his physician, Dr. Henry M. Cullinan.

"Doctor," he said, "I feel that the end is near. I do not fear to die; I am prepared. But if it is possible, I would not be conscious of the approach of death."

Had Passed the Convulsive Stage.

Dr. Cullinan understood. He realized that absolutely nothing could be done to save his patient, who had already reached the convulsive stage and was progressing toward that of paralysis, the last in cases of hydrophobia. He consulted with Dr. Wheeler and with Dr. E. H. Fiske, a Brooklyn specialist, and they agreed that Mr. Marsh's death was but a matter of a few hours. There was but one thing to do, and that was to save the patient as much as possible from pain, as he had asked. For most of the day the opiates administered fulfilled their purpose. Mr. Marsh lay unconscious and apparently did not suffer. At long intervals he would become semi-conscious, but, although he exhibited signs of disquiet at these times, the drugs appeared to be doing their work well. Soon after the paralysis set in Mr. Marsh passed quietly away.

Dr. Cullinan, who had been at his patient's side night and day, was worn out when the end came. Besides the physician and two nurses there were also there Marsh's wife, three sons, two daughters, and the wife of his eldest son.

Rush of Volunteer Savers.

Since the news of Mr. Marsh's strange case was made public the members of the family have been greatly annoyed and distressed by the attentions of people with all kinds of notions about what should be done to save the patient's life. The news of the remarkable case apparently traveled far, as messages were received from persons living in remote parts of the country, as well as hundreds of letters and telegrams from points nearer home. One letter, which was from a person describing himself as a Christian Scientist, said:

"Cheer up; you must not die! You have no right to die."

There were also letters from cranks and from persons who knew of "sure cures" for hydrophobia. A Chicagoan, who said he was a physician, wired that he was positive Mr. Marsh could be cured, and offered to come on and save him. A message was received from as far away as San Francisco. Besides the letters and telegrams, many curious persons visited the Marsh house. Several of them, including a woman who said she was a Christian Scientist, insisted upon seeing Mr. Marsh, and were got rid of with difficulty.

Son and Daughter Fear Infection.

Fearing that they, too, may have contracted the disease, Ramsey Marsh, the twenty-one-year-old son of Mr. Marsh, and Miss Edna Thompson of 23 Linden Avenue, have been undergoing treatment at the Pasteur Institute. Miss Thompson is employed in the office of Mr. Marsh's meter factory, in Robinson Street. Like Mr. Marsh, they also petted the dog from which the manufacturer is supposed to have taken the disease which caused his death. Neither the young man nor Miss Thompson has shown any sign of having contracted the trouble, but they decided to take no chances. At the institute they were told that they were in no danger. They are being treated, however, to guard against any possibility of a development of the disease. Dr. Wheeler said that if they had become infected he felt quite certain that the treatment they were receiving would arrest the disease.

Dr. Wheeler, as well as many other physicians, are deeply interested in the case of Mr. Marsh. Cases of hydrophobia resulting from the bites of dogs afflicted with rabies are quite common, but those developing from infection are rare.

"The case of Mr. Marsh," said Dr. Wheeler, "is a rare one in the history of rabies. He was not bitten, so he must have become infected through an abrasion or scratch. I have only heard of two such cases."

Mr. Marsh's Career.

Mr. Marsh was born in 1850 in Ontario, Canada, but came to the United States when 33 years old, taking up his residence in Brooklyn, where he organized the Standard Water Meter Company, of which he was President. He was a member of the Midwood Club and was prominent in Masonic circles. He was a member and devout attendant of the Reformed Church of Flatbush. His only brother was the late Alvin Marsh, for-

PROHIBITS REVOLVING DOORS.

Their Use Forbidden in Large Paris Restaurants and Other Places.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 20.—M. Lepine, Prefect of the Paris police, issued an order today prohibiting the use of revolving doors at all cafés, resturants, hotels, and other places capable of containing more than 100 persons at one time.

Thousands of these doors will have to be removed at once. The Prefect maintains they are dangerous in case of fire or panic, and that is the reason he gives for his order. It is alleged that on numerous occasions within the last year accidents have happened with these doors which might have had serious consequences.

On one occasion recently, during the busiest time of the day at a restaurant on the boulevard, the revolving door was jammed for a full hour and nobody was able to enter or leave the restaurant. Had a fire panic occurred the result might have been disastrous. On another occasion an alarm of fire in a café caused a rush to the revolving door, which got jammed with people and could not be opened.

The Prefect's decree is a serious blow to all who are engaged in the revolving door business, which has soundly established itself in France. It also will cause great expense to a very large number of restaurants and other public establishments.

ALABAMA SPLIT ON BRYAN.

Election of ex-Gov. Cunningham, a Johnson Delegate, Is Probable.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., May 20.—It is believed that Russell M. Cunningham, ex-Lieutenant Governor, has been elected a delegate to the Denver Democratic National Convention. He favors the nomination of Gov. Johnson.

A long distance message from Montgomery, the capital of the State, says that The Montgomery Journal, which is bitter against Cunningham and a Bryan organ, at 3 o'clock conceded the election of the Johnson delegate.

Under the resolution passed by the State Committee, Cunningham will have to cast his ballot for Bryan. This resolution was to the effect that whatever Presidential candidate received the popular vote, the delegate had to abide by this ruling. It is believed by many who know the ex-Lieutenant Governor that he will not vote for Bryan.

On the other hand, Major E. M. Robinson, one of the Bryan leaders in the city, says Cunningham will vote as instructed.

Bryan has carried the State of Alabama by a majority of almost two to one, but the two largest counties in the State gave Johnson handsome majorities. In this—Mobile County—he received a majority of 1,336 over the Nebraskan, and the campaign for Johnson only began three days before the primaries. The Bryanites thought this county so safe that they had no guides at the polls, and the surprise they got was a big one.

The reason given by many voters in this county for not voting for Bryan was that the East and Middle West would never indorse him again.

BRYAN MAY LOSE FLORIDA.

Primary Returns Indicate Majority of Delegation Will Be Against Nebraskan.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 20.—Returns from yesterday's Democratic primary are still incomplete, and it will probably be late Thursday night before anything official can be obtained. Duncan U. Fletcher and Gov. N. B. Broward for United States Senator, and J. N. C. Stockton and Albert Gilchrist for Governor are running neck and neck.

Indications are that the majority of the delegation to Denver will be anti-Bryan.

BRAZILIAN AERONAUT KILLED.

Lieut. Fonseca, Military Expert, Victim of a Premature Ascension.

RIO JANEIRO, May 20.—Lieut. Fonseca, a balloon expert of the Brazillian Army, met his death here to-day while undertaking a voyage in a balloon. The Lieutenant came out from France recently with the balloon, and this morning was to make his first ascension before the Military School. The Minister of War and a large number of officers assembled to witness the experiment.

Lieut. Fonseca entered the car and was completing his final preparations when a strong gust of wind dragged the gas bag away from the men who were holding it. The balloon at once shot up into the air, breaking the last ropes that held it to the ground.

When at the height of 3,000 feet it collapsed and fell to the earth with unchecked rapidity. The Lieutenant was crushed to death.

BARCELONA, May 20.—The balloon which broke away yesterday while participating in a contest here, the navigating aeronaut being thrown out, was found to-day at a mountain village near Saragossa. It was blown about all night and its solitary occupant, who was totally without experience, was seriously injured, the balloon having collided with numerous obstacles before it settled.

SOLD TAGS FOR PLAYGROUNDS

400,000 Are Disposed of in Philadelphia and Large Sum Raised.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—All Philadelphia to-day turned itself into one vast fair, at which only one thing was sold—tags for the benefit of the Playgrounds Association. The movement was started under the auspices of the Board of Education to equip playgrounds, of which at present there is only one. Under the direction of Superintendent of Schools Martin G. Brumbaugh the movement spread throughout the city. Carnival was everywhere. Girls and women stood on every corner selling tags, many of which were bought for large sums, one firm paying $100 for a single tag.

In Rittenhouse Square the sons and daughters of society turned out in full force to buy and sell. In the slums it was the same. The City Hall was besieged. The Mayor paid a heavy price for his tag, as did all of the city officials. It is estimated that nearly 400,000 tags were sold throughout the city. So great was the success of the scheme for raising money that it is likely it will be made an annual affair.

ST. CHAFFRAY HALTS AMERICAN AUTOISTS

Corners Gasoline in Vladivostok and Seeks a Place in the Thomas Car.

HIS PROPOSAL IS DECLINED

Start on Friday Now Planned—Scarfoglio Tells of Perils from Bandits and Tigers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
From Its Staff Correspondent With the Racers.

VLADIVOSTOK, May 20.—The start of the American Thomas car in the New York to Paris race on its long journey across Siberia will be delayed until Friday as a result of the commercial activities of G. Bourcier St. Chaffray, the conductor of the French De Dion car. It was discovered to-day that St. Chaffray had cornered the whole of the available supply of gasoline to be had at Vladivostok and at Harbin, with the exception of a small quantity of the fuel obtained by the Germans for the Protos car. St. Chaffray, on the withdrawal of the De Dion car, attempted to get a seat on the American car to go to Paris by an offer to transfer this gasoline, but his offer was declined and the Americans must delay their departure accordingly.

St. Chaffray requested an interview with George Schuester, the driver of the Thomas car, and the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES with the American machine. We went to his room at the hotel and there heard his proposal for the first time. He declared that he would prevent the departure of the American car unless Scheuster agreed to carry him to Paris. He stated that he could get a seat on the German machine, but the Thomas was sure to beat the Protos into Paris and he wished to be on the first car to arrive. He further said that it would not look well for a Frenchman to ride on a German machine.

Schuester Rejects Gasoline Offer.

Schuester refused to permit St. Chaffray on the car under any conditions. He declared he would rather remain in Vladivostok than accept any such terms, although the situation appeared a serious one. He was afraid it would be necssary to send to Yokohama for a supply of fuel, which would have enabled the Protos car to obtain a big lead over us in starting across Siberia. However, on appeal to American residents of the city, he found a possible way out of the difficulty.

There were a number of gasoline launches in the harbor which had small quantities of fuel which St. Chaffray had overlooked in establishing his corner. We began gathering this in, and we hope in a couple of days to have a sufficient supply to enable us to start. Extra supplies which will be necessary en route will be shipped to meet us by rail from Irkutsk. The French committee at Paris has been notified of the situation and requested to afford relief.

That the other competitors in the race will refuse to profit by our situation developed at dinner to-night. All the crews dined together in the hotel here with the exception of St. Chaffray. It is expected now that all will be able to start from Vladivostok by Friday morning at the latest.

We have been the recipients of every courtesy at the hands of the Russian officials here, and everything has been done to facilitate our departure and to extend to us the privileges we requested.

Scarfoglio's Tale of Peril.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—The London Daily Mail has received from Antonio Scarfoglio, its correspondent with the Zust car in the New York to Paris race, the following dispatch from Vladivostok, which it will publish to-morrow morning:

"Beneath persistent rains which have turned the streets of this huge barrack into lakes of mud, we, the competitors in the round-the-world motor race, are disputing as to the start from Vladivostok. Petrol is scarce and we need fresh supplies.

"The roads beyond the city must be fearful. They say great tracts of the country are flooded and the roads are lying beneath three feet of water in many places. They say, too, that the brigands of Manchuria abound along the route and will give us much trouble, while the tigers and other wild animals of the district infest the way and add a new danger to the situation.

"Despite the gloomy outlook we are all eager to be off and expect that we will be able to arrange the start before the end of the week."

BABY MOUNTAIN GOAT AT ZOO.

It's the Very First of Its Kind Ever Born in Captivity.

The first Rocky Mountain goat ever born in captivity made its appearance in the goat house at the Bronx Zoo early yesterday morning. Keeper McEnro has camped out beside the goat house for the last few nights awaiting for the youngster to arrive, and it was scarcely daylight when the little fellow announced its presence by a weak bleat.

The kid is a fine specimen and bids fair to grow into a strong and healthy goat. This is the dearest hope of the Zoo officials, for heretofore not only has no kid been born but the old goats captured wild have seldom lived more than a few months. The parents of the newcomer were captured in the Rocky Mountains in 1904.

COMMISSION FOR CURRENCY.

Will Frame a Financial Bill During Recess Acceptable to Both Sides.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—At a meeting to-day of the Senate and House conferrees on the currency bill it was decided not to attempt any financial legislation this session. The bills will be permitted to die a peaceful death. As a concession to popular clamor for some action before adjournment, it was decided to offer a bill providing for the appointment of a commission to investigate the entire problem. This commission will consist, probably, of eighteen members, equally divided between the Senate and the House. There will be no outsiders. This commission will harmonize differences and outline a financial measure that will be acceptable to both sides.

CANNON SEES ROOSEVELT.

Refuses to Tell What Conference Was About.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—After an extended conference with President Roosevelt at the White House to-day Speaker Cannon on leaving said:

"Whenever I am requested by the President to come to his office I have made it an invariable rule to refrain from discussing the subject matter under consideration. However, there was nothing of such importance considered to-day that the President should not make it known if he should see fit."

Speaker Cannon would express no prophesy as to whether or not Congress would conclude its work this week.

NEW RECORDS BY LUSITANIA.

Big Cunarder, Here To-day, Making a Fine Race of It.

According to a Marconi wireless dispatch, received last night via Halifax from the incoming Cunard liner Lusitania, she was 827 miles east of Sandy Hook Lightship yesterday at 5 P. M., and will reach the Hook at 2 A. M. to-day and her pier at 7:30 A. M. The dispatch added that the Lusitania run the first day 622 knots, the second 625 knots, and the third 632 knots, which was a record, beating any previous day's runs both of her own and her sister ship, the Mauretania.

BIG DEPOSITS IN CHICAGO.

New High Record Is Shown in Response to Controller's Call.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 20.—The National banks of Chicago have made a new high record for deposits. This was shown in published reports to-day giving their condition at the close of business May 14, in response to the Controller's call.

The new high record in the matter of deposits is $354,051,233, against the previous record of $345,051,824.

NOT BOUGHT BY THE READING.

President Baer Says His Road Doesn't Want the Western Maryland.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—President George F. Baer of the Reading Railroad denied to-day that his road had acquired or was seeking to acquire the Western Maryland Railroad.

"The Reading does not want the Western Maryland, and, of course, has not acquired it," said Mr. Baer. "We could not get it if we did want it. An ordinance of the City of Baltimore would prevent us from getting that road."

TRAIN WRECKS AN AUTO.

Dr. Freis Saved by Being Caught in the Hood of His Machine.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, L. I., May 20.—An automobile top saved Dr. Eugene A. Freis from death at the Village Avenue crossing of the Long Island Railroad this afternoon. Dr. Freis was going north on Village Avenue, when he dashed through the gates that had been closed for an approaching train directly in front of the 2:47 local.

The train was moving slowly as it was entering the station. It hit the automobile and completely wrecked it. Dr. Freis was picked up wrapped up in the smashed leather hood of the machine, and in it he had been bowled along beside the track.

Dr. J. E. Hutchison, who was near by, examined his fellow-physician at a hotel to which he was carried, and found him suffering from nothing worse than shock. But for the tough leather of the top he must have been painfully injured. Dr. Freis was taken home in Dr. Hutchison's automobile.

GRAFT WHITE SKIN ON NEGRO.

Burned Child Helped by Operation—Mother Refused to Give Up Skin.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—To save the life of Bertha Reed, a negro girl 8 years old, who was badly burned more than six weeks ago at her home in Palmyra, N. J., and being unable to obtain volunteers of her race who would submit to the removal of skin to be used in a grafting operation, surgeons at the Homeopathic Hospital, Camden, to-day accepted white volunteers.

"Two of the grafts of the flesh of white persons have taken hold admirably. The child is doing well and will probably recover," said Dr. Charles K. Barnum, the resident physician. Dr. Barnum refused to disclose the names or number of persons who submitted to the operation.

It was learned at the hospital that the child's mother, who has not seen her for a long time and was supposed to have deserted her, called on the telephone to-day and made inquiries about the skin grafting and the condition of her child. She had refused to give her skin to save her daughter.

Doctors Found a Big Cyst in a Woman's Brain.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—The American Neurological Association, in thirty-fourth annual meeting assembled at the College of Physicians, to-day heard from Dr. Charles K. Mills and Dr. Charles H. Frazier of the University of Pennsylvania of a strange case of a woman whose enthusiasm for football became an actual mania. She finally become irresponsible at one of the games. When operated upon she was found to have a cyst in her brain three inches in diameter.

"She couldn't get enough of football," said Dr. Mills. "She attended games here; then she went to New York for more. She went to the Harvard-Indian game in Boston, and rushed back here again for the Army and Navy game. Every time she went, however, she would become very nauseated and dizzy, and partially disorientated."

After her operation her recovery was rapid and virtually complete.

HARD TIMES OVER, SAY MANUFACTURERS

They Loudly Applaud the Sentiment That Great Prosperity Is at Hand.

NO TOAST FOR ROOSEVELT

Toastmaster Merely Asks All Hands to Arise and Drink to "The Presidency."

"Not capital against labor, but order against chaos," was the slogan John W. Van Cleave, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, gave to the industrial leaders who had for the third time elected him their President, in his toast at the banquet last night at the Waldorf-Astoria, which wound up the annual convention of the organization.

He was applauded to the echo, the words coming as an appropriate finale to a meeting in which the labor legislation introduced in Congress during the session just closing had been, next to the tariff, the most important subject of consideration.

Five hundred members and guests of the National Association gathered in the ballroom for the banquet, and in the boxes above there was a considerable company of women. Seated at the speakers' table was the only woman member of the association, Mrs. Harriet Fisher of the Fisher & Norris Company of Trenton. Near her sat Wu Ting-Fang, the Chinese Minister, and upon introduction Minister Wu began in his traditional fashion to ask Mrs. Fisher questions. She told him that she manufactured vises and anvils, some of which were exported to China.

"What!" replied the Minister, "you send vises into China? Impossible, Madam; impossible!"

The toastmaster of the evening was Ludwig Nissen, and he drew out long applause when he said in his introductory remarks:

"We have been hearing something of hard times. They're going to change and change soon, and when this banquet adjourns and the members of this association go to their homes it is the duty of every man to tell every one he meets that the hard times are at an end and this country is on the verge of a great prosperity."

Mr. Nissen avoided calling for a toast to President Roosevelt, whose name had been frequently spoken in bitter criticism during the sessions, by giving this sentiment to the Chief Magistracy:

"I ask you to rise from your seats and drink in silence to the greatest office within the gift of any people—the Presidency of the United States."

There were some few shouts from the floor, but as many cries of "No!" "No!" from the speakers' table stilled them and the incident closed. Mr. Van Cleave was introduced as the first speaker.

Mr. Van Cleave read a telegram from Congressman Charles W. Littlefield of Maine, to whom the association sent its thanks for his services in fighting the Anti-Injunction bill and other kindred measures, and then held up an empty sorbet box.

"I have here," he said, "a full and complete copy of the Anti-Injunction bill as it was reported out by the House today. I wish in this connection to announce that the Judiciary Committee of the House has adjourned. You may draw your own conclusions."

Shouts and long applause greeted the announcement, and Mr. Van Cleave proceeded to give his slogan for the business interests of the country.

"We will frown down any effort in this campaign which is coming," said he, "to create a new political party, but we will tell to all the people that the manufacturers and the business men of this country stand for order against chaos. We propose to show that we do not stand for capital against labor, but for order against chaos.

"In 1896 the business men of the country gave the slogan of sound money, which will never again be abandoned. Now let us sound this new slogan and show that we stand for Americanism and that we believe that the Constitution is still the Constitution.

"We stand for another thing that is typically American, as our sessions will bear witness. That is that there shall be even-handed justice in the readjustment of our tariff. We want and propose to get not the square deal of the politician, but the square deal of the honest and upright business man.

Minister Wu's Address.

Minister Wu got a fine send-off when he was introduced. With an occasional helping suggestion from Senator Beveridge based on the Senator's trip to China several years ago, he began to tell about the agricultural interests of his country, of the hard-working and ingenious Chinese farmer, and the wide variety of his products.

This was by way of getting ready to say that the same Chinese farmer needed American implements and as fast as he got them was improving his methods of agriculture. Mr. Wu declared that he had just closed a deal with two professors of agriculture on behalf of the Viceroy and Governor of Manchuria to go out there and start a modern college of agriculture.

Mr. Wu was sure that China would be a great help to the nations in general as her resources were developed, and mentioned incidentally that there was one province in the empire where coal deposits existed sufficient to supply all the countries in the world for 1,000 years. But, of course, he continued, the Chinaman would buy American implements in much larger quantities and take up with American ways much faster if he knew more about this country, and, consequently, he pointed out, that it was to the advantage of America as well as China to make it easier for the merchants and manufacturers to come in here to see what America had to sell them.

Suggests a Commercial Museum.

"There is another thing," said Mr. Wu. "I believe that the most feasible way to extend your trade with China is for this great association of manufacturers to establish a museum or emporium in some port like Shanghai where your goods may be on exhibition, and where our merchants and manufacturers may go to inform themselves of your product.

"Such an attempt was made a number of years ago, and I am very sorry to say that it failed. But the failure was entirely due not to the system, but to misplaced confidence. Improper men were sent there. Instead of honest men they were improper men. Now this time you must not forget this, but must see that proper men are sent to carry out the project.

"The people of other lands have better ways of dealing with the Chinese than yo uhave. They have agents in almost every important port who are keen in placing their goods, and it would aid largely in the development of American trade if you would do this. But if it is not feasible to establish branches, then at least such a museum or emporium as I have outlined should be established."

In closing, Mr. Wu said he believed commercial alliances bound nations together more than any alliances drawn in black and white, and called attention to the fact that neither the United States nor China had any existing alliances of a character that would interfere with the closer trade relations which he hoped would develop.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge was down to talk on the tariff. Before he reached this subject, however, he consumed a half hour telling about his observations of China on the trip already referred to, and remarked that now that he had heard Mr. Wu talk on China as a great agricultural people he understood the diplomat's vegetarianism—that it was purely diplomatic. When Mr. Beveridge came down to the tariff he spoke in part as follows:

"You want the tariff to be made modern. It is the business men who must do business under the tariff and not the politicians, and therefore you want a business man's tariff and not a politician's tariff.

A Few Kinds of Tariff.

"You want a scientific tariff, just to all interests and to all men, and not a logrolling tariff that does injustice to some interests in order to do more than justice to other interests. You want a tariff which will open the doors of foreign markets to your products. Above all, you want a tariff based on facts and not on suppositions.

"The ascertainments of the facts is the method employed by our courts of equity. It is the method employed by Congress in every other subject except the tariff, but when we insisted that experts should also find out the facts with reference to the tariff, we were met with the statement that the tariff was forbidden ground which experts must not invade; that the tariff was a Holy of Holies, whose sanctity experts must not violate.

"But the world moves, even in the question of the tariff, and after all we are going to have experts find out the facts on this greatest of economic and business questions, and then build our tariff according to these facts. The man who does not want experts to find out the facts does not want the facts found out.

"When our next tariff is made we shall at least have a maximum and minimum tariff—a tariff not only for protection, but also a tariff for trade; a tariff which will not only preserve our home market, but which will open foreign markets.

"It seems incredible that selfish interests and mediaeval theorists should have prevented a change in the tariff as long as they have, but they cannot longer resist progress, and at last we are to have a tariff which will enable us to deal upon equal terms with other nations.

The First Trench Carried.

"When, at the beginning of this session, I introduced my tariff commission bill we were told that nothing would be done of any kind, and yet within two months the declaration was made by those who resisted you that whenever the tariff was revised, if ever it was, we should have a maximum and minimum tariff, and thus the first trench was carried.

"The next admission was that the tariff would be revised after the Presidential election, and thus the second trench was carried. The third was that the committees of Congress would be authorized to hold hearings before the next session met, and thus the third trench was carried.

"And now a resolution has been passed by the Senate directing the Finance Committee to employ experts from the executive departments of the Government to gather all the data upon which an intelligent tariff may be built, and thus the last trench was carried."

The last speaker was Job Hedges, who in a serio-comic speech made a running fire of epigrammatical remarks which were highly appreciated by the diners. A few were:

"If the Stock Exchange would open its daily sessions with singing the first verse of 'America' in absolute harmony the price of securities would go up"; "Politics is the art of handling men in the aggregate without using brute force"; "There is no difference of opinion about this 'Square Deal' proposition; the trouble is on agreeing as to who shall hold the deck"; "Whatever may be the past, present, or future of our Chief Executive, he has set all the people of all these United States to thinking"; "If all the men in this country would vote unanimously that the country is prosperous it would be."

LAWYER ATTACKS ROOSEVELT.

Manufacturers' Counsel Takes Him to Task for Legislative Policies.

The feature of the business session of the Manufacturers' Convention yesterday was a bitter attack by James A. Emory, its counsel, upon President Roosevelt for his attitude on labor legislation. The manufacturers applauded Mr. Emory's drives at the President warmly, and were particularly enthusiastic when he illustrated his idea of the President's attitude with the story of the negro children who had much sport in watching their chameleon changs its colors.

"But," said the old negro mammy, "dat beast done come to a tur'ble end. De kids put 'im on a plaid an' he des busted a-tryin' to make good."

"For four or five years," said Mr. Emory, "there has been a general attempt to push this labor legislation, inimical as it is. For three years past it has been stated and reiterated in Executive messages that the right of injunction has been misused against labor, and that there has been wide abuse of the injunction. Now let us look into it and find out if this is true. How many injunctions, for instance, have there been issued by courts in the last five years?

"In the last five years there have been issued but 328 injunctions and but twenty of them in labor disputes. That is the history.

"Never before has the judiciary of a country been attacked without facts to back it up. Now those who attack the judiciary—how many injunctions do they complain of in fifteen years? Just eighteen.

"In all these eighteen cases only one injunction has been modified by the United States Supreme Court. In seventeen cases then, they have either not appealed or have been defeated. That is the record. In no other department of law have there been so few examples of error in law found. In the fifteen years there have been issued only two restrainінb orders.

"Thus I ask what reason is there for the accusation against the courts of the United States that the right of injunction has been oppressively used. Wherever does the President get his evidence upon which to arraign the judiciary for the improper issuance of injunctions? He has failed to give the facts upon which to impeach one Judge, and he has thus impeached the whole judiciary of the United States."

Of the Hepburn bill, amending the Sherman Anti-Trust act, Mr. Emory said:

"The Hepburn bill practically permits the boycott. It provides the greatest lot of loopholes that I ever saw. It gives the administrative officials of our Government the right to say to those who desired to break the Sherman law in order to do whatever they pleased: 'Go and do as you please, restraint or no restraint of trade.' But you remember what happened to Charles I. of England when he went beyond the law."

Speaking of the Anti-Injunction bill, Mr. Emory said that if any such measure went on the statute books it would be a "living accusation" against the judiciary of the United States.

On the report of its Committee on Postal Affairs the association adopted these resolutions:

1. That postage on first-class mail matter be reduced to one cent per ounce.
2. That no matter of the second class be conveyed at less than the actual cost of its transmission.
3. That mail matter of the third and fourth classes be consolidaated into one class, and a rate of postage be charged for its transmission of one cent for two ounces.
4. That all members of the association report postal shortcomings. The department invites such reports.

It declared against postal savings banks and against the parcels post, this latter opposition being based on the proposition that such a service even if profitable would place the small dealers in the country at the mercy of the large stores. The association resolved to combat all attempts to repeal or nullify the force of the National Bankruptcy act, which it hailed as one of the most beneficial statutes ever passed.

During the afternoon session of the convention C. W. Scott of Philadelphia took the floor to ask that the association or John Kirby, Jr., repudiate an interview that was put out by the press bureau of the organization on Monday savagely attacking President Roosevelt for his attitude on labor legislation.

Mr. Kirby was not on hand and the association did not take any action on his demand.

Just before the close of the afternoon session, J. W. Van Cleave, who had been re-elected President of the organization, offered some resolutions of the "Let Us Alone" order along the lines of his banquet remarks.

SAW GHOST QUIT A GRAVE.

It Was a One-Legged Wraith, and It Left Its Crutch Behind.

There is a crutch awaiting a one-legged ghost at the new West Twentieth Street Station, and in the fragment of an old graveyard back of a Sixth Avenue department store at Eighteenth Street there is a worn old slab of marble over a crumbling vault that is viewed with suspicion by the police and by the young women employed in the store.

Lieut. Carey of the West Twentieth Street Station felt the cold shivers attacking his spine when Miss Bertha Howard, a detective in the store, grasped the railing before the desk yesterday afternoon and gasped:

"A ghost has just escaped from the graveyard back of our store!"

"A what?"

"A ghost, 'n all the girls saw it. They were at lunch, 'n they saw it move the slab and slip out and climb the wall."

Miss Howard was convincing enough to have the Lieutenant dispatch Sergt. Thompson and the reserves to the old bit of graveyard that has managed to hold itself sacred these scores of years of business encroachment.

The police found that the top slab of the vault was loose, and near it they found a crutch. Questioning the young woman who saw the spectre they learned that it wore long gray whiskers, was a bit shabby in garb, and despite its decrepitude had managed to get over the wall as nimbly as a cat would have made it. The police believe that some old human derelict, not yet ready to become a ghost, has been using the sheltered space in the vault as a covering by night.

The little corner of a graveyard is all that remains of a big burying place that covered acres in that vicinity seventy-five years ago.

SLAYER OF TWO CAUGHT.

"Louie the Lump," Wanted for Murder at Coney, Trapped in Connecticut.

Louis Pogel, known as "Louie the Lump," whom the police charge with the murder at Coney Island on last Thursday night of "Kid Twist," successor to "Monk" Eastman, as leader of the "Monk" Eastman gang, and his "pal," Samuel Pietch, otherwise known as "Bat" Lewis, a professional wrestler, was arrested in Saybrook, Conn., last night by Detective Tony Vacchris, head of the Brooklyn Italian squad, and Detective Simonetti.

The detectives started with their prisoner for this city at once, and Pogel on his arrival here will be arraigned immediately before Carroll Terry, the girl whom he is charged with shooting at the time of the murder of "Kid Twist" and "Bat" Lewis.

Vacchris and his men have been tracing Pogel ever since the shooting, and on Tuesday Vacchris learned that the suspected man had been seen in Saybrook. He and Simonetti left here for Saybrook immediately, arriving there at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, but it was not until late last night that they hunted out and arrested Pogel.

"Kid Twist," whose real name was Max Zweibach, and "Bat" Lewis met Carroll Terry, a singer in a Coney Island music hall, and took her and another girl companion into an Italian restaurant on Oceanic Walk. As they left the place the Terry girl says Pogel fired several shots, which killed "Kid Twist" and "Bat" Lewis and wounded her.

In the hospital the girl said that she supposed the shooting was occasioned by Pogel's jealousy of her, as she had lived with him for several Summers, but had recently refused to have anything to do with him.

BRYAN LOSES FIGHT IN PENNSYLVANIA

Democratic Convention Votes to Send Its Four Delegates at Large Uninstructed.

THREE STATES INSTRUCT

Michigan and Missouri Authorize Vote for Nebraskan Under Unit Rule —South Carolina in Line.

The Pennsylvania Democratic State Convention voted against instructing its four delegates at large for Bryan. This was a victory for Col. James W. Guffey, leader of the organization forces, who was fought hard by the Bryanites. Pennsylvania has sixty-eight delegates.

Michigan instructed her twenty-eight delegates to vote for Bryan under the unit rule until he is nominated.

Missouri, with thirty-six delegates, and South Carolina, with eighteen, gave instructions for Bryan. Alaska gave similar instructions.

PENNSYLVANIA IS UNPLEDGED.

Bryanites Defeated in Hard Fight Against Organization.

HARRISBURG, Penn., May 20.—After one of the hardest fights within the party in several years, the Democratic State Convention here to-day decided not to instruct its delegates at large to the Denver Convention for Bryan. It was a clean cut victory for the Democratic State organization, headed by Col. James M. Guffey of Pittsburg, the Pennsylvania member of the National Committee.

Aside from the defeat of the Bryanites probably the most important happening of the day was the dropping by the Democratic organization of ex-State Treasurer William H. Berry of Delaware County. Mr. Berry, who was elected State Treasurer on the fusion ticket three years ago during the Republican upheaval, was the first to call attention to the alleged State Capitol frauds, and because of this was considered popular among the Democrats of the State.

The delegates at large chosen by the Guffey people are Col. Guffey, State Senators J. K. P. Hall of Elk County, and A. G. Dewalt of Lehigh County, and John G. Harman of Columbia County.

The Guffey people offered a platform which was silent on the Presidential question, and the Bryanites immediately offered an amendment instructing the delegates at large for Bryan. It was defeated by a vote of 34 to 15. Then they offered another amendment containing the Bryan plank of the 1906 State Convention, and it also went down to defeat —36 to 17.

When the platform was presented to the convention at the afternoon session Jere S. Black, one of the leaders of the Bryanites, offered as a minority report the second amendment defeated in the meeting of the Committee on Resolutions. The fireworks then started, and it took an hour and a half before the matter was disposed of.

Black made an earnest plea for instructions, and ex-Congressman James Kerr of Clearfield also supported the Bryan plank. Then John T. Lenahan of Wilkesbarre made a vigorous attack upon Bryan, which roused the Bryanites to a high pitch of excitement. Lenahan declared that Bryan had "led the party to destruction," and that he was "a withering blight upon the Democratic Party."

The convention was in constat uproar in consequence of Lenahan's remarks, and he was frequently compelled to stop talking while Peter A. O'Boyle of Lenahan's own county tried to bring about order.

The platform declares for tariff revision, and that "such revision should be based upon the equitable protection of American labor when competing with foreign manufacturers." It also says:

"We believe that the army ad navy of the United States should be placed upon a footing commensurate with the dignity and power of the Nation and with due regard to the assaults that might be made upon our honor or our territory; but we derogate and condemn the policy of the party in power when it seeks to unduly increase our fighting strength."

Webster Grim of Bucks County was nominated for Judge of the Superior Court.

MISSOURI IS FOR BRYAN.

Delegates Are Instructed to Vote as a Unit—Gov. Folk a Delegate.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 20.—The Democratic State Convention here convened to-day with almost 1,000 delegates present. The convention instructed Missouri's thirty-six delegates to vote as a unit for Bryan.

Gov. Folk, Senator Stone, James A. Reed of Kansas City, and David R. Francis of St. Louis were selected as delegates at large to the National Convention.

The close of the convention was marked by a speech by Senator W. J. Stone, who offered to resign as delegate at large if the convention would elect Col. Moses C. Wetmore of St. Louis. Senator Stone declared that Wetmore was one of the closest friends in Missouri of W. J. Bryan. A motion to accept Senator Stone's resignation got few votes.

MICHIGAN PLEDGED FOR BRYAN.

Democratic Convention Unanimously Instructs Its Delegates for Nebraskan.

LANSING, Mich., May 20.—William J. Bryan was indorsed this afternoon by the State Democratic Convention, and the Michigan delegation to the National Convention was instructed to vote for him under the unit rule until he is nominated for the Presidency.

The instruction was by unanimous vote of the convention, and at no time during the sessions did the slightest opposition to Mr. Bryan develop.

For Delegates at Large to the National Convention the following were chosen by unanimous vote of the convention:

John T. Winship, Saginaw; Woodbridge N. Ferris, Big Rapids; Charles H. Kimmerle, Cassopolis; Edward Ryan, Hancock.

Alternates At Large: John A. McLaughlin, Muskegon; T. E. Tarsney, Detroit; John F. Bible, Ionia; F. L. Dorge, Lansing.

SOUTH CAROLINA FOR BRYAN.

Democratic Convention Instructs for Nebraskan for President.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 20.—The South Carolina State Democratic Convention met here to-day and by resolution instructed the State's delegates to the National Convention for the nomination of W. J. Bryan for the Presidency.

BRYAN GETS WASHINGTON.

Double Delegation Is Instructed "First, Last and All the Time."

SPOKANE, Wash., May 20.—At the end of a protracted and stormy session the Democratic State Convention after midnight Monday night adopted a resolution declaring for the submission to the voters of a constitutional amendment forbidding the sale and manufacture of spiritous liquors. A double delegation of twenty each with half a vote was elected to the National Convention and instructed to vote for Bryan "first, last, and all the time."

The convention selected the following delegates at large to the National Convention at Denver, with half a vote each: A. P. Titlow, L. F. Bignold, Fred E. Baldwin, Daniel Paul, George F. Christensen, A. G. Mitchum, Charles G. Heifner, and F. A. MacDonald. No alternates were elected.

Alaska Instructs for Bryan.

JUNEAU, Alaska, May 20.—John Ronan, a mining operator of the Tanana district, was nominated for delegate to Congress by the Alaska Democratic Convention last night. Delegates to the Denven Convention were instructed to support Bryan for President.

TO REVISE TEACHERS' PAY.

Board of Education Expected to Recommend an Increase for Many.

President Winthrop of the Board of Education will name to-day a special committee of the board, authorized at the last meeting, to revise the schedule of salaries for the supervising and teaching staff.

Last year the committee consisted of Commissioners Harrison, Wingate, Greene, and Kanzler. They recommended that the salaries of women teachers in the elementary schools the first year be increased from $600 to $720, with a graduated scale, so that they shall receive $1,440 the sixteenth year. Action was postponed on the report. It is thought a similar report will be submitted this year.

T. C. PLATT DENIES HE WED MAE WOOD

fraud and duress. Further than this I am powerless to right the wrongs you have suffered. Be patient and silent a little longer, when all will be well, and, believe me,

"Yours truly,
"T. C. PLATT, New York."

"Was the typewriting on it when you signed that?" asked Mr. Stanchfield.

"It was not. It was just a blank sheet of paper."

Denies Signing Letter.

Further questioned, Mr. Platt said that he never knowingly signed such a letter. The large photograph of himself, containing the words "To my little wife," was then shown to the Senator, and he was asked whether he wrote the inscription and the initials, "T. C. P."

"It's a forgery, it's a forgery," he replied, excitedly. "I never signed that in my life."

Mr. Stanchfield took up the letter which Mrs. Wood says she received from Mr. Platt, beginning "My little bride-to-be," in which the marriage is mentioned, and in which occurs the sentence "I am an old fool." Mr. Platt denied ever writing such a letter, saying he had not heard of it until the present trial began. He said the same of the letter which spoke of his relations with his sons and commented on the election of Odell.

"Odell had been elected a year when this letter was written," commented Mr. Stanchfield, after Mr. Platt had denied its authorship, as he did also the epistle beginning "My May-June-November Bride."

May Have Spoken Foolishly.

Mr. Le Barbier began his cross-examination of the witness by getting an admission from him.

"Did you ever address the plaintiff by any endearing name?"

"I may have done so foolishly; perhaps so," said Mr. Platt, evidently disconcerted.

He said he had not seen Mrs. Wood more than half a dozen times prior to the date of the alleged marriage, and that he first saw her at his office, 49 Broadway. She then accompanied a Mrs. Canfield, who was a candidate for a school teacher's position in the Philippines. Asked whether he went to Manhattan Beach in 1901, Mr. Platt said he usually did so on June 24 each year. He denied ever seeing Mrs. Wood there.

"Did you ever call the plaintiff 'Katie'?" asked Mr. Le Barbier.

"I called her Catty," he replied, spelling the last word.

He said he found Mrs. Wood "a very agreeable woman," but would not admit calling her anything stronger than "Dear Catty." The expression "breasting the world alone," which occurs in a letter written by the Senator to "Dear Catty," could not be explained by Mr. Platt, who said he did not remember writing it. A letter beginning "Dearest Mae" was shown to the witness, and he was asked whether it was in his handwriting.

"Yes, it is," came the reply.

A "Dearest Mae" Letter.

He explained that he used the words "Dearest Mae" because Mrs. Wood was "one of the agreeable women I liked to correspond with." He admitted that on the day of the alleged marriage he had written to Mrs. Wood inviting her to dine with him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, but couldn't recall what he meant by the phrase in the invitation reading "You will occupy your room, 158, till I come and signal you." He said he had forgotten whether or not he did dine with her on that night.

Asked who was his secretary at that time Mr. Platt said Thomas Howe.

"Was he also a Methodist Episcopal clergyman?" asked Mr. Le Barbier.

"He was."

"Was he present at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Nov. 9, 1901?"

"I don't recall."

"Do you know whether he performed any marriages while he was in your employ?"

"I don't recall."

Mr. Platt's acquaintance with J. Martin Miller was then gone into. He said he frequently met Miller, but denounced as false the statement of the latter, brought out in evidence yesterday, in which Miller said of the efforts he made to get letters from Mrs. Wood: "Senator Platt was informed about all matters by me, and I was instructed to co-operate with him."

Mr. Platt said he did not recollect ever having any letters in his possession which he had written to Mrs. Wood, nor did he recall that Miller had anything to do with trying to get hold of them.

He said he did not know anything about the payment of $10,000 for the recovery of the letter, and had not heard of it until Mr. Le Barbier mentioned the matter. Mr. Platt said he was not one of Miller's sponsors for his appointment as Consul at Rheims, France.

Mr. Platt said he was married to Mrs. Janeway in this city in October, 1903, but was not allowed to say whether or not there had been a secret marriage before the public ceremony was performed. After a few more questions, Mr. Platt's ordeal was over. He was briefly re-examined by Mr. Stanchfield and then left the stand.

Assisted Out of Courtroom.

He bore the test exceedingly well, but seemed glad it was over. He had to be helped to rise from his seat, and with the aid of his attendants shuffled slowly out of the courtroom. In his excited state he put on his tall hat while yet sitting in the witness chair. A court officer removed it for him.

The rest of the day was occupied in the reading of depositions of witnesses taken by a commission. Mrs. Wood, the plaintiff, was not present at any part of the hearing.

The depositions included one from Thomas R. Porter, an Omaha newspaper man, and recounts an interview dictated by Mrs. Wood to Porter for publication. In it she tells of how she first met Mr. Platt, and relates how their friendship developed to a period when the Senator, she said, wanted to elope with her. It goes on to say:

"But my sense of humor would not permit me to elope with a 70-year-old bridegroom whom I would have to support as he walked. I'd like to have any one who thinks him a matrimonial prize to have been in my shoes for about one day."

Porter also deposed that on another occasion Mrs. Wood said to him:

"I was afraid the Senator might beat me out by agreeing to fulfill his promise and marry me; and if there is one thing that would be more humiliating than suing this old man for breach of promise it would be to be obliged to marry and live with him."

This interview was given to Porter by Mrs. Wood on April 30, 1905, nearly four years after the date she alleged Platt had married her.

Another deposition was that of Mrs. Dunning, who tells how she accompanied Mrs. Wood to the Arlington Hotel, Washington, on Dec. 10, 1906, and there got from Senator Platt his autograph.

A number of letters written by Mrs. Wood to A. H. Hummel were also introduced in evidence.

SAYS PARTY SYSTEM STANDS IN DANGER

Goldwin Smith Believes Progress of Free Thought Threatens Its Disintegration.

CITES ENGLISH SITUATION

Framers of the Constitution, He Says, Contemplated Nothing Like Our Method of Government by Parties.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 20.—Intimating that the system of party government in this country is threatened with disintegration by the progress of intelligence and free thought in themselves, and declaring that already there are signs of its demoralization by the gathering of independent forces outside of the party organization, Goldwin Smith, the English scholar, has written from his home in Toronto to students at Cornell bidding them to make a careful study of present conditions, with a view of determining for themselves that party government and parties are not the best means for the welfare of a State.

Prof. Smith cites English history to substantiate his assertion, and incidentally refutes the authority of Edmund Burke, who, he says, is usually cited as the greatest exponent of the party system. William Jennings Bryan recently visited Prof. Smith, and the visit moved the Professor to write to the Cornell Era, a monthly publication of Cornell students. The article appears in the Era to-day. It says in part:

"I had the honor the other day of receiving a visit from one of the aspirants to the Presidency, Mr. Bryan. It turned my thoughts to Presidential elections and the system of party government. On what that system is based, what is its relation to political morality, and whether it is likely to endure, seem to me questions which must pretty soon present themselves practically to every Cornellian who thinks of going into public life. My visitor calls himself a Democrat. His opponent calls himself a Republican. 'Democrats' and 'Republicans' are the one Greek and the other Latin for the same thing.

"But in a few weeks Democrats and Republicans will be organizing a political war against each other in a spirit hardly less bellicose than that of actual warfare, with arsenals full of political projectiles on both sides; while the community will be inflamed; intrigue, and perhaps not a little corruption of different kinds, will be at work, and the press on both sides will be blowing the trumpets with more regard to effect than truth.

"Is this an institution in which a Nation can forever acquiesce? Are there not symptoms or signs of a change already in the shape of independent forces gathering outside the regular organizations and threatening to disorganize them in time? Will not the progress of intelligence and free thought of themselves bring disintegration? There used to be the man who could say that he had heard many speeches which changed his conviction, but never one which changed his vote. Such stanch partisans are probably now growing rare.

Not Planned by Fathers.

"It is needless to say that nothing like this was contemplated by the framers of your Constitution. Washington sought, by putting Hamilton and Jefferson together in his Administration, to stifle partyism in its birth. The present intensity of party perhaps hardly antedates the Jacksonian era.

"You see to what party has come in England. What is called the Liberal Party is made up of motley and discordant elements—Liberals, Radicals, Laborites, Socialists, and Irish Home Rulers—combined to hold possession of the Government, and tampering with vital interests for that purpose. Gladstone, when he brought in his Home Rule bill, was described by one who had been his greatest friend and admirer as 'morally insane.' It manifestly imperiled the unity of the nation. Yet it was forced through the House of Commons by the party whip; though afterward thrown out by the House of Lords, with the hearty approval of the nation.

"The great authority always cited in favor of the party system is Edmund Burke, who upholds it in his 'Thoughts on the Causes of the Present Discontents.'

"'Party is a body of men united for promoting by their joint endeavors the national interest upon some particular principle upon which they are all agreed.'

"For my part I find it impossible to conceive that any one believes in his own politics or thinks them to be of any weight, who refuses to adopt the means of having them reduced into practice.

"Let me say by the way that Burke, though one of the most magnificent of writers, is not one of the safest of guides. With Burke's judgment compare that of his contemporary, Hume, a cooler and more philosophic observer:

"'As much as legislators and founders of States ought to be honored and respected among men, as much ought the founders of sects and factions to be detested and hated; because the influence of faction is directly contrary to that of laws. Factions subvert government, render laws impotent, and beget the fiercest animosities among men of the same nation, who ought to give mutual assistance and protection to each other.'"

Hearst National Party Incorporates.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum approved yesterday the incorporation of the National Independence Club, the incorporators of which are W. R. Hearst, Clarence J. Shearn, Melvin G. Palliser, Max F. The objects of the club are to encourage attendance at primary meetings "in order that honest and capable men may be nominated to guard and defend the purity of the ballot box. To recommend and indorse candidates for public office. To promote acts of good government and perform such work as may best conserve the interests of the public."

MAY END CLEVELAND STRIKE.

Settlement Expected To-day—Another Car Dynamited—Several Stoned.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 20.—Barring a possible squabble over the details of the settlement, the indications at midnight to-night were that a peaceful end of the strike of the motormen and conductors against the Municipal Street Railway Company will come to-morrow. Conferrees at that hour still were in executive session, but according to reports emanating from the room the chances seemed to indicate that an amicable agreement to arbitrate the matters in dispute would be reached before adjournment.

Incipient cases of attacks on cars were reported late in the night, the most serious of which was the dynamiting of a Lorain Avenue car at West Sixty-fifth Street. The trucks were demolished and thirty passengers were panic stricken. None, however, was injured.

In other sections of teh city a few cars suffered from stone throwing, but altogether the night passed without a recurrenceof the extreme violenceof the day previous.

POISON IN BOY'S STOMACH.

He Died Mysteriously After Father's Death—Both Insured.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 20.—Traces of strychnine were found in the lining of the stomach of Jacob Besore, the 22-year-old youth whose body was exhumed this week on demand of an insurance company. He was buried May 2, having presumably died of gastritis and spasms.

His father died in January of this year, the cause of his death being given as laryngitis. Both were heavily insured. Relatives explain that the boy took strychnine because of defective heart action.

MRS. DUKE'S LETTER PRINTED.

Her Sister, Mrs. Baile, Held on Charge of Making It Public.

An echo of the famous Duke divorce suit was heard yesterday in Brooklyn when Mrs. Louise Baile, sister of the former Mrs. James B. Duke, was arraigned before Magistrate Dooley in the Gates Avenue Court charged with having caused to be published a personal letter written to the complainant, Mrs. Emily Townes of 752 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, by Mrs. Duke. Mrs. Baile was held in $500 for examination on May 27.

The letter involved is as follows:

> Dear Aunt Em.—I received your letter and laughed over the last part of it. I hardly think that will happen. Hope you will find the place soon. The Grand Duke has not arrived yet. May come here this evening. Now, I want you to do something for me. I was visiting down on Long Island on Thursday. I thought I would have a chance to see you, but could not make the train.
>
> Write me, telling me how much you enjoyed my visit and how you regretted me leaving on Friday morning, so I can get it Monday morning. A letter I can show. Don't forget it. Will be over next week. Be sure and send the letter. With love.

CORPORATIONS FOR TAFT.

Henry Clews Charges They Seek to Control Government's Policy.

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 20.—Henry Clews delivered an address on "The National Corporation Problem" before the Economic Club here to-night.

That the greatest of all the National corporation problems with which the country now has to deal is how to curb and regulate without injustice the increasing political power and activity of corporations which are seeking Government control, was the declaration of Mr. Clews.

"It may surprise some to learn," he continued, "that the great power concentrated in the President's hands by Congress has made the great corporations, including the railway companies and banking institutions, ambitious and eager to control the Federal Government itself, and they are resolutely working to control it as far as they can by the force of capital, but as unobtrusively as possible.

"Already they are sub-rosa powerful political machines. In this connection it is significant that some large railway and banking interests have identified themselves with the Taft movement."

INVESTIGATE MARSH'S DEATH.

Clark Bell Tells Medico-Legal Society Fear and Drugs Caused It.

The Medico-Legal Society, at a meeting held last night at the Waldorf-Astoria, decided to appoint a committee to investigate the facts of the death of Mr. Marsh and report to the society. According to a statement made by President Clark Bell of the society an investigator of the organization had learned at Mr. Marsh's house that enough of a drug to destroy consciousness had been given the patient until he died.

Mr. Bell touched upon the Marsh case in connection with the power of fear. He said that on the first page of yesterday morning's TIMES there had appeared two pathetic instances of this power. One story told about a dog which had been killed by its master, who thought that its actions in trying to convey to him his boy's danger of drowning were evidences of hydrophobia. Another instance of the power of fear told on THE TIMES's first page, went on Mr. Bell, was the Marsh case. He then read the full story as told in THE TIMES. Continuing, Mr. Bell said:

"Upon reading this account a gentleman, the follower of no so-called healing cult, but a practical business man of scientific training, who knew of Mr. Marsh through business matters, believing that it was thoroughly unnecessary for a strong man of Mr. Marsh's type to die under such circumstances or to be controlled by the influence of fear which had evidently been injected into his mind, consciously or unconsciously, determined to call upon Mr. Marsh at his home, with two ideas in view:

"First, to tell him of his own experiences in the control of fear by the mind, and

"Second, to point out to him how it was possible to effect a recovery from a condition so evidently brought about by the power of fear of the dread hydrophobia."

The gentleman referred to, went on Mr. Bell, was met at Mr. Marsh's house by a son-in-law of the latter, who said that Mr. Marsh was past all aid of human power, and that the family had resigned itself to the statement of the doctors that there was no hope of recovery. The caller said that there was a "power which might aid him," insisting that he be allowed to see if Mr. Marsh could not be aroused from his stupor.

"Such a case has in it many conditions which seem to warrant grave investigation and consideration. The question of how far a doctor may, even at the request of a patient, take the power to remove life and consciousness into his own hands, is a serious one of most far-reaching consequences. It is one closely related to this case if the facts are as they appear. If the mind has power over the body, as scientific men all over the world are asserting, what and where is the right of a physician to remove all chance of that power being exercised by the administration of deadening drugs?"

HOUSE FLAYS LILLEY FOR BOAT SCANDAL

Williams Denounces Representative as Guilty of Treason and Advocates His Expulsion.

CHARGES REPORTED FALSE

Accuses Lilley of Acting in Bad Faith and Exonerates Loud of Michigan—Defended by Connecticut.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—When the select committee appointed to investigate the submarine scandal got through with its report to-day nothing was left of Representative George L. Lilley of Connecticut, author of the charges, except his membership in the House. They flayed him, but they stopped short of a resolution for his expulsion.

It was one of the severest reports ever submitted to either branch of Congress. Of the various charges and assumptions originated by Mr. Lilley it makes short work, then it analyzes the testimony in general, Mr. Lilley's motives in starting the investigation, and his own conduct before and after the introduction of the resolution on which the investigation hinged. At every stage it denounces him without limit.

The report, which was signed by every member of the committee, concludes with twenty-three findings. Four accuse Lilley of acting in bad faith; two charge him with being in contempt of the House, while the rest are devoted to stating the falsity of his various charges, the groundlessness of his assumptions, and the fact that in many cases he knew his charges were false when he made them.

After a short debate the report was adopted in the House by a vote of 157 to 82 on the motion of Mr. Payne, Republican floor leader.

Those opposed to the adoption of the resolution were chiefly the delegation from Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Alabama, and a scattering vote, mostly Democratic.

Higgins Speaks for Connecticut.

Mr. Higgins made the speech for the Connecticut delegation. He said he believed absolutely in the integrity of the House, but that he extended that belief in a high degree to Mr. Lilley.

He made it plain, however, that neither he nor his colleagues wished to cavil at the tenth finding, in which it is stated that Mr. Loud of Michigan is exonerated from every imputation cast upon him by Mr. Lilley. This statement was met with loud applause from the Michigan delegation.

Mr. Hill of Conecticut followed Mr. Higgins with the statement that in obedience to a telegram from Mr. Lilley he would not actively oppose the report.

Mr. Hobson, who acted as one of Mr. Lilley's witnesses to the phase of the charges implicating the Speaker, which was subsequently explained away by ex-Naval Constructor Speer, read a part of the report which he thought reflected on his integrity, and on that passage based his opposition. He was followed by his delegation.

Williams Favors Expulsion.

John Sharp Williams made the bitterest attack of the day on the Connecticut Representative. He said he firmly believed that any one guilty of the offenses enumerated in the report should be expelled from the society of his fellow-members, that the House should be purged of his presence.

"In a free country," said Mr. Williams, "the worst treason is the corrupt practice of a member of the legislative assembly, and a man who charges his fellow-members with such treason on grounds that he cannot make appear in his testimony ought not to be allowed in the House. The gentlemen from Connecticut do not realize how lenient the committee has been with their colleague.

"I fancy that the reason the committee did not make recommendations for Mr. Lilley's expulsion is that they heard he was at home sick. It is action like his that makes the Representatives victims of all sorts of yellow journalism and self-interviewing Congressmen."

Tool of Lake Torpedo Boat Co.

The report reviewed at length the evidence showing that Mr. Lilley had been made a tool of by the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, and that he had acted all along in its interests, and that the papers he had submitted to the committee and the questions he had asked were all prepared by attorneys of that corporation.

Concerning the anonymous attacks on Mr. Loud, the committee devoted a pointed paragraph directed at Frank L. Edingborough, formerly Mr. Loud's secretary, who tried to discredit him by means of the naval investigation. The report says: "Edinborough's testimony is conspicuous for three things: Its lack of frankness, treachery to his old friend and employer, and one distinct willful act of perjury. This committee cannot decide which was the more despicable act, Webster's in writing the forged letter, Mr. Lilley's in destroying it, or Edinborough's in swearing he had never received it."

The Committee's Findings.

The findings of the committee follow:

First—That House Resolution No. 255, introduced by Mr. Lilley, was an impotent resolution, and no evidence could have been compelled thereunder, and that this investigation required the adoption of House Resolution No. 288 of the Committee on Rules, under which the inquiry has proceeded.

Second—That Mr. Lilley's resolution was not introduced in good faith.

Third—That Mr. Lilley had no information to justify his charges made before the Committee on Rules.

Fourth—That Mr. Lilley acted in bad faith in making his charges before the Committee on Rules.

Fifth—That Mr. Lilley acted in bad faith in stating before this committee that he had made no charge reflecting upon members of the House before the Committee on Rules.

Sixth—That Mr. Lilley allowed himself to be used as an instrument of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company in its rivalry and attack upon a competing company.

Seventh—That Mr. Lilley's real object in introducing his resolution and making his charges was the same as the purpose of the "propaganda" of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, namely, the defeat of the clause in the Naval Committee's bill relating to submarines.

Eighth—That Mr. Lilley acted in bad faith in concealing from your committee the real parties in interest who were behind this investigation and furnishing him with information and evidence.

Ninth—That the charge that the four battleship proposition was defeated by the adoption of the submarine clause in the Naval Committee's bill was false; that Mr. Lilley, as a member of the Naval Committee, knew that the charge was false, and that he refused to maintain the charge before this committee.

Tenth—That Representative Loud was made the object of anonymous charges that were without any information in fact.

Eleventh—That Mr. Lilley violated his obligation as a member of this House in formulating and urging before this committee the groundless charges against Representative Loud.

Twelfth—That Mr. Lilley acted in contempt of this House in destroying the forged letter from Webster to Edinborough instead of delivering it to this committee.

Thirteenth—That Mr. Lilley violated his obligations as a member of this House in permitting his clerk to send out letters in Mr. Lilley's name reflecting upon the honor and integrity of members of this House.

Fourteenth—That Mr. Lilley acted in contempt of this House in not disavowing openly upon the floor of the House the letter to Goff, published over his signature, reflecting upon the honor and integrity of members of this House.

Fifteenth—That no official of the navy has been induced by the officers of the Electric Boat Company or any one else to act in his official capacity from corrupt or improper motives.

Sixteenth—That Mr. Lilley's charge of excessive profits in the submarine contracts was based on fictitious figures, composed by an agent of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company, by a perversion of the testimony of Admiral Bowles in 1902.

Seventeenth—That the charge that an excessive profit in the submarine contracts was due to special legislation in favor of one company was false, and Mr. Lilley knew that the charge was false when he made it.

Eighteenth—That no representatives of the press have been bribed or corrupted by the Electric Boat Company.

Nineteenth—That no member of the Committee on Naval Affairs has been induced by the officers of the Electric Boat Company or any one else to act in his official capacity from corrupt or improper motives.

Twentieth—That no member of this House has been induced by the officers of the Electric Boat Company or any one else to act in his official capacity from corrupt or improper motives.

Twenty-first—That the only two attorneys employed by the Electric Boat Company in the districts of members of the Naval Committee and remote from the business of said company did not exercise a corrupting influence upon either Mr. Lilley or Mr. Loud, in whose districts they lived.

Twenty-second—That no campaign or other contributions were made by the Electric Boat Company to any members of this House or to any campaign committee or fund of any political party.

Twenty-third—That Mr. Lilley has sworn repeatedly, including his last appearance before this committee, that he had no further suggestions, facts, or sources of information, and that he had withheld from the committee nothing that would tend to sustain his charges.

HOME PRESS UPHOLDS LILLEY.

Declares Belief That Committee Whitewashed Boat Company.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., May 20.—The arraignment of Representative at Large George L. Lilley, whose home is in this city, by the Boutell committee to-day was read with little surprise. It has provoked a chorus of jeers from the evening press of the State. The morning papers to-morrow will comment in like vein. The press has repeatedly declared its belief that the committee started out to whitewash the accused boat company and discredit Lilley because of the fear of revelations in a campaign year.

Such influential newspapers as The Hartford Courant and Times; The New Haven Leader, Register, Union, and Palladium; The Bridgeport Post, Standard, and Telegram; The Waterbury Republican and American, and The Norwich Bulletin have all along declared that Lilley and not the Electric Boat Company has been on trial, and some of them have denounced the Boutell committee.

Lilley is the logical candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

Lilley refused to-day to comment on the committee's report.

WOULD HASTEN JUSTICE.

Bourke Cockran Wants All Cases Finally Determined Within Three Months

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Representative Bourke Cockran of New York to-day introduced a bill "creating a special commission to devise a method of ending delays in the disposal of causes by courts of the United States, frequently amounting to denials of justice and tending to impaire public confidence in the Judicial Department of this Government."

It provides that "the Chief Justice and the senior Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, the Hon. George Gray and the Hon. W. W. Morrow, Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States, and five other persons to be named by the President, of whom three shall not be members of the legal profession, are hereby constituted a commission to examine the administration of law by the Judicial Department and ascertain if, through organization of the same or otherwise, it be possible to establish a system whereby every action, process, or proceeding instituted before a court of the United States may be determined finally within three months from the beginning thereof."

NEWSPAPER PROTESTS RULING

Says Post Office Department Has Persecuted Owner.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Charging that they have been persecuted by the Post Office Department because their publication criticised certain policies of the President and Chief Forester Pinchot, the proprietors of a livestock paper published here have entered public protest. The department has cut the paper off from the privilege of being mailed as second-class matter. This, the publishers assert, is persecution growing out of the paper's objection to the Administration's orders concerning the distribution of forest reserves and grazing privileges.

TREATY WITH JAPAN RATIFIED.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Senate to-day ratified two treaties with Japan for the protection of American trademarks, patents, and copyrights in Manchuria and Korea, and of Japanese trademarks, patents, and copyrights in the United States. The treaties were signed at the State Department yesterday by Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Ambassador Takahira.

The Foreign Ritations Committee of the Senate favorably reported to-day on the general arbitration treaty between America and Denmark and on the convention with Great Britain relating to wreckage and salvage and the transfer of prisoners in Canadian waters.

M'INTYRE ARRESTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Head of Defunct Brokerage House Taken to Court from a Sanitarium.

RELEASED IN $25,000 BAIL

More Than a Hundred Complaints from Customers and Other Indictments Will Follow.

Following an indictment for grand larceny yesterday Detectives McConville and Nelson of the District Attorney's staff arrested in a sanitarium at 26 West Sixty-first Street Thomas A. McIntyre, head of the Stock Exchange firm of McIntyre & Co., which failed for more than $1,000,000 recently. He was taken before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions, where he was released on $25,000 bail furnished by the National Surety Company.

The proceedings before the Grand Jury occupied only two sessions. The charge is that Mr. McIntyre stole $5,000 in connection with sixty shares of United States Steel preferred, certificates for which were sent to the firm by Mrs. Allen Sedgewick of Providence, R. I., for transfer. These shares she desired to have divided into blocks of ten and fifty shares.

The certificates for the stock were received by the firm on March 23. Though Mrs. Sedgewick made repeated inquiries, she heard no more of the transaction. Finally, through her counsel, she discovered that they had been put up by the firm as collateral for a loan by McIntyre & Co. from the Metropolitan Trust Company.

When the detectives reached the sanitarium they found Mr. McIntyre in his pajamas. He objected strongly when he was told that he must appear in court, and one of the hospital physicians went with him. He was taken in a taxicab first to Police Headquarters then to the Criminal Courts Building.

When he stood at the bar before Judge Rosalsky he looked ill and nervous. He was represented by J. H. McCrahon of 120 Central Park South.

Assistant District Attorney Train, who conducted the investigation of the affairs of the firm, asked that bail be fixed at $25,000, stating that he thought it probable, as there were over a hundred complaints pending, that further indictments would be handed down. He said that Mr. McIntyre had carried two secret accounts, from which he had drawn $850,000 in four years.

Judge Rosalsky fixed bail at $25,000, and Mr. McIntyre, after the bond of the surety company had been furnished, returned to the sanitarium.

Mr. Train said later that two years ago Mr. McIntyre drew $200,000 from his accounts, and that last year he withdrew $25,000. He said that the complaints pending against the firm, numbering more than 100, were brought by various investors, who had turned over between $350,000 and $400,000 to McIntyre & Co. in securities which have not yet been traced, though a careful search has been made.

About seventeen employes of the firm had testified before the Grand Jury that they had orders from Mr. McIntyre, some time before the failure, not to hold any stocks or bonds, and that weeks before the failure they were ordered to sell everything. When they remonstrated with him, Mr. McIntyre said that he was doing it on his own responsibility, and refused to listen to them.

A daily report was made in his office concerning the disposal of the stock and bonds which Mr. McIntyre used for his own personal information, and, according to Assistant District Attorney Train, the many customers who sent in certificates to the firm were able to obtain their stock only with great difficulty.

Mr. Train said he was trying to trace the missing stock, which he suspected had in a large measure been put up as security for loans or otherwise hypothecated.

It was said yesterday that the reason that the arrest was made promptly and that the Grand Jury handed down one indictment before they had entirely disposed of the case was because of some intimation that Mr. McIntyre might leave the jurisdiction. Mr. Train thought it best to have the arrest made as soon as possible, and release the prisoner on high bail.

Mr. McIntyre has been in a sanitarium for two weeks. About ten days ago he was summoned to appear before the United States District Court, but pleaded that he was too ill to do so. Dr. Charles L. Dana, who was then appointed by the court to examine him, corroborated this statement, but since that time he has been improving rapidly.

"IN GOD WE TRUST" AGAIN.

President Signs Bill Restoring the Motto to Gold and Silver Coins.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—President Roosevelt has signed the bill directing the restoration to gold and silver coins of the motto "In God We Trust." The use of the motto on gold coins was discontinued several months ago by order of the President on the ground that the law did not authorize its use.

The new law will become effective thirty days from May 18, but the dies with the additional words already have been prepared. In the meantime the coinage of twenty and ten dollar gold pieces minus the motto will continue, according to Director of the Mint Leach.

SHIRLEY'S CASE A MYSTERY.

State Department Asked Withdrawal of His Exequatur, but Doesn't Tell Why.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The State Department made a statement to-day touching the British Government's withdrawal of the exequatur of the American Consul John H. Shirley, who was stationed at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island.

The withdrawal, it was stated, was made at the request of the department; but why the department made the request was not set forth.

AGAIN ATTACKS ROOSEVELT.

Rayner Still Demands Justice for Col. Stewart, Banished to Arizona.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Sarcastic condemnation of the President marked the speech of Senator Rayner to-day when he made his appeal for justice for Col. William F. Stewart, who has been ordered to an abandoned military post in Arizona by President Roosevelt on the ground that he is unfit to command troops.

Rayner asked that the Committee on Military Affairs be discharged from further consideration of his resolution, demanding a court of inquiry for the officer, and offered a substitute resolution along the same lines, insisting upon a vote. The matter was put off until to-morrow, when the Senate undoubtedly will vote to refer it to the same committee.

Behind the demand for a hearing for Col. Stewart is an attack on the methods of the President, and there is no disposition on the part of the Senate to permit open criticism at this time. For that reason there will be no action on the question at this session.

Rayner declared both the President and Warren, Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, were dodging the issue, and that they were using every artifice to prevent action on the question. Admitting, sarcastically, that "infallibility was one of his attributes," Rayner attacked the President viciously for declining to order a court of inquiry for Stewart.

MINISTER RUSSELL PUZZLED.

Can't Suggest Solution of Difficulty Between America and Venezuela.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—W. W. Russell, United States Minister to Venezuela, in an extended conference at the State Department with Assistant Secretary Bacon, reviewed to-day the situation between Venezuela and America.

After the interview Mr. Russell said for publication that he had brought no information from Caracas which was not previously possessed by officials here. He added that he was at a complete loss to suggest a solution of the difficulty between the countries, notwithstanding he had had thirteen years of diplomatic service at Caracas.

The Foreign Relations Committee of ation, as indicated by Mr. Russell, is that the general public of Venezuela is ignorant that a controversy exists between their Government and the United States; consequently there is no public sentiment there on the subject.

DENIES BOOK PAPER TRUST.

Papermaker Says That Its Price Is Too Low.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—William B. Littleton of the Antietam Paper Company, Hagerstown, Md., jobber of news print paper, to-day denied before the wood pulp and paper investigating committee of the House that his firm was the selling agent of the International Paper Company, as had been charged. He said his company was not the selling agent of any manufacturer. The lowest price he ever bought paper for was $1.60, delivered in Hagerstown. This was some time in the '90s.

The witness said that in September, 1907, he had been informed by the International Paper Company that when its contracts with jobbers expired the company was going to eliminate the jobbers and sell its product direct to newspapers. Mr. Littleton told of one instance where he had been selling paper to a publisher at $1.60 per hundred. When his contract expired he quoted a price slightly in excess of this amount, but the manufacturers' paper company made a quotation at $1.57 and got the contract.

Charles H. Remington, who testified yesterday, was questioned regarding a meeting of paper manufacturers and sellers held in New York last Spring. Mr. Remington said that at this time no agreement was entered into as to increasing prices, although it was intimated that newspaper ought not to bring less than $2.50 per hundred.

"Our price had been gradually raising since the first of January, 1907," he said.

John C. Luke, President of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company declared that the report that the book paper manufacturers of the country were going to combine was without foundation, and made the statement that the price of paper is too low.

NO INJUNCTION LAW PLAN.

Republican Conferees Expect to Map Out a Policy To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The Republican conference on injunction legislation adjourned to-night without coming to a vote. It is expected that a definite policy will be mapped out at another session to-morrow.

The discussion centred on the new bill drawn particularly for the occasion by Representative Hubbard of West Virginia and Representative Madison. The bill follows the general outline of Mr. Hubbard's former measure, with the omission of the section relating to the trial of cases in constructive contempt before another Judge.

Mr. Littlefield of Maine attacked the measure. He referred to the unreasonable demands of labor and argued the unreasonableness of yielding to those demands.

The fate of labor legislation for this session rests entirely with the conferrees and their adjourned meetings.

$3,500,000 FOR TRACTION.

Court Permits Receivers to Make Heavy Issue of Certificates.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals decided yesterday that the receivers of the Metropolitan Street and New York City Railways might issue $3,500,000 receivers' certificates for the improvement of the surface traction properties in accordance with the petition filed some weeks ago.

The court directs that Douglas Robinson and Adrian H. Joline, the receivers, issue the certificates jointly on behalf of both companies. The bonds which are interested in the situation are the $12,500,000 collateral trust bonds of 1897 for which the Guaranty Trust Company is Trustee and the $16,604,000 consolidated bonds of 1902 for which the Morton Trust Company is Trustee.

The Judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals declare that it is of prime importance to all parties to continue the operation of the properties as an entirety, and that at the same time if the receivers' certificates are to be marketed, they must be sold as a prior lien to the different bond issues.

Receiver Whitridge of the Third Avenue Road is also an applicant before the United States Circuit Court to issue receivers' certificates.

This was inserted by Senator Lodge, who has failed on two other occasions to get bills through, owing to the opposition of certain Senators.

POPE HAS REJECTED FRENCH CONCESSION

Takes Stand Against Clause in Devolution Bill Designed to Help Aged Priests.

HIS ATTITUDE DISAPPOINTING

Paris Papers Predict That His Intransigeance Will Wear Out Patience of Most Docile Catholics.

PARIS, May 20.—It was officially announced here to-day that the Pope has instructed the French Episcopate to refuse the clause in the Church Devolution law providing for the creation of mutual aid societies for aged priests.

These societies, it was planned, would not only take over the property belonging to certain pension funds for aged priests, amounting to $4,000,000, but, in accordance with a recent amendment to the Devolution of Church Property bill, they would accept pious foundations for masses.

The news of this refusal is received with much regret by the independent newspapers. The Temps declares the act of Parliament was inspired by a praiseworthy desire to respect the wishes of the dead, and it considers the argument that the societies might fall under the domination of the schismatics to be specious.

"We are convinced," The Temps says, "that the good of the Church did not require this fresh condemnation. The Catholics in the Senate and Chamber who favored the amendment, as well as many of the clergy who approved it, will share this opinion. The fact is that the determination not to compromise with the French law carried the day at Rome. One is justified in asking if such intransigeance will not end in wearing out the patience of the most docile Catholics."

The Journal des Debats expresses similar regret and thinks that the Pope personally was in favor of the measure, as indicated by the permission granted the Archbishop of Rouen to establish an aid society. This action was taken two months ago, but the permission subsequently was withdrawn.

This refusal of the Church will result, under the law, in turning over funds valued at many million dollars to public charities.

The Pope's letter of rejection was made public this afternoon. In it the Pontiff says he earnestly desired to save the French priests from further sacrifices, and was disposed to authorize large concessions, provided the law permitted the priests to safeguard their dignity and ecclesiastical discipline. But the law proposed the formation of societies open to all who wanted to join, and provided no means for excluding those who had strayed from the Church. Moreover, it was proposed to form a separate body which, in a way, would lose its distinct character, primarily as an organization of priests, but more particularly with regard to its relations to the Holy See.

"While the authors of the law seek to avoid the odium of having taken away the bread of poor, aged, and infirm priests," the Pope says in part, "they offer to return to the Church a small part of the sequestrated property. What they hand back with one hand they lessen the value of with the other by imposing restrictions and exceptions."

SUSPICIOUS OF FRANCE.

Germans Don't Fancy Course French Are Taking in Morocco.

BERLIN, May 20.—The Foreign Office is conducting a searching inquiry in Morocco into the alleged maltreatment of a man under German protection by French soldiers while he was carrying a letter from the German Consul at Casablanca to the commander of a body of French troops. The Foreign Office says if any wrong was done this man France undoubtedly will make a proper explanation, and that it is not probable the German Government will find it necessary to make diplomatic representations.

Nevertheless, public opinion appears to be growing suspicious of the French aims in Morocco, and the German newspapers republish widely a series of articles from The Cologne Gazette, indicating that the military occupation by France is being gradually extended on small pretexts and with a display of force out of proportion to the requirements of orderly administration.

The French view that Morocco must somehow be made to pay all the expenses of the French occupation, now amounting to more than $20,000,000 is regarded officially as liable to give rise to a prolonged controversy.

OLGA MOLITOR VINDICATED.

Wins Suit Against Editor Who Suggested She Killed Her Mother.

KARLSRUHE, Baden, May 20.—Albert Herzog, editor of The Badische Presse, was sentenced to-day to a year's imprisonment and to pay the costs of the suit for libeling Olga Molitor, in publishing articles intimating that she might have been guilty of the murder of her mother rather than Karl Hau, who, having been convicted of the crime, is now serving a life term in prison.

The State's Attorney in summing up said the attempt of the lawyers for the defense to produce evidence requiring the opening of the Hau case had proved an utter fiasco and that the present case only confirmed the justice of Hau's conviction. The case atracted wide interest because it was designed to overthrow the Hau verdict.

The building will include a small theatre, where productions by the inmates may be given.

He said further that the Portuguese people would not tolerate foreign intervention, and that any attempt at intervention would be the signal for the execution of all traitors.

WOMAN SUFFRAGETTES SCORE

British Premier Says Government Would Not Oppose Their Demands.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 20.—Premier Asquith informed a delegation of woman suffragists who waited on him to-day that the Liberal Government would introduce an Electoral Reform bill in the present Parliament, and that if an amendment giving women the right to vote, drawn on democratic lines, should be proposed, the Government would not oppose it.

Though some of the militant suffragettes profess to see in the Premier's assurance merely a device to put off their claims, it certainly marks the most important step in the woman suffrage movement in England since John Stuart Mills's woman franchise amendment to the Reform bill which was introduced in 1867.

The introduction of the Electoral Reform bill promised by Mr. Asquith will bring about a dissolution of the present Parliament, for it is a Parliamentary tradition that the Government must appeal to the country on any vital change in the electoral machinery.

EDUCATION BILL ADVANCED.

Passes Second Reading in Commons—Not Likely to Become Law.

LONDON, May 20.—After a debate lasting three days, the Education bill passed its second reading in the House of Commons this evening by 370 votes to 206.

The Nationalists joined the Unionists in voting against the measure, and the debate gave little indication of a possibility of compromise during the committee stage.

The minority is relying upon the House of Lords either to throw out the bill entirely, or materially amend it so as to give both the Church of England and the Roman Catholics greater facilities for denominational teaching.

INSURANCE COMPANIES WIN.

British Court Holds They Shouldn't Pay Jamaica Fire Losses.

LONDON, May 20.—The question whether the insurance companies are responsible for losses occasioned by the fire which partially destroyed the City of Kingston, Jamaica, in January of 1907, was decided in the King's Bench Division to-day in favor of the insurance companies interested.

The insurance companies maintained that the earthquake caused the fires, and that, consequently, they were protected from the claims for damages under the earthquake exemption clause in their policies.

ANTWERP'S TRADE IMPROVES.

American Demand for Diamonds Active—Rubber Market Revived.

ANTWERP, May 20.—After several months' stagnation, due to the American business depression, the trade between this port and the United States has revived.

The diamond market is especially active, merchants buying heavily for New York account. The rubber market has also been revived, and heavy shipments are going forward to New York.

EDWARD MEETS CZAR JUNE 9.

It Is Expected Meeting Will Strengthen Anglo-Russian Friendship.

LONDON, May 20.—The meeting between King Edward and Emperor Nicholas of Russia will occur at Reval, in the Gulf of Finland, where the British sovereign will arrive June 9 on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The yacht will be escorted by two cruisers.

Diplomatists are greatly interested in this meeting, which, it is expected, will strengthen the friendly relations between Great Britain and Russia.

KNICKERBOCKER TO BUILD.

8-Story Building at Broadway and Exchange Place May Be Enlarged Later.

The building to be erected by the Knickerbocker Trust Company at the northeast corner of Broadway and Exchange Place, on the former site of the Consolidated Exchange, will be eight stories high. Plans for the structure have been prepared by McKim, Mead & White, who designed a twenty-two story building which the company intended to erect before it got into difficulty last Fall.

The foundations in the eight-story building, as well as the steel work, piping, and elevator and machinery spaces, will be of such character that the structure may at any future time easily be carried up to the height originally intended.

Part of the steel for the building was fabricated some time ago, and is now stored in Jersey City. The new building, which will be ready for occupancy in April, 1909, will be put up by the George A. Fuller Company.

HAVANA TO BE FEVER PROOF.

New Sewage System Will End Yellow Scourge, Says Engineer Parsons.

Among the passengers arriving from Cuba yesterday on the Ward liner Havana were Rear Admiral George C. Reiter, who has been on a personal business trip to see the conditions on the island; William J. Oliver of New York, Samuel McGivney of Jersey City, and William Barclay Parsons, the engineer, who has been to Havana as consulting engineer for the new sewerage plants for that city.

In speaking of the sewer, Mr. Parsons said that the work will be begun in October, finished in five years, and will cost $15,000,000. It will make Havana as well sewered as any city, said Mr. Parsons, and will eventually do away with yellow fever.

Mr. McGivney has the contract for building the sewer, and Mr. Oliver is building more than 100 miles of macadamized roads in Cuba.

RIDGELY NAMES HARRIMAN

As One of the Insiders in Southern Pacific Pool in Keene Suit.

Under cross-examination yesterday afternoon in his suit against James R. Keene and Talbot J. Taylor & Co., A. N. Ridgely, the stock tipster, who alleges that he was employed by the defendants to boost Southern Pacific during the slump of 1902, declared that Talbot J. Taylor, in approaching him with the scheme, stated that the "insiders," consisting of James R. Keene, E. H. Harriman, and others, were determined to hold and buy the stock and refuse to unload, and that it was bound to rise.

"My firm is acting as agent for Keene in this matter," the witness alleged that Mr. Taylor remarked, "and he and Harriman are loading up with the stock. My game is to promote the demand for the stock and it will take to the clouds."

Mr. Ridgely admitted that not all of the 300 letters received from his clients showing their purchases of the stock had been turned over to Mr. Taylor.

Some of the envelopes offered in evidence were empty, but the witness declared that they had contained letters when turned over to Mr. Taylor. The case will be continued to-day.

Forester Hurt After an Initiation.

John Jones, a barber, is suffering at his home on Broadway, Flushing, from a broken arm and shoulder, but he declines to say just how he received his injuries. Jones was one of twenty-five new members who were initiated on Tuesday night into the Court Flushing, Foresters of America, at Masonic Hall. Members of the order say that Jones was not hurt during the ceremonies, but that after the initiation was over he was injured by falling down the hall steps.

CHESTNUT TREES FACE DESTRUCTION

Trees Worth Millions Dying in This State from a Canker for Which There Is No Remedy.

EATS BENEATH THE BARK

Sprays and Other Attempts to Check Spread of the Parasite Unsuccessful—Trees in Botanical Park Doomed.

The wail of the chestnut tree lover is heard from all parts of New York, Long Island, and adjacent country. Thousands of trees, amounting to millions of dollars in value, are dying, the victims of the most deadly plant parasite known, the chestnut canker, (Diaporthe parasitica Murrill,) for which there is no known remedy. Within the last two years from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 worth of chestnut trees have been lost in New York and the immediate vicinity. One Brooklyn park alone has lost 1,400 trees. In the New York Botanical Garden, where the original investigation and study of the destructive fungi has been made, they have lost 300 trees, and are only waiting for Winter and workmen at liberty to cut down as many more.

Chestnut Trees Are Doomed.

It means the practical extermination of the chestnut tree in this part of the country, Dr. William A. Murrill, Assistant Director of the New York Botanical Garden, an expert in fungi, who has made a thorough study of the chestnut canker, told a TIMES reporter yesterday. He believes a law should be passed preventing the sending of the infected chestnut to other parts of the United States, and he has already warned other countries, Italy in particular, where the chestnut is an important article of commerce and food supply, against importing our chestnut in any form, for fear of infection. He counsels cutting the trees at once here to save the valuable timber.

Hundreds of letters are received at the Botanical Garden, containing almost piteous appeals for help from people whose trees are dying. Some are from men, others from women; they are from owners of large estates, or occasionally from some one who has a single fine chestnut tree which he is distressed to lose.

Dr. Haven Metcalf, in charge of the Laboratory of Forest Pathology in the Department of Agriculture, Washington, has said that by cutting away the affected parts of the trees and spraying them they may be saved. They say at the Botanical Garden that this treatment can only be given at great expense and that it is then absolutely to no purpose. There is no known remedy for the disease.

"This chestnut canker, which is a fungus growth, works under the bark of the trees," says Dr. Murrill. "The spores from the fungi are formed in the Fall and disseminated in the Spring, not by millions, but by billions. Everywhere there is a crack in the bark of the tree, made by the wind or by the claws of a squirrel, these spores are deposited, and the work of destruction begins. We at first thought that cutting away the affected part and covering with coal tar might be successful, but we found that it was not. A tree sometimes takes the disease in twenty places at once, and they may be in the highest branches of the tree, where a squirrel could hardly reach them. That necessitates the cutting of a large limb, and with so much cutting the tree is seriously injured and weak spots are left, where more spores enter. The canker may work down inside the bark for two feet before it shows itself on the outside, and it can easily be seen that treating in this way is impossible.

"When the disease was first discovered by H. W. Merkel, the forester of the Zoo, he got an appropriation of $2,000 and tried spraying the trees with Bordeaux mixture, one of the best solutions known. He gave it a thorough trial, but it did no good. The disease is not in the leaves, but in the bark, and after the tree is thoroughly sprayed a slight crack in the bark will still admit the deadly spores, and the work of destruction has begun. Spraying trees has worked fairly well in controlling the pear blight, but the trees treated were small, usually dwarf, and that was bacteria and this is a fungus.

"The cost of treating a large tree would amount to $100 at least, and it is a waste of money when it is useless. In the case of a very beautiful shade tree, where it was desirable to preserve it as long as possible, it might be well to treat it by cutting away the affected parts, and possibly it could be preserved some time longer. The best we can advise is to have the trees cut immediately for the timber, which is valuable. The canker is a parasite on the live tree, and as soon as it has killed the tree the other kind of fungus, which lives on dead wood, begins to grow and the timber is ruined.

"We first learned of the canker when Mr. Merkel discovered it in the chestnut trees in the Zoological Gardens in 1905, and then upon examination it was found in the trees of the Botanical Garden. The fungus shows in minute dots the orange-red fruit on the outside of the bark, which sounds hollow when tapped. The affected parts gradually die as the fungus encircles the branches and trunk, and it will kill a tree with a trunk two feet in diameter in two years. The time varies according to conditions. I took specimens abroad into practically all the countries on the Continent in 1906, but they did not know the disease there.

"We have experimented by inoculation, both indoors and out, and every form of chestnut tree is subject to it—the European chestnut, the American, and the chinquapin. All these kinds of chestnut trees we have inoculated, but we have not been able to inoculate other varieties of trees, oaks, maples, &c. It means that in this part of the country the chestnut will be practically exterminated for the time being. Something in nature may arise, some parasite, that will destroy the fungus, but there is nothing that we can do. It is going to mean a serious loss.

"The timber is valuable, being used largely for interior woodwork, for telegraph poles, crossties for railroads, and many other purposes, and the loss to people who have chestnut woodland will be large, though they will be able to use the trees they now have. A single large chestnut tree in a favorable position on an estate may be worth, and would increase the value of the property, as much as $1,000.

Loss to the Botanical Garden.

"A conservative estimate of our loss in the garden will be perhaps $5,000, allowing $10 a tree, which is very low. We have lost many beautiful trees on the lawns and along the roads, large trees which had attained their maturity, which could not be valued at less than $100. We began immediately to plant trees to take the places of the chestnuts on the lawns and in the hemlock woods, where many of the chestnuts are dying. Other trees will grow up to take their place, and we can use the timber of the dead trees for posts, fuel—many things. The loss is not as great to us as it would be under different circumstances. There should be a law to prevent the shipping of our chestnut trees now to other States. I understand they have been shipped recently to California."

Dr. Murrill mentioned generally as the territory now covered by the diseased trees Long Island as far as Huntington, up through New York to Poughkeepsie, north to Connecticut and Massachusetts, and south to Newark and Trenton, N. J., and Philadelphia.

In the garden he pointed out the trees with bare, dead branches, some with the entire top of the tree dead, others having only a few twigs growing out of the lower part of the trunks, and these beginning to wither. The tiny orange spots of the fungus fruit could be seen in the bark, and there was a hollow sound as the bark was tapped. The trees were those which had been fine, healthy ones, some sixty years old and more, with the best of conditions as to location and soil, but hopelessly lost, as the most casual eye could tell. Experiments in the tree fungus are being carried on continually in the garden.

FIREBUG SUSPECT IN CELL.

Caught in Apartment House, Where Many Fires Were Started.

In a vacant apartment on the top floor of 140 West Twenty-ninth Street a man was arrested last night who, the police say, may be responsible for eleven incendiary fires which have been started in that house and the adjoining building, 138 West Twenty-ninth Street, in the last three weeks. Following the arrest a quart bottle of kerosene was found in another room of the vacant apartment. In the pocket of the prisoner was a box of matches.

The prisoner says he is Daniel Godin, 25 years old, a waiter, who lives at 342 West Thirtieth Street, and is employed at the Hotel Lafayette. Mrs. William Cashman and her sister, Mrs. George Meyers, occupy apartments in 138 West Twenty-ninth Street. They returned from shopping yesterday afternoon, and on their way up stairs saw Godin in the vacant apartment in the next house. The two buildings are separated by an airshaft. They called the janitress, Mary Wright, and she hastened to the top floor of No. 140. The door to the vacant apartment was locked, and Mrs. Wright threatened to break down the door unless it was opened. Godin thereupon opened the door.

Godin said he had boarded with a Mrs. Scarto in the apartment until a week ago, when the family moved, and that he had come back to find a postcard he had left. He denied any knowledge of the bottle of kerosene. A policeman was called and Godin was taken to the Tenderloin Station, where Deputy Fire Marshal John McGough questioned the prisoner. He said Godin seemed to tell a straight story.

STRIKEBREAKERS MOBBED.

Striking Coal Drivers of Brooklyn Attack Non-Union Teamsters.

The striking coal drivers in Brooklyn continued their demonstrations yesterday against the non-union men who have supplanted them. At Pacific and Bond Streets a number of strikers surrounded a wagon driven by a strikebreaker and succeeded in cutting the traces. The horses were then lashed into a gallop and dashed madly down Bond Street to Bergen Street before they were captured. The chute in the back of the wagon was opened and several tons of coal dumped in the street. In attempting to stop the horses Patrick O'Toole, a streetcleaner, was knocked down and injured, and was removed to the Cumberland Street Hospital.

Another attack on a wagon driven by a non-union man occurred at Carlton Avenue and Dean Street.

A squad of fifty policemen was ordered out to suppress further violence.

SENORA ERASO RECOVERING.

She Is Saved from the Medicine That Killed Her Husband.

There was continued improvement in the condition of Señora Eraso, wife of the Venezuelan coffee planter, who died of acute atropine poisoning at the Victoria Hotel early Tuesday morning through the alleged mistake of Morris Schwarz, one of the proprietors of the Owl Drug Company, in putting up a nerve tonic which they took.

Schwarz, who surrendered to the police on Tuesday night to answer to a charge of homicide, told a TIMES reporter yesterday that he believed his connection with the mixing of the prescription would shortly be explained.

Friends of Schwarz were inclined to think yesterday that if the wrong drug was used in compounding the prescription it was due to the proximity of the two drugs in the medicine closet set apart for alkaloid poisons.

The prescription on the broken bottle taken to the drug store by Señor Eraso to be refilled called for sparteine sulphide. When Schwarz went to the drug case for it there was standing alongside the sparteine sulphide a bottle containing atropine sulphide. It is believed Schwarz took the atropine bottle by mistake.

An inquiry will be made by Coroner Acritelli next Monday morning.

Broadway Car Kills a Californian.

George Wolf of San Francisco, a naturalized citizen, on his way to France, who was to have sailed on the Touraine this morning, was knocked down and killed by a Broadway car at 125th Street yesterday afternoon. The motorman of the car carried him into a drug store and then drove his car on its way. Wolf was about fifty years old.

Convict's Bride Hysterical in Court.

When Abraham Dwork, who was convicted of conspiracy to conceal the assets of a bankrupt, was sentenced yesterday by Judge Holt, in the United States District Court, to a year's imprisonment in the Penitentiary on Blackwell's Island, the prisoner's bride, who was in the courtroom, became hysterical. She had to be carried out by Deputy United States Marshal Noon.

The young woman married Dwork a month ago after his indictment on the conspiracy charge.

LAUNCH EXPLODES, 7 DEAD.

Gasoline Tank Blows Up During Excursion of Young People.

CLARENDON, Ark., May 20.—Seven prominent young persons were drowned last night when the tank of a gasoline launch in which they were going for a moonlight excursion exploded, wrecking the boat. Other members of the party were rescued with difficulty.

The drowned are Miss Lillian Winfield of Clarendon, Ark.; Miss Alma Pette of St. Louis, Mo.; Mattie Counts of Clarendon, Miss Bessie Palmer of Kansas City, Miss Aline Burton of Helena, Ark.; Joseph McManus of Clarendon, and Dr. A. L. Houston of Clarendon.

One of those rescued, Miss Mary Cayett of Clarendon, was severely burned. The boat left Clarendon early in the evening, bearing a merry party, who had planned to go several miles down the river. When about five miles below Clarendon the tank of the launch exploded, wrecking the boat and hurling the occupants into the river.

Few could swim, and some were stunned by the force of the explosion and went down before swimmers in the party could make an effort at rescue.

Diamond Necklace Lost at the Astor.

Every employe of the Hotel Astor is on the lookout for a diamond necklace lost by a woman guest either, as she thinks, in the orangerie or the foyer on Monday night. The loser of the necklace, whose name is withheld, has offered a reward of $150 for it, and "no questions asked." A similar reward is offered to-day in THE TIMES Lost and Found column.

HIGHWAYMAN GETS 20 YEARS.

Judge Calls Him the Toughest Individual in Court for Many Months.

"The county will be well rid of you; you are the toughest individual who has come up for sentence in these courts for many months," said Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday in sending Edward Cattenoude of 526 East 136th Street to Sing Sing for twenty years for highway robbery. Cattenoude assaulted and robbed George B. Eaton, a contractor, of 814 East 163d Street, on Feb. 27.

Killed in Quarrel with Boarder.

Camillio Potenno of 252 Union Place, Ozone Park, Queens, was killed yesterday by a boarder, who stabbed him with a pair of shears when they quarreled about Mrs. Potenno. A general alarm was sent out by the police for Lavenno Liminno, who is alleged to have done the killing.

GOV. HUGHES VETOES THREE-PLATOON BILL

Says Arrangement of Tours of Duty Should Be Arranged by Local Officials.

RECORD IN SIGNING BILLS

Measure Requiring Semi-Monthly Payment of Railroad Wages Obtains His Signature, Also Torrens Title Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 20.—Gov. Hughes to-day signed eighty-eight bills passed at the regular session of the Legislature. This establishes a new record. The most important bill to receive approval was the Green bill, providing for the inauguration of the Torrens system for the recording and transfer of real estate, which has worked successfully in some other States.

The Governor also signed the bill providing for the semi-monthly payment of wages to employes of steam railroads.

Only one important bill was vetoed. This provided for the introduction of the three-platoon system in the Police Departments of all cities of the first and second class. Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse already have this system. The administrations of New York City, Albany, Troy, and Yonkers, all of which would have been affected, opposed it. In his veto message the Governor said:

"The only feature of this bill which requires consideration and the only reason for its passage, is that by mandatory act of the Legislature it would compel these cities to adopt a particular method of dividing the police force and of arranging tours of duty without regard to the wishes of the citizens or the judgment of the local officers, who are responsible to the citizens for the efficiency and proper conduct of the departments. This is unjustifiable."

Among the bills signed by the Governor was one providing for protection against infection from tuberculosis by an elaborate system of registration of persons suffering from the disease and a companion bill providing for a fee of 25 cents for each case of tuberculosis reported by physicians, the fee to be paid by the municipality in which the case is reported.

Other bills approved were:

The Robinson bill, extending the time for the completion of the New York & Harlem Railroad terminal in New York City.

The Agnew bill, extending the time of the New York Harbor Pollution Commission until May, 1910, and providing for a salary for the Commissioners.

A bill giving the New York authorities power to co-operate with the local authorities of towns and villages about the Croton water shed in the erection of plants for sewerage disposal, to protect the New York City water supply.

The bitterly fought bill permitting the building of a boulevard through the Forest Hill Cemetery in Brooklyn.

The Whitney bill for the protection of the mineral springs at Saratoga, which prohibits any person from pumping or using other contrivances accelerating the natural flow, or causing an unnatural flow.

HELD ON CHECK SWINDLE.

Prisoner Said to be a Government Inspector Arrested at the Waldorf.

A well-dressed man, who, the police say, declares he is Miles J. Renick, a Government Inspector of Washington, D. C., and who registered at the Waldorf-Astoria Wednesday, was arrested last night by House Detective F. W. Turnbull on a charge of passing an alleged worthless check upon the tailoring firm of Nahm, Lennon & Damm of 372 Fifth Avenue.

According to the police the man went to the tailors yesterday morning and ordered $300 worth of clothing. He was asked for a deposit of $50, they say, and, it is alleged, he then gave a draft for $100 on the Exchange Banking and Trust Company of Charleston, S. C., and received $50 change. By telegraph Mr. Lennon, the police say, learned from the Charleston Trust Company that the draft was worthless.

The prisoner was locked up in the West Thirty-fourth Street Police Station.

OPPOSE STORE INSPECTION.

Department Establishment Proprietors Appear Against the Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 20.—Nearly every department store in New York and Buffalo was represented at the hearing given to-day before the Senate Judiciary Committee on the Page bill providing for the establishment of a Bureau of Mercantile Inspection in the State Labor Department. The merchants opposed the bill. State Commissioner of Labor John H. Williams and representatives of labor organizations and civic bodies appeared to support it.

E. W. Bloomingdale and Edward P. Hatch, Jr., were the chief speakers for the opposition. The effect of the bill would be to place mercantile establishments on the same footing as factories as regards the enforcement of the labor law and sanitary inspection. Under the proposed law the work of inspection would be carried on by the State Labor Department instead of, as now is the case, by the local health boards.

Mr. Bloomingdale declared that in the big department stores the employers have already done more for their employes than any law already enacted could possibly compel them to do. Mr. Bloomingdale reminded the committee that when President Roosevelt was Governor he recommended similar legislation, but on investigation ceased his advocacy of it.

HOTEL ST. LORENZ HARD HIT.

Receiver for Proprietor Richard Meares Will Maintain It Ten Days.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Richard Meares, proprietor of the Hotel St. Lorenz, 127 East Seventy-second Street, by Lesser Brothers, attorneys for these creditors: Samuel B. Balcolm, $189; Peter J. Schneider & Son, $257, and Herschman & Bleier, $88. It is alleged that he is insolvent and made preferential payments. Judge Hough appointed Henry Melville receiver, with bond for $3,000, and authorized him to continue business for ten days.

The hotel has been in existence for many years, and it was necessary to keep it running and provide for the guests. There are several thousand dollars in outstanding accounts due from guests. It is also stated that numerous suits are pending against Mr. Meares, and also that there are foreclosure proceedings in progress to foreclose mortgages on the real estate, which, however, is not owned by him.

On March 24 last the hotel property was transferred by Anna E. Lyon to Winifred Tucker, subject to mortgage of $285,000, and foreclosure suits, it is said, were begun on April 22. Mr. Meares has managed the hotel since 1893, which is conducted as a family apartment hotel. In 1879 he went into the hotel business at the Hotel Royal, Fortieth Street and Sixth Avenue, which was destroyed by fire on Feb. 7, 1892. In 1898 he went through bankruptcy to get rid of $55,000 liabilities. He also had a hotel at Long Branch some years ago. Lesser Brothers said yesterday that business had been dull for some time past, and Mr. Meares's health had been poor. They, however, expect that he will be able to make a settlement with his creditors. They did not think his liabilities would exceed $15,000, and they estimated his assets at $8,000.

CRIMINALS IMPORTED TO VOTE

Grand Jury Urges Legislature to Enact Laws Preventing Election Frauds.

After filing a number of indictments for violation of the election laws against a person who is now a fugitive from justice the Grand Jury handed down to Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions a presentment which recommended that the Legislature pass more stringent laws in regard to the registration and idenification of voters on Election Day.

The presentment was read by Arnold Kohn, the foreman of the Grand Jury. It says in part:

> It appears from evidence recently submitted to us that wholesale crimes against the elective franchise were committed at the last election, and that many fraudulent votes were cast by bands of criminals imported into the State from neighboring States.
>
> It is needless for us to call attention to the fact that such crimes, if they continue, are bound to subvert our form of government, and ultimately to place it in the hands of persons responsible for such crimes.
>
> We therefore respectfully urge upon the Legislature and Governor the enactment of more stringent laws and a more stringent system of identifying registered voters on Election Day. And we request that a copy of this presentment be forwarded to the Governor, the Senate, and the Assembly of the State as soon as possible.

The Judge directed that the recommendations be forwarded to the Governor.

WANT CITY TO PAY FOR DRIVE EXTENSION

Taxpayers Protest at $1,500,000 Assessment on Their Property for Riverside Improvements.

ROW AT PUBLIC HEARING

Opponents Try to Howl Down Speaker Who Favors the Assessment on All but His Clients.

Protest was made yesterday to the Riverside Drive and Parkway Commission by the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association and other kindred bodies against the $1,500,000 assessment upon property holders in the northwestern part of the city to pay for the extension of Riverside Drive north from 135th Street. The hearing was held in the Gerken Building, 90 West Broadway, and ended with a speech by John C. Shaw, which aroused loud cries of opposition.

The line taken by the majority of the speakers was that the extension of Riverside Drive is not a local improvement, and that it is not fair to demand payment from the local property holders.

"We shall get as much benefit," declared Christian Trinks, President of the Washington Heights Progressive Association, "from the extension of the Drive as from the Speedway, and we get as much from that as from the Panama Canal. The city paid for the Speedway, let it pay for the Drive. If the wealthy people from Fifth Avenue want the Drive for their automobiles, let them pay for it."

Others who spoke in the same strain were: The Rev. J. E. Price of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. Dr. J. R. McKay of the North Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Milo H. Gates of the Church of the Intercession, Bernard Loth, President of the Fort Washington Bridge Association, and William B. Selden, Chairman of the Special Committee of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association.

When they had finished, Mr. Shaw asked permission of John P. O'Brien, the Chairman of the commission, to be heard. He was asked whom he represented, and replied:

"Columbia University, James Gordon Bennett, the Mary G. Pinckney estate, and myself."

Mr. Shaw argued that it was not fair to assess all the property-holders as far east as Edgecombe Avenue, because many of them get absolutely no advantage from the improvements, but those who owned property near the Drive should pay their share, and the city should provide the rest of the money.

"I know," he declared, "that since the improvements have been made real estate on Riverside Drive has been sold at a large profit. I have a right to speak on the matter, for I mandamussed the city to extend the Drive beyond 135th Street, and I drew the plans for the work above 158th Street."

"Then you ought to be ashamed of yourself," called out a candid critic in the crowd. "I hope you may die before you draw any more."

"Get an airship and talk from that!" yelled another.

"I protest against this man speaking," said Mr. Selden. "This meeting was called to hear the protest of the association."

"I will speak," retorted Mr. Shaw. "I don't intend to allow Columbia University to be assessed for the benefit of people living in the Dyckman district."

"How much is there in this for you?" "You're a hired talker!" "We don't want to hear you!" "We want the plain people to be heard!" were other comments hurled at Mr. Shaw by the taxpayers who crowded the room.

CONVICT EASTER CHICK MAN.

Dealer Found Guilty of Cruelty for Selling Them to Children.

Gaston Faivre of 55 East 125th Street was convicted in Special Sessions yesterday through the efforts of the S. P. C. A., of selling Easter chicks last Easter time in violation of a section of the Penal Code, which states "that a person who furthers any act of cruelty to any animal, or any act tending to produce cruelty, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

This is the first time that the selling of Easter chicks has been construed as falling under this section, although the S. P. C. A. has been trying for years to stop the practice, on the ground that after the chicks are purchased they are allowed to starve, or are killed through the carelessness of children.

Faivre was arrested after Special Agent Calhoun of the S. P. C. A. had bought several newly incubated chickens a few days before Easter, and had seen a little boy buy others.

Sentence was suspended.

TO BURY STERRYS TOGETHER.

Miss Blaikie, Who Was to Have Married Murdered Man, Prostrated.

Man & Man of 56 Wall Street, attorneys for George E. Sterry, the wholesale drug merchant who was killed on Wednesday in his office at 79 Pine Street by his son, George E. Sterry, Jr., who then killed himself, stated yesterday that they had no information to give out concerning the will of the dead man.

The cause of the parricide and suicide was anger on the part of the son because his father, aged 72, had prepared to marry Miss Rachel B. Blaikie, a thirty-eight-year-old school teacher of East Orange, N. J., on June 3. It was reported that the double crime had effected only part of its intent, since the old man had made a will leaving part of his wealth to Miss Blaikie.

Man & Man refused to confirm or deny the report about the will. The friends of the family refused to put any faith in the story. The bodies of the father and son will be buried together. The funeral arrangements had not been completed last night.

Miss Rachel B. Blaikie, the school teacher, was still prostrated yesterday at her boarding house, 67 Prospect Street, East Orange. She refused to see any one except her pastor, the Rev. Brewer Eddy of the Congregational Church. The people at the house said that she had stated yesterday that she would leave Orange as soon as she was strong enough to travel. The alleged interviews with her, wherein she was quoted as saying that she had feared George Sterry, Jr., and that she was sure that the will of the old man had been changed, making her share equally with the sons, were denied yesterday at the Prospect Street house.

Mrs. George E. Sterry, Jr., wife of the murderer and parricide, was still prostrated yesterday at the home of her sister, to which she had been removed from the Manhattan Square Hotel. She is under the care of a physician.

Acquaintances of the son who killed his father and himself were talking yesterday of what he drank, since it had been said that he had been crazed by the use of absinthe. The majority of opinion was that he had drunk more ale than anything else.

KANGAROO BOXED THEM.

Sailors on the Mesaba Got More Than They Bargained for in a Bout.

Capt. A. E. Tribe and the officers and crew of the Atlantic Transport liner Mesaba, which arrived yesterday from London, had much to say about a full-grown Bengal man-eating tiger, called Mustafa, which was on board, in company with a bear, a boxing kangaroo, six bulldogs, and forty fox hounds.

The wild animals were consigned to Bostock's menagerie at Coney Island, and the dogs to George E. Pfiser of this city. All kinds of reports regarding the tiger were circulated among the passengers and the crew on the way across.

Mustafa was described by the tamer who put him on board the ship as a pessimistic animal that had seen better days, with a very disagreeable disposition.

"Don't take him out of his cage, cook," said the tamer in parting, "until you get used to him. Mustafa looks slow, but he is devilish sly, and wants a lot of watching."

The bear, a big, black one, which came from the wilds of Siberia, where the New York to Paris automobilists are now going, had the cage next to Mustafa. He made faces at the tiger whenever he saw him looking pessimistic.

One night a fireman rushed into the sailors' foc's'le and yelled out: "Tumble up, lads; the Bengal tiger has got adrift, and he's eating up the bo'sun's mate."

The sailors awoke from their dreams and ran out on deck and climbed up the fore rigging to see where the tiger was. It was not until the vigilant mate on the bridge asked them in polite tones what they were doing up there that the men realized that they had been deceived.

Bimbo, the boxing kangaroo, got a lot of attention and received much kindness until two of the crew let him out one night for a boxing bout. It took ten of the hardest men among the sailors and firemen to get Bimbo back to his cage, and the cruel manner in which he worked back kicks drew fierce cries of anguish from those men who were in the immediate vicinity of the pugilistic animal.

CARDINAL REVIEWS THE 69TH.

Guardsmen Kiss Irish Prelate's Ring as He Marches Past Them.

Cardinal Logue, Archbishop of Armagh and Primate of Ireland, appeared at the armory of the Sixty-ninth Regiment last night and marched with the staff of Col. Edward Duffy in front of line after line of the three battalions of the regiment, keeping step to the lively military march the band played.

The review of this military organization of the old "Irish Brigade," which sent so many men to the front in the civil war, was an unusual affair, in that it closely mingled the ecclesiastical and the military spirit. The Cardinal was really in command of the regiment as a reviewing officer, for the review was held in his honor, and Col. Duffy and his staff trailed behind his scarlet robe as he strode ahead of them down the front of the line.

The Cardinal seemed to enjoy every minute of the two hours spent in the dress parade and inspection and review. The Sixty-ninth Regiment turned out its full complement of men all spick and span in fresh uniforms, every company well drilled, and every man in regiment sticking close to military regulations in presenting arms to the Cardinal, but kissing the ring of the man of the church without bowing the knee. The galleries were packed with people, and as the Cardinal reviewed and inspected the regiment the spectators applauded him.

At the conclusion of the review the colors were sent to the front and centre, and with the band playing "Three Cheers for the Red, White, and Blue," the Cardinal bowed instead of saluting, and dismissed the military function. Then, at the head of the Colonel's staff, and the officers of the battalions and companies in their plentiful gold lace and jingling side arms, the successor of Saint Patrick strode down the centre of the parade floor, and a thousand soldiers marched behind them.

In a large reception room the Cardinal then received the officers of the regiment. Each put aside the military regulations and bowed the knee before him and kissed his ring. Some of them asked a blessing and received it.

With the Cardinal last night were Mgr. Lavelle, Mgr. Hayes, Mgr. McCready, Bishop Browne of Cloyne, Father Quinn, Dr. McMackin, and Supreme Court Justice Fitzgerald, as personal lay escort.

In a large reserved stand at the Armory many women prominent in the Church in New York watched the review. Papal, American, and Irish flags were the decorations.

SCHOOL BOY BURNS TO DEATH

Alone in Apartment, His Clothing Is Ignited at Gas Range.

Seven-year-old Charles Trainor of 413 East Sixty-ninth Street, was burned to death yesterday afternoon. On his return from school he lighted a match, presumably to start a fire in a gas stove to dry his clothing, which in some way was ignited.

After attempting to put out the flames, without success, the boy rushed to a front window, raised it, and screamed to some boys in the street. The boys told Policeman Martin of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, and he ran into the house. He found the boy lying unconscious across a chair, his clothing still smoldering.

The policeman took off his own rubber coat, wrapped it around the lad's body, and extinguished the flames. Then he called an ambulance from the Presbyterian Hospital, but when Dr. Gaby arrived he found that the boy was dead.

CITY BREVITIES.

The medical staff and friends of the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, 301 East Nineteenth Street, will give an entertainment in the hospital to-morrow night to raise funds for the furnishings of a new home for the hospital nurses. The institution has recently acquired the property from 307 to 311 East Nineteenth Street, and needs a well-furnished residence.

Samuel Williamson, one of the clerks in the night court, appeared yesterday before the Committee on Rules and Discipline of the Board of City Magistrates and pleaded guilty to having used language he should not have used at a hearing involving some raid cases presented by Deputy Police Commissioner Hansen. Decision was reserved.

City Court Justice Schmuck refused yesterday the application of counsel for Katherine Edith Haxton to have placed on the preferred calendar an action she has begun against Thomas C. Buck, a member of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, to recover $993 for the support of her child.

MALONEY MARRIAGE ANNULLED BY COURT

Which Decides That There Was No Marriage and Orders the Papers Sealed.

LEGAL GROUND UNDISCLOSED

Lawyer for Miss Maloney's Father Now Announces That She Was Not Married to Clarkson, Either.

Supreme Court Justice McCall signed yesterday an interlocutory decree annulling the marriage of Miss Helen Maloney, the daughter of Martin Maloney of Philadelphia, to Arthur H. Osborne, the young stock broker. The case was tried before Daniel F. Cohalan, as referee, and it was on his recommendation that Justice McCall signed the decree. It will be three months before the decree can be made final.

After reciting the fact that the referee's report was filed on April 30 last, Justice McCall decrees:

> That there has never been any marriage between the plaintiff and the defendant, and that the plaintiff was never legally married to the defendant.
>
> That the purported marriage described in the complaint herein between the plaintiff and the defendant is null, void, and of no effect, and that it be accordingly annulled. It is further
>
> Ordered, adjudged, and decreed that this judgment is interlocutory only, and that final judgment shall not be entered in this action until after the expiration of three months after the filing of the report of said referee herein and this judgment, and after the expiration of said period of three months final judgment shall be entered upon said report and this judgment unless the court in the meantime shall otherwise order; and it is further
>
> Ordered, adjudged, and decreed that no costs be awarded to either party herein.

The pleadings in the case, the testimony taken before the referee, and the latter's report were inclosed in a large wrapper, which was sealed. There was no formal order of the court sealing the papers, but the only document open to inspection was Justice McCall's decree.

The ceremony which Justice McCall finds was no marriage was performed by Justice of the Peace Boyd at Mamaroneck on Dec. 28, 1905. Miss Maloney gave her name as Helen Eugenie, 21 years old, of Pittsburg. She said that her father's name was John Eugenie and her mother's Mary Bryce. Osborne said he was Herbert Ogden of Pittsburg, 22 years old, and gave L. M. Ogden as his father's name and his mother's as C. L. James. The witnesses were Miss Marian Graham and Mrs. E. H. Boyd, wife of Justice Boyd.

Miss Maloney and Osborne kept the matter secret until last October, when Miss Maloney went to Europe with Samuel Clarkson, a young Englishman. Before sailing for Europe they went to Canada, where, it was said, they went through a form of marriage.

There has been much discussion pending Justice McCall's decision, especially among lawyers in the County Court House, as to the ground on which the marriage of Miss Maloney and Osborne could be legally annulled. These are very few, and in face of Justice Boyd's clear memory of the ceremony he performed, there were many who did not hesitate to express the opinion that an action for annullment could not possibly succeed.

Justice McCall, acting on the recommendation of Referee Cohalan, decides that the ceremony performed by Justice Boyd did not constitute a marriage; on what grounds is not known, as the testimony taken before the referee remains sealed. The Maloney family are prominent Roman Catholics. Mr. Maloney was made a papal marquis for his beneficence some time ago, and it has been said that the annulment suit was decided on to allow Miss Maloney to wed Clarkson without violating the tenets of the Catholic Church.

At the time the referee filed his report Justice McCall said that he would have the papers in the case sealed, if he deemed it advisable in the public interest. The Appellate Division decided some time ago that this can be done, and evidently from the manner in which all the papers, with the exception of the decree, were sealed yesterday, the court exercised its discretion against publicity.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—Following the announcement that the marriage of Miss Helen Maloney and Arthur H. Osborne had been annulled in New York, it was said to-night by Henry A. Smith, representing Martin Maloney, that there had also been no marriage to Samuel Clarkson, the young Englishman with whom Miss Maloney went away in October last year.

Further than to say that Martin Maloney took the attitude that his daughter Helen is now a single woman, Mr. Smith refused to discuss the tangle. He said that legal proceedings had decreed that Miss Maloney had not been legally married to Osborne. Following that decision, he said, he was authorized to state that Miss Maloney was not the wife of Clarkson, although it had been declared that the couple were wedded in Montreal, after which they traveled together in England.

THE DELUSIONS OF MR. BRYAN.

Mr. BRYAN's assertion that the trusts have been fighting him in Pennsylvania and Alabama will nowhere excite so much mirth as among those predatory corporations. In Alabama, Mr. BRYAN says, his friends "had the Steel Trust to fight, and in Pennsylvania they had not only the Steel Trust but several other trusts." The truth is that the trusts are praying for the nomination of Mr. BRYAN. In 1896 the silver mining interests, it is asserted, contributed $288,000 to bring about the election of Mr. BRYAN. The trusts to-day do not want Mr. BRYAN elected, but they want him nominated, because they are entirely satisfied with Mr. TAFT, and they know BRYAN is the weakest candidate the Democrats can name. After seven years of the volubility and turmoil of a Roosevelt Administration a Taft Administration will come like the poultice of silence that heals the blows of sound. The trusts and the corporations know that Mr. TAFT is a just man, a man of balance and sanity, violent neither in speech nor in act. He will not betray the interests of the people, they know very well. On the other hand, he will not devote his days and nights to devising enginery of assault upon corporate property. His nomination being now practically assured, and his candidacy being entirely satisfactory to them, nothing would suit them better than a campaign by the Democrats under the perfectly hopeless leadership of the doomed Nebraskan. That any of the trusts have contributed money for the procuring of Bryan delegates we should doubt, though probably trust money could have been secured for that purpose under adequate guarantees of secrecy. But that any trust has sought to prevent Mr. BRYAN from getting all the delegates he wants is preposterous.

The other delusion of Mr. BRYAN that he will be a strong candidate would have been cured long ago if he had been sufficiently reasonable, open-minded, and unselfish to heed, as he should have heeded, the innumerable evidences that his candidacy is unacceptable. He was baffled in the attempt to secure instructed delegates from Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, and New York. That shows how he stands with the Democrats of the East. He failed yesterday in Pennsylvania, not because trust money was used against him, but because the leaders of the party in that State know his weakness. He would have failed in Illinois but for the exigencies of a fight for the control of the State machine. The leading Democratic newspapers of the South, almost without exception, have opposed his nomination. Senators and Representatives from Southern States have not concealed their conviction that another candidate should be named.

Even his success in Alabama gives him no cause of rejoicing. It is, indeed, remarkable that in so short a time, and with so little organized effort, something like 40 per cent. of the votes cast in the primaries of that State were cast for JOHNSON. In Montgomery and Mobile Counties BRYAN was beaten. His strength lies in the rural and farming counties, where there is less interchange of opinion, and where the ideas of 1896 and 1900 still prevail. In the cities, where there is greater political enlightenment, where men's minds are open to new ideas, sentiment was against him. He will, of course, if nominated, have the Electoral vote of Alabama, but if in that unchangeably Democratic community there is so much opposition to his candidacy, what will happen to him in doubtful States further north? He has no chance whatever of carrying New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, or West Virginia. It cannot be said that he is certain of all of the four States of Colorado, Idaho, Montana, and Nevada, which he carried in both his previous campaigns. What is the outlook for Mr. BRYAN in Kentucky, which was carried by MCKINLEY in 1896, and which, although it gave BRYAN a plurality of 7,975 in 1900, went Republican by 18,000 plurality last Fall?

The transfer of former Democratic States to the Republican column is the bitter fruit of Bryanism. These fruits are still ripening all over the land. For it is not merely a matter of opinion but a matter of proof that the Democrats distrust him, and are tired of him, He has not gained, but lost, since his last campaign of disaster and defeat. At this moment, when his friends are insisting that his nomination is assured, States are refusing to instruct their delegates to vote for him at Denver, and when instructions are secured it is only after prolonged struggle against determined opposition. Never before in its history has the Democracy been in such a situation, a situation which a candidate unacceptable, undesired, and certain to be defeated is forced upon it by organized, unremitting, and long-continued effort against the counsels of its wisest men.

MINE WASTE.

According to statistics quoted by Congressman COOPER, the fatality in Pennsylvania's mines rose from 611 in 1898 to 1,514 in 1908. Operators in States having laws that safeguard the lives of miners disregard them on the plea that otherwise they would be at a disadvantage as compared with competitors in other States.

Accepting the fact that men will thus deliberately put human life in the balance of profit and loss, the argument of the operators is defective. Since 1889 the mines of this country have killed 26,340 men, and in 1907 the annual increase of deaths was 60 per cent. The rate is about 3.4 per 1,000 men, but in European mines, where the natural conditions are more hazardous, 1 in 1,000. The operators of Europe are doing away with supporting pillars of coal, which do not prevent falling roof rock, "squeezes," "creeps," and "crushes," that cause a waste of 10 to 50 per cent. of coal in the Pennsylvania mines. The European miners, moreover, are taught to handle explosives under varying conditions of gases and dust, so as not only to avoid loss of life, but waste of material through uncontrolled explosions. And the European operators have not the Pennsylvania habit of rifling rich low-lying veins. From these galleries deadly gases rise to the higher seams, where fatal explosions and breakdowns cause immeasurable waste.

Investigation has conclusively shown that in almost every instance loss of life among the miners means loss of coal and of dollars to the operator.

APPLES AND COTTON.

The inquiry preliminary to reforming the cotton trade by the simple process of abolishing or purifying the local Exchange is now proceeding to the accompaniment of much agitation by the members. Such of them as have been summoned as witnesses have been asked to produce their books, and they seem to think that their books are their own property. Perhaps the public bearing of this private information will be developed later on, when opinions may be warranted regarding the propriety or otherwise of such fishing excursions. Assuming that the inquiry is warranted, and that a state of affairs is established sufficiently shocking to warrant abolishing the Exchange as beyond reformation, it would be premature to assume that the evils of speculating in cotton would be remedied.

For the fact is that speculation is merely made orderly by being done through Exchanges. They establish a standard of trade opinion and morality which is not perfect, it is true, but which, nevertheless, with all its faults, punishes and prevents many evils that would evade the verdict of a jury. Without such standards speculation becomes even more dangerous, as is proved by the present state of the apple trade. It is in collapse, with embarrassments upon a scale important to the persons concerned, and yet there is no Apple Exchange, nor any such customs as are now being investigated by the Federal Government, and forbidden by legislation in several Southern States. When the Baldwins were budding those taking sanguine views of the relations of supply and demand bought two millions of barrels, and hoisted the price to an average of $3 per barrel, with $4 for fancy lots. Now this accumulated stock is being worked off at $2, more or less. Demand is shrinking, arrivals are plentiful, and the new crop is becoming ever an increasing factor of depression. According to The Produce News every trader who bought so hopefully when stocking up has lost money. But there is no possible hope of reforming the apple trade by reforming the Apple Exchange. Indeed, it is possible to contend that if there had been an Apple Exchange, organized like the Cotton Exchange, the misfortunes of the trade might have been smaller—which is only another way of saying that the abolition of the Cotton Exchange might aggravate the evils it is designed to cure, or produce others even worse.

The root evil is the difference of opinions regarding future events. No man whose views have turned out correctly is aware of any abuses whose reform cannot await a convenient season. When Mr. SULLY was talking twenty-cent cotton, and educating the country to the economic value of a dear staple, there was no campaign to reform the Cotton Exchanges. This reform movement springs from the collapse of the farmers' "holding" movement. Southern banks are loaded with cotton which might have been sold at 12 cents, and whose owners are now plowing up their new planted crop in order to make the old crop more valuable, and enable them to pay their bank loans. This is no argument against reforming the cotton trade in any desirable manner, but it is impossible to make men think alike by statute, or to prevent those having correct judgments from reaping their reward. Men will differ, and the far-sighted will profit, whether or not the Exchanges exist or are reformed.

UNREASONABLE DEMANDS.

Mr. MATTHEW O'BRIEN, who calls himself "Congressional representative of the National Prohibition Committee," and seems to be a sort of press agent of the anti-liquor folks, is an unreasonable man. He complains that, after a month's hard work, he has been unable to make the President commit himself on these questions:

> If it was righteous for the Federal Government to go into partnership with the saloon keeper and collect revenue from a business that is debauching citizens.
>
> If it was righteous for the Federal Government to issue licenses for persons to engage in the sale of liquor in violation of State laws.
>
> If it was righteous for the Government to allow the sale of intoxicating liquors upon property owned and controlled by it.
>
> If it was righteous for the Federal Government to assist violators of State laws by refusing to use its power to regulate inter-State commerce so that the States could control their own internal revenue policy in reference to the sale of intoxicants.
>
> If it was righteous for the Federal Government to permit the sale of whisky in the capital of the country, controlled by it.
>
> If it was righteous to prevent the submission of a proposition for a prohibition constitutional amendment to the Legislatures of the several States.

The President, in common with every politician of his party, and every other politician throughout the country, is perfectly willing to lend a large share of his sympathy to the prohibition movement, or any other reform movement. But to ask either a Chief Magistrate or a party leader to commit himself on that sheaf of propositions on the very eve of an election is preposterous.

Mr. O'BRIEN has unwittingly placed himself in the position of a gentleman of his own race, who, lying on his deathbed, was questioned by his inconsolable prospective widow. "Poor Mike," said she, "is there annythin' that wud make ye comfortable? Annythin' ye ask for I'll get for ye."

"Plase, Bridget," he responded, "I t'ink I'd like a wee taste of the ham I smell a-boilin' in the kitchen."

"Arrah, go on," responded Bridget. "Divil a bit of that ham ye'll get. 'Tis for the wake."

BETTING ON THE WEATHER.

Chicago's "handbook king and former gambler" is wedded to his wickedness. Instead of reforming, or even continuing in his former evil practices in betting on the ponies, he has wagered $10,000 on the weather, of all things. Nor is he reduced to such desperate devices to interest himself in life by the Illinois law against betting on the races, for, so far as is known here, the New York wave of reform has not extended to the West.

Everybody is interested in JIM O'LEARY's bet, not only because everybody is interested in the weather, but because almost everybody is interested in betting. In fact, almost everybody bets—although they may not be aware of it, or may be so well aware of it that they call it something else. Many have outstanding wagers largely exceeding the Chicago gambler's, although they are, or may think that they are, shocked at reading that "JIM" has $10,000 at stake on whether or not it rains on a majority of days of the current month, it having already rained thirteen. The dealers in straw hats, for instance, may perhaps have their solvency depend upon whether or not the May rains permit them to sell enough of their stock to meet their maturities. Clearly their risk is the same as "JIM's," and the same is true of every tradesman whose trade depends upon the temper of the skies.

In the last analysis where "JIM" has dollars at stake the country has millions, or billions, for the crops depend upon the weather, and the stock market depends upon the crops.

Congressman LILLEY thinks that the report of the House committee charging him with misrepresentation, bad faith, and other things, reflects on his "personal honor." It does look that way. Also, he is "pained." He ought to be. But what is he going to do about it? What is the House going to do about the case of Mr. LILLEY? Nothing would so become him as an immediate resignation.

Gov. HUGHES has signed the bill introduced by Assemblyman WAINWRIGHT extending State aid to trade schools under certain conditions. The schools are to be under the charge of an advisory board representing local industries, must be open for forty weeks in the year, and have at least 25 pupils, in which case each will receive $500 a year, with $200 for every additional teacher employed. This seems like a modest step in a right direction.

According to a dispatch from Tokio on Monday, a celebration was held at Chemulpo on Sunday of the opening of that port to foreign trade, at which Prince ITO made a very friendly speech. The American Consul, Mr. SAMMONS, said:

> The American interests in Korea were larger than those of any other foreign nation, especially in mining and missionary work. Experience had proved that the talk of a closed door in Korea was unfounded. Americans and others, he said, who sought to trade by means of active competition and intelligent business methods would not fail to find an open door in Korea.

The speech is the first piece of official testimony as to the treatment of this question in Korea. It is worth noting.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Good Advice Did Not Result Well. Yesterday's bomb outrage on East Eleventh Street differs from most others of its kind in that in this case the advice so often given to the reputable Italians—to defy the Black Hand blackmailers and trust to the police for protection—had been exactly followed by at least some occupants of the house, and yet they find their property destroyed and count themselves lucky to have escaped with their lives.

It is reported that the two brothers who own the building were formerly content to pay the price of peace and safety, after the manner of so many of their class, and that it was at the persuasion of their tenant, Dr. CACCINI, who himself set the example, that they took to the police the threatening letters recently received and did all they could to bring about the identification and apprehension of the writers of them. Of course, the fact that their building is now little better than a wreck is very far from proving that the course followed in this case was either wrong or unwise, but it will not encourage other Italians to resist the Mano Nera, for the event shows that for the present, at least, resistance is dangerous and the police not always able to give protection.

It is expecting much to expect a man with his all invested in a building or business to take the chances these men took. Yet that is exactly what must be done if the Black Hand is to be conquered and suppressed. As long as there are people, and a good many people, who are willing to pay blackmail, the business of collecting it will go on, and, naturally, if nobody would pay, whatever the threats made against him, it would speedily come to an end. For bombs are exploded much less as a punishment than for their moral effect on other selected victims of the brigands. What is needed, obviously, are some martyrs in a good cause—men who will tempt grave perils for the sake of ending, in time, what has come to be an almost intolerable evil.

Incidentally, is it not possible for the police and other authorities to see to it that explosives get into only proper hands for legitimate use? Probably every bit of dynamite used in wrecking tenement houses is stolen from the stores of contractors doing excavation work in and about the city. If a strict account of every cartridge were kept, and if every unexplained disappearance of one of them were made the subject of a prompt and rigid investigation, the bomb industry would be apt to languish for lack of supplies.

A Letter Out of the Common. When a man who has determined upon committing murder and suicide sits down to write a letter to be read after his death, his attempt at explanation and exculpation usually has a certain tragical pathos and at least makes comprehensible the emotions and logic underlying the contemplated crime. This is almost or quite lacking from the statement addressed by young STERRY "to whom it may concern." That his mind was disordered to the extent of what an alienist would call irresponsibility is plain enough from what he wrote, and yet there was a curious coolness and coherency about the document, little characteristic of the productions of madmen.

The traits displayed were chiefly those of exaggerated self-consciousness. Though nominally in a frenzy of indignation at the thought of disrespect to the memory of his dead mother, STERRY had thoughts to give to the possibility of grammatical errors due to his excitement—errors, by the way, which he did not make—and as he came downtown on the train his attention seems to have been fixed less upon what he was going to do than upon the way his fellow-passengers would have stared at him if they had known his desperate purpose. Even at such a moment, too, he could write with levity, with a humor not at all grim, about the effect which the news soon to be supplied to the papers would produce upon the object of his aversion.

It was, taken all in all, a strangely trivial letter, altogether lacking in the dignity which strong emotion, no matter how mistaken or insane, usually produces. More of repugnance than of horror is excited by it. The mental attitude revealed was not that of implacable and effectual determination, and yet the murder and suicide were firmly carried out, apparently without a moment of hesitation or the tremor of a nerve, and about the only convincing evidence of madness in the affair is the inadequacy of motive. For, though nothing is more likely to cause what is known as "trouble" in a family than for its aged—and wealthy—head to announce his approaching marriage to his grown-up children, bloodshed is not the form which antagonism to the plan is likely to take.

Sad Fate of a Setter. It is a long time since we have had to print a dog story as affecting as that which came from Richmond and told, yesterday, how a setter that had rescued a little child from a creek, left it at the edge of the water and ran home to summon aid, only to be cruelly misunderstood when he tried to pull the child's mother the way he wanted her to go. His excited actions were taken to be the symptoms of rabies, and the father of the child, hearing his wife's cries, hurried up and clubbed the dog away from her. Even then the faithful creature did not cease his efforts and at last he was followed to the creek. Then he crept away to the woods and died of a fractured skull!

One hopes that the case was not quite as bad as this, and there is foundation for the hope in the fact that the details of dog stories of this sort will rarely bear investigation. They usually have a foundation of truth, of course, but the impulse to embroider them in the interests of art and sentimentality is very strong. Setters are common in the South, and the people there are not wont to make such terrible mistakes when one of them says anything in setter language, which has been, perhaps, more carefully studied than any other canine tongue—as it deserves to be, since it is the most expressive and eloquent of them all.

"Killed" Again.

From The New York Herald, May 18.
* * * The day of the one-cent newspaper is past.

CLINTON BURIAL PROGRAMME.

Civic, Military, and Naval Honors to be Paid to Body on Its Arrival.

Arrangements are now practically complete for the honors to be paid to the body of George Clinton, the first Governor of the State. The revenue cutter Mohawk will land the body at Pier A at 9:15 on Thursday morning of next week. As the cutter crosses the river from Jersey City minute guns will be fired by the naval militia gunboat Wasp, and the guns of Governors Island will take up the salute as the body is carried to the City Hall.

The parade will leave the pier at 9:30. It will be headed by a platoon of mounted police, behind whom will march the United States Military Band. Major Gen. Grant, accompanied by his aids, will lead the regular troops. These will consist of a battalion of artillery from Forts Wadsworth and Tompkins. Gov. Hughes has also ordered a troop of cavalry to take part in the ceremony.

The Marine Band will head the naval section of the parade, and will be followed by a battalion of marines from the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Then will come the Naval Band, leading the sailors from the battleship New Hampshire.

The coffin containing the body will be drawn on a gun carriage and will be draped with a United States flag. The sword carried by Clinton in the Revolutionary army will be placed on the bier. Behind the coffin will march the Mayor and city officials, the Board of Aldermen, the Mayor's Committee of Seventy-five appointed to arrange for the ceremony, and descendants of the Governor. All will wear high hats and black coats. Then will come the band of the Old Guard, the Old Guard, and the Veteran Corps of Artillery. The rear will be brought up by patriotic societies, such as the Sons of the Revolution, the Society of the Cincinnati, and the Society of Founders and Patriots.

The route of the procession will be from Pier A to Bridge Street, passing Fraunces's Tavern, where Clinton entertained George Washington, up Broad Street to Wall. Thence the parade will swing into Broadway, and will pass St. Paul's Church, where the Governor used to worship, to the City Hall.

The front of the Hall will be draped in black, and the National, State, and municipal flags will be hung at half-mast. Citizens displaying flags will be asked by the Mayor to lower them to half-mast during the time the body is in the city.

There will be no speeches, but the coffin will lie in state in the Governor's Room with the guard of honor in attendance. At 4 o'clock it will be removed and placed on board the State Militia gunboat Wasp, which by Gov. Hughes's orders will conduct it up the Hudson to Kingston. On its way it will be escorted by a flotilla of torpedo boats, and a salute of minute guns will be fired.

BANK'S SEVENTY-FIFTH YEAR.

Greenwich Savings, Founded in 1833, Reports Deposits Now of $61,000,000.

The President of the Greenwich Savings Bank, in connection with the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the bank, which has just been reached, has submitted to the Trustees of the institution an outline of the operations of the bank since its organization in May, 1833. A highly interesting contrast between the values then prevailing for real estate in this city and the compensation paid for services in those days with the prices and wages prevailing to-day, is presented in the President's summary of the bank's activities.

The Greenwich Bank, after leaving its first quarters, at 10 Carmine Street, which were leased at an annual rental of $125, had several buildings of its own, which were increased in size as the deposits of the bank gradually increased from $18,000 at the end of the first week to $10,000,000 in 1874. To-day the bank's deposits amount to $61,750,000, and it has a surplus of $4,000,000.

In 1839 the bank purchased and renovated the building at 11 Sixth Avenue. Its entire cost was $6,940. Seven years later the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Fourth Street was purchased for $20,000, and in 1853 the southwest corner of Waverley Place and Sixth Avenue was purchased by the bank for $22,500, and a building put up on the site costing $79,000. The bank moved into its present building, at the southeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Sixteenth Street, in 1892.

It was more than a year after the bank was opened that any salaried services were needed. Up to August, 1834, the Trustees managed the bank themselves. In that month an accountant was hired at $500 a year, a teller at $200, and a janitor at $100.

The bank has passed through several severe panics, beginning in 1837, but even in that year the bank paid its regular interest to its depositors.

THE CROP OF TREES.

The Only Crop That Would Be Taxed More Than Once.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read the letter of Mr. A. C. Pleydell in your paper criticising the bill passed this Winter by the Legislature and now in the Governor's hands enacted for the purpose of encouraging the growing of timber, &c., by lowering the rate of assessment on all land devoted to such purpose. He criticises the provision that holds down the assessment below its intrinsic value. This, of course, is what the bill seeks to do, to prevent a recurrence of taxation that practically confiscates the crop. Every other kind of crop is taxed once. A crop of trees when matured has been taxed forty or fifty times.

The other criticisms of your correspondent do not seem to me to disclose any serious defects in the bill, although if there be any they are such as the Department of Forestry is entirely able to deal with, and experience will certainly demonstrate what modifications should be made. Meanwhile the department can go ahead with the work. The bill has avoided all constitutional difficulties, and has been widely approved by the farmers of the State. Nor do I see any reason why land worth even $50 an acre should not enjoy the benefits of the bill, since woodlands are needed in every section of the country. As for the abuses which Mr. Pleydell declares will occur, I think there are sufficient restrictions in the bill to prevent them, and certainly holding land on which trees are growing, even when near a village, is in the nature of investment rather than speculation. Moreover, all registrations of such land are openly published, and it seems only reasonable that under a representative form of government we should have some confidence in our officials. In my estimation it is a very valuable feature of the bill that the husbandry of our private woodlands is brought under the expert advice and assistance of the State Forestry Department. If the State grants the exemption from taxes it should have some supervision in the matter—at least until forestry is more generally understood throughout the country.

Finally, getting this bill passed was a piece of good fortune on account of its novelty, and it would be a pity if it failed at the last moment. Such unusually favorable conditions may not occur again in years.

PROTECTION.

Who hath self-love in this benighted age
May count his assets over any man's
Who weaves into life's unambitious plans
The "Golden Rule"—his stupid heritage.
To "love your neighbor" in this present stage
Of money merit is to bid adieu
To luck, ambition, and eschew
The path of peace at fifty's shaded page.
To love yourself is wisdom—common sense—
For in so loving you avoid the track
Paved by swift feet, that runs to penitence,
The hobo, suicide, and maniac.
He who insists on doing as others should
Will soon be done, and so to speak—done good.

CLERGY IN LIVELY SESSION.

Sharp Discussions Mark the Long Island Episcopal Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

GARDEN CITY, L. I., May 20.—Lively tilts between clergymen and laymen varied the second day's programme of the Forty-second Annual Convention of the Diocese of Long Island in the Cathedral, Bishop Burgess presiding.

The first contest came when Dr. James Clarence Jones of St. Mary's Church, Brooklyn, of the Social Service Committee, presented a resolution at the end of a report dealing with work done by the committee to promote youthful morality. The resolution called for a special committee of two clergymen and two laymen to investigate reports concerning the lack of proper institutions for the intelligent treatment of delinquent girls under 16 years of age, referred to the Bishop of the Diocese by the Brooklyn Society of the Prevention of Cruelty to Children on April 21.

The resolution was finally adopted, but not until after a strong protest had been made by Col. William S. Cogswell of Jamaica.

Interest was afforded in the afternoon by a letter from the Federation of Labor to the convention asking for its support on the labor question. The Rev. J. Howard Mellish made a stirring speech, in which he noted that for the first time in the history of the country a clerical convention had received a letter from a labor federation asking its help. He signified the importance of this, and asserted that the Church could not take sides either with capital or labor, but must act as a mediator.

Asa Bird Gardiner, former District Attorney of New York, made a motion that the letter be placed on file. He was voted down. Dr. Jones made a motion that the Social Service Committee take up the question, and carried his point.

DEFENDS THE OPEN PULPIT.

Bishop Lawrence Speaks Before the Massachusetts Convention.

BOSTON, May 20.—Canon 19, the so-called "open pulpit" law which is causing unrest in the Episcopal Church, was upheld by Bishop William Lawrence of Massachusetts in his annual address before the Diocesan Convention at Trinity Church to-day.

An unsuccessful attempt was made by the Rev. William H. Van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent, Boston, to have the canon discussed on the floor of the convention, but his motion was laid on the table by a close vote.

In his address Bishop Lawrence said: "I believe that it is to the edification of our people that there should be such opportunities as the canon offers, and I believe that, so far as our people give any consideration to the subject at all, a great majority of them welcome the thought that now and again we should have the inspiration or information which may come from some Christian men, who are also God's prophets or leaders in Christian, social, ethical, or spiritual movements."

The convention authorized a commission to confer with other denominations regarding the advisability of calling upon the public school authorities of the State to teach the Ten Commandments in the schools and provide for the instruction of the school children in matters affecting morality.

TO CONSECRATE NEW CHAPEL.

Ceremony To-day at the Novitiate of the Redemptorist Order at Esopus.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., May 20.—A number of distinguished prelates of the Roman Catholic Church and about 3,000 persons will be present at the dedication of the House of Study and the consecration of the chapel of Mount Saint Alfonsus, the new $2,000,000 Novitiate of the Redemptorist Fathers at Esopus to-morrow. Archbishop Farley will dedicate the building and consecrate its chapel.

The six-story granite seminary fronts 450 feet on the river and is 250 feet deep. It contains 150 living rooms, a library of 20,000 volumes with space for as many more, and a chapel with eleven altars.

DECRY PARESIS GERM THEORY

"Nonsense," Says One Eminent Pathologist—No Experiments Here.

Local pathologists and neurologists received yesterday with some skepticism the announcement made by Dr. John D. O'Brien of the Ohio State Hospital, at Massillon, that paresis is a germ disease and that he has discovered a cure for it.

One of the most eminent pathologists in the country in conversation with a TIMES reporter declared that the statements of Dr. O'Brien were "nonsense." "Why," said he, "it is no more possible to cure general paresis than it is to grow a new hand on a man's arm after it has been cut off."

None of the authorities on neurology interviewed put much confidence in the declaration that paresis has an infectious bacillus. A few scoffed outright at the idea, and others, although not so emphatic in their opinions, seemed to put little faith in Dr. O'Brien's discoveries.

"To my mind," said the pathologist already quoted, "The only basis for a contention that general paresis is a germ disease must be founded on the idea that it follows another noxious disease, and all authorities do not agree even on this. General paresis is purely an organic degenerate development, with attendant definite organic changes in the brain. Naturally it is as sensible to say that these changes can be cured as to say that a severed member can be grown anew."

"I would not for a moment wish to discourage any man working along this line," said Dr. Edward D. Fisher, another pathologist, "but I feel certain that if such momentous matters as the discovery of a paresis germ and an attendant cure for the disease has been made, the announcement would not have come in this manner. I never heard before of Dr. O'Brien or the society before which he read the paper in which he told of his discoveries. It is my opinion that the whole thing is premature. Moreover the published accounts of Dr. O'Brien's treatment of the cases he is said to have cured are inadequate. In our so-called antitoxin treatments we do not cure the disease with more of the disease. We do not inject diphtheria into a diphtheria patient. We add to the energy of nature in throwing off the malady. And then, even if such a thing as a paresis germ had been discovered, it is another thing to find the cure for the disease. We have found the tuberculosis germ, but we are not yet able to cure the disease by any injection we have tried."

No experiments toward finding a paresis germ have been undertaken in the pathological laboratories here. There has even been no consideration of any such line of investigation at the Rockefeller Institute.

METHODISTS VOTING FOR EIGHT BISHOPS

Rev. Dr. Anderson of New York and J. L. Nuelsen of Ohio Probably Elected.

CHOSEN ON SECOND BALLOT

Statement of Vote Will Be Made to Conference To-day—W. A. Quaile of Chicago Was Strong on First Ballot.

BALTIMORE, May 20.—The Methodist General Conference began to-day the election of eight new Bishops. Two ballots were taken. The first ballot was not effective, but it is understood that on the second ballot the Rev. Dr. William F. Anderson of New York and the Rev. J. L. Nuelsen, a professor in the German Wallace College of Berea, Ohio, were elected. The number of votes the successful candidates received on the second ballot could not be ascertained to-night.

The instructions to those handling the ballots were that everything connected with the result was to be kept secret until announced in the convention tomorrow morning, but friends of Dr. Addison and Mr. Nuelsen say it is absolutely certain they have been elected.

In the first ballot 770 votes were cast and 514 were necessary to a choice. The Rev. Dr. Anderson headed the list with 446 votes, the Rev. J. L. Nuelson was second with 445, the Rev. William A. Quayle of Chicago third, 319; the Rev. E. H. Hughes, President of De Pauw University, fourth, 271; the Rev. Dr. R. J. Cooke of Tennessee, book editor of the Church, fifth, 260; the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Jennings, manager of the Western Book Concern, sixth, 256; the Rev. C. W. Smith, seventh, 251; the Rev. W. S. Lewis, eighth, 248; the Rev. M. C. B. Mason (colored) ninth, 237.

Other candidates were supported as follows: Dr. David G. Downey of New York East Conference, Secretary of the Board of Education, Freedmen's Aid and Sunday Schools, 230 votes; Dr. Joseph B. Hingely of Minneapolis, Secretary of the General Conference, 217; Dr. Daniel Dorchester of Pittsburg, 201; Dr. C. L. Goodell of New York, 194; Dr. Robert McIntyre of Los Angeles, 179; Dr. F. D. Bovard, editor California Christian Advocate, 164; Dr. William H. Crawford, Meadville, Penn., 157; Dr. C. B. Mitchell, Cleveland, 156, and Dr. George E. Reed, President Dickinson College, 136.

A number of others received over 100 votes each, and a great many figured in the returns with votes numbering under the century mark. Altogether 240 persons were voted for.

The report of the Committee on Education recommending the separation of the Board of Education, Freedmen's Aid, and Sunday Schools into three distinct bodies, was again under consideration to-day. The first item, providing for the division was adopted, leaving the details of the reorganization of the boards to be settled. In dividing the board the conference reversed the action of the last General Conference when the three boards were consolidated.

Bishop John W. Hamilton read a letter from Gov. Hughes of New York expressing the Governor's high appreciation of the action of the General Conference in passing resolutions commending him in his efforts to secure by legislative enactment the abolishment of race track gambling in that State.

A report was received from the Committee on Federation favoring union with the United Brethren, Evangelical Association, and such other branches of Methodism as are so disposed. The report was adopted without debate. The report also provided for a commission to confer with similar representatives from the different negro Methodist bodies with the view to securing more harmonious coöperation in the cause of religion.

NO APPEAL TO ROCKEFELLER.

Unemployed Consider a Dues System Instead—Notable Absences.

In response to a call by the National Committee for the Relief of the Unemployed, of which J. Eads How of St. Louis is Chairman, a convention for the unemployed was held last night at the Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, to discuss plans for the immediate relief of the idle through the city and State. About 800 men were present. Bread and coffee were distributed in the basement.

Mr. How presided and did most of the speaking. Letters were read from Mayor McClellan, Bishop Potter, President McGowan, William R. Hearst, Gov. Hughes, and Samuel Gompers. The letters were brief, declining the invitation with thanks on the ground of pre-engagements or ill health.

The Rev. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, through whom the committee expected to reach John D. Rockefeller, also sent a letter of regret. The Chairman said that rather than go to Mr. Rockefeller now for aid he believed in starting a dues system of 5 cents a week.

Resolutions were then carried to demand of the Legislature the appropriation of $6,000,000 for improving the condition of the roadways and providing other public work, the unemployed to be given work on these improvements at the regular union rates, and that municipal improvements be also started.

STANDARD OIL SUIT AGAIN.

Federal Inquiry to Go On Here Monday—Railroad Presidents Summoned.

The Government's suit against the Standard Oil Company, which seeks to dissolve the New Jersey corporation on the ground that it is a trust, will be resumed in this city next Monday. Yesterday Judge Holt of the United States Circuit Court ordered subpoenas to be issued for several men of prominence who will appear as witnesses before Special Examiner Franklin Ferriss in Room 722 of the Custom House. Subpoenas were issued yesterday for Frederick D. Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad; Eben B. Thomas, President of the Lehigh Valley Railroad; William C. Brown, Vice President of the New York Central; Edward W. McKenna, T. S. Lloyd, Roswell W. Miller, Louis C. Fritch, Jabel T. Odell, Edward W. Winter, Everett A. Morgan, William E. Johnston, Calvin Skinner, Walter E. Hodges, James F. Walsh, Arthur M. Waitt, and H. W. Passmore. All of these men will be questioned about rate discriminations and rebates.

The taking of testimony in the Government's suit against the Standard Oil began in this city on Sept. 5 last. The Government's special representative was Frank B. Kellogg, who acted as a Special Attorney General. It was shown that the oil company was in the control of a small number of men and had driven nearly every competitor to the wall. It was also brought out that the Standard or its subsidiary companies enjoyed lower rates than its competitors in the transportation of oil. It is understood that the matter of rebates alleged to have been allowed the Standard Oil Company by its railroads will be taken up next week.

THOUGHT JUGGLERS LET A FEW LOOSE

Ideas from an Astral Traveler, an Epilepsy Thought Curist, and Other Forces.

VARIOUS TRICKS OF HEALING

And Remarks at a Medico-Legal Symposium on the Shortcomings of Medicine—A Waiter Affected.

It was not easy to breathe in Suite 116 on the second floor of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last night. The atmosphere was very rarified. The Medico-Legal Society, in joint session with the Psychological Section, was holding a meeting for the especial benefit of psycho-therapeutically inclined people, of whom there seemed to be many.

President Clark Bell sat before a big table, and by his side was Dr. Floyd B. Wilson, head of the Psychological Section itself. Ranged along their sides were Mrs. Vance C. Cheney, who for years has been studying and expounding psycho-therapeutics; Dr. Julia Seton Sears, one of the biggest New Thoughters in town; Mrs. W. R. Dix of Montclair, N. J., who spoke on psycho-therapy from the viewpoint of Mental Science, as it were.

There were also many speakers who did not occupy such prominent places, including, among others, Mme. Vesta la Viesta, who has traveled extensively in the astral spheres, and Prof. Roger Rangtang of India, who told about curing epilepsy by telling the patient to be gone and be cured.

There was a dinner somewhere on the second floor of the hotel, and along toward 9:30 o'clock, when the speakers got down to a good, steady pace, a waiter who happened to stop near the open doors heard this from Dr. Julia Sears:

"The greatest secret of this age is the connection with and the manipulation of the Cosmic Energy, and the next thing in importance is the method by which we relate ourselves to the Cosmic Energy, and through this relationship make or unmake our lives."

"Lord, help us," prayed the waiter, and he crossed himself hurriedly and went on.

Dr. Sears said among other things that every individual is either positive or negative in his relation to the cosmic energy, that all of us are part of the vast sea of energy, and so is our environment; that the physical body is made up of a group of attuned atoms, and inside of that group is another group of finer atoms, these latter atoms moving much faster than the first-named group and being connected with God.

So far as could be gathered from the further talk of Dr. Sears, the main thing in life is to keep the atoms moving. The faster they move, the more magnetic and mesmeric one is, and therefore the better would the magnet fare in this cold valley of life. Further, all diseases are "purely functional," and by operating the mind, which is a sort of switchboard or something like that, the atoms can be made to move faster and chase the disease. But, of course, one has to cultivate control over one's mind.

Mme. Vesta la Viesta, the astral traveler, got only five minutes, but she said that would be sufficient.

"I am a little embarrassed by the presence of doctors here," she went on, smiling sweetly, "because I can tell you how to cure disease in five minutes. Absolutely! Cured in five minutes!

"Disease is a thought-crust over us. We think we have something the matter with us, and we think and think and think, adding layer after layer of disease upon us, and finally we are stifled. What is my remedy? Put on a loose gown. Shut your eyes and shut in your mind: Use only the third eye. Say to yourself:

"'I love God. I love God. I love God. I love God with all my heart and soul and being.'"

Mrs. Vance Cheney said she was convinced that there was just one force doing all the healing of the world, and that was "a sense perceptible force in the body, which can be followed in its countless currents from nerve centre to nerve centre, from organ to organ, and its processes observed, controlled, and directed."

This simple household remedy, she observed, had been effective in hundreds of cases in her experience. She complained that medicine and surgery had failed to prevent sickness and death and to establish the law of longevity.

Mrs. W. R. Dix traced mental science from the beginning of things, telling of its countless victories. Papers were read from exponents of hypnotism, and President Bell announced that the following symposiums were still open:

(a) "Longevity and Its Relation to Usefulness in Old Age."
(b) "Medical Expert Testimony."
(c) "Alcohol as a Diet or Medicine."

MARK TWAIN GIVES THANKS

To the American Booksellers for Helping Him Make a Living.

At the annual dinner of the American Booksellers' Association last evening at the rooms of the Aldine Association Mark Twain, in his usual white flannel suit, told how well his books had sold since they had passed from subscription agents into the hands of the booksellers.

"For thirty-six years my books were sold by subscription," he said. "The books passed into the hands of my present publishers in 1904, and you then became the providers of my diet. I think I may say without flattering you that you have done exceedingly well by me.

"By the terms of my contract my publishers had to account to me for 50,000 volumes per year for five years, and pay me for them whether they sold them or not. It is at this point that you gentlemen come in, for it was your business to unload the 250,000 volumes upon the public in five years if you possibly could. Have you succeeded? Yes, you have—and more. For in four years, with a year still to spare, you have sold the 250,000 volumes and 240,000 besides."

The story teller then said he was building a farmhouse with the proceeds, where he intends to take a vacation for thirty or forty years before completing the five books he is now engaged on.

Other speakers at the dinner were the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Burges Johnson, Will Irwin, Holman Day, and Simon Brentano. About 400 were present.

DINNER OF OLD SUN MEN.

Nearly a Hundred of the Paper's "Alumni" Entertain Two of Its Editors.

The Sun Alumni Association, composed of men formerly employed in the editorial department of The Sun, held its fourth annual dinner at the Hotel Knickerbocker last night. Nearly 100 old Sun men sat at table, made speeches, sang songs, told stories of old times, and otherwise enjoyed themselves.

Guests of honor were E. P. Mitchell, The Sun's editor in chief, and Chester S. Lord, managing editor. Both were lustily cheered and gently compelled to make speeches. Mr. Mitchell told how when he came to New York from Maine to join The Sun staff a third of a century ago, he got a room in French's Hotel which happened to look into the editorial rooms, and from behind the curtain spent half the night watching Dr. Wood, the night editor, relentlessly "excising the bright thoughts of budding talent" in the copy before him, to the accompaniment of a frequent ejectment of tobacco juice. He wondered if Dr. Wood were Charles A. Dana, and thought what an awesome person he was. The diners cheered this reminiscence of long ago.

Among the alumni present were Christopher J. Fitzgerald, President; David Graham Phillips, Justice Willard M. Olmsted, Assistant District Attorney Paul Krotel, Water Commissioner John H. O'Brien, William A. Willis and Frank M. O'Brien, the Mayor's secretaries; "Ed" Mott, who proclaimed himself the father of the American bear story; Willis Holly, Cyrus C. Adams, Franklin Fyles, S. T. Mather, H. J. Forman, Roy Mason, Collin Armstrong, C. M. Fairbanks, Lindsay Denison, John H. Kenny, and other men now well known in the life of the city.

These officers were elected: C. M. Fairbanks, President; Collin Armstrong, Treasurer; John H. Kenny, Secretary.

COUNTESS AFTER DIAMONDS.

The Countess de Montglyon Expects to Recover Them from Customs.

The Countess de Montglyon of Austria, whose jewels were held by the customs officials for examination, appeared at the Custom House yesterday and explained through her lawyer that she had brought the two diamonds with her when she came to America on May 19, 1905, on the Atlantic Transport liner Minneapolis, and they were her personal effects.

She was in need of money, and had tried to raise it on the jewels. Mr. Osborne, counsel to the Collector of the Port, said that the diamonds were worth about $9,000. The Countess will not sell the diamonds now, and she will probably get them back.

MAY ENJOIN A DANCER.

Hammerstein Warned That Trouble Is Coming Over Alexia.

When Alexia, the foreign dancer who is expected to create a sensation on Hammerstein's Roof Garden this Summer, arrives on the Lusitania on Saturday she may find herself confronted with an injunction. William Hammerstein has received a warning from the lawyer representing N. B. Leavitt, a theatrical agent who is now in England, threatening to injoin Alexia from appearing.

Mr. Leavitt declares that he made a contract with Alexia two years ago by which she agreed that he should be her sole agent for America, and that she would appear under no management except through him or by arrangement with him. She made her arrangements with Mr. Hammerstein direct.

Mr. Hammerstein said last night that he was not particularly frightened by the threat of an injunction, and that he thought Alexia would nevertheless appear on the Roof. "This is the dancer's own affair," he said. "If it should be proved that it is necessary to make any arrangement she will certainly be in a position to make it. It does not in any way concern me."

THEATRE STRIKE THREATENED

Jewish Musicians Seek to Exclude Others and All Will Quit if They Don't.

The Jewish members of the Musical Mutual Protective Union have banded together to form the Hebrew Theatrical Musical Club to the exclusion of the non-Hebrew members of the Musical Union, with the result that a strike is threatened already in at least one Yiddish theatre.

The new club declares that it has arranged with the theatre management that none but Hebrews shall be employed as musicians, and an ultimatum was delivered yesterday to the non-Hebrew musicians that they must abandon their places. If they do not do this by Saturday and the management backs them it was threatened last night that the stage hands, actors, dressers, ushers, billposters, and other employes will strike.

One-Act Plays at the Berkeley.

"On the Road," "The Strugglers," and "Inconsistent," one-act plays by Clara Ruge, were produced for the first time last night at the Berkeley Theatre, where a friendly audience applauded the actors and the author. Mrs. Ruge has been a writer on a German newspaper for some time. In the intervals between the plays a musical programme was given.

Sothern Gives an Old Folks Party.

The "old people's party," consisting of men and women who had seen the elder Sothern in the character of Lord Dundreary, was held by E. H. Sothern at the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon. Over 200 couples came to witness the performance of the son of their favorite. After the performance Mr. Sothern received his guests on the stage.

Mme. Padovani in Another Opera Co.

Mme. Adelina Padovani, coloratura soprano of the Knickerbocker Opera Company, which played a season of one night at the Majestic Theatre this week, has been engaged by Manager Abramson to appear with his Italian Grand Opera Company at the American Theatre next week. A tenor and baritone of the defunct organization have also been engaged by Mr. Abramson.

Mr. Kronberg Blames the Critics.

Samuel Kronberg, the impressario whose Knickerbocker Opera Company went under on Tuesday night at the Majestic Theatre, issued a statement yesterday blaming "the unfavorable and unjust criticism of Mme. Padovani in most of Tuesday morning's papers" for the company's discontinuance. He is still more than satisfied, he says, that Mme. Padovani is without a shadow of a doubt one of the greatest leading prima donnas, barring none.

Opera Company Drops Conried's Name

After June 15 the name "Metropolitan Opera Company" will be legalized instead of the present "Conried Metropolitan Opera Company." The change in title has been decreed by Judge Greenbaum of the Supreme Court as a result of a petition filed on the first of May by the corporation.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Anna Held will close her season in "A Parisian Model" on Saturday night and go to Maine for two weeks' rest before leaving for her home in Paris. She will return in time to appear in a new musical comedy at the New York Theatre on Oct. 15.

Mlle. Genee will close here season in "The Soul Kiss" at the New York Theatre on Saturday.

The consignment of ducks, geese, and chickens to inhabit the Old Farm on Hammerstein's Roof Garden arrived from Long Island yesterday. Among the novel features of the "farm" will be an automatic butter churn operated by a treadmill run by a collie.

William Hammerstein has engaged the Kremo Family, famous European acrobats, to open at the Roof Garden on July 6. This will be the first time they have appeared in this country. The company numbers ten and has recently been in St. Petersburg.

The Socialist Theatre Association will give performances all next week at the playhouse in Third Street. Half of the entire proceeds will go to the fund to establish a daily Socialist newspaper.

The first two rows of seats in the first balcony at the Circle Theatre have been eliminated and twelve loges constructed in their place.

CARNEGIE FUND AIDS FAMILY IN NEW YORK

AWARDS TO JERSEY HEROES

One Had a Hard Fight with a Man Who Jumped from a Ferryboat—Children Saved.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, May 20.—The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission to-night announced thirty additional awards for brave deeds performed by men and women throughout the country. New York City and New Jersey appear to have produced some real heroes.

Among the awards is one to Mrs. Mary E. Eaton of 288 Seventh Street, New York, who gets a silver medal and $25 per month for life, also $5 per month for each of her five children until they are 16 years old. William H. Eaton, her husband, a Post Office clerk, lost his life in the East River on Sept. 21, 1907, while rescuing John Shook and John C. Maloney, lads who had gone beyond their depth.

Thomas Mullins of 126 Sussex Street, Jersey City, gets a bronze medal for saving life. Harry B. Teetsel, a jailkeeper, on the night of Sept. 20, 1906, jumped off the ferryboat Newark near the Cortlandt Street slip. Mullins had a hard fight in the water with Teetsel, but saved him.

Minnie E. Davis, widow of George E. Davis of Rockaway, N. J., gets a silver medal and $25 per month for life or as long as she remains single. Her husband lost his life Dec. 26, 1906, trying to save a child named Arki who had broken through ice. Mrs. Davis almost lost her life trying to save her husband.

William P. Vandeventer of 49 Bellevue Avenue, Trenton, gets a bronze medal and $40 per month for life for saving Katherine Faltinger and trying to save Elizabeth Schemper from being run over by a train Oct. 16, 1907. Vandeventer was a conductor, and saw the train backing on the women. He tossed one out of the way, but the Schemper woman fought with him and was killed. He was badly crippled.

Samuel B. Van Hise of Cream Ridge, N.J., gets a bronze medal for saving the life of William E. Cary at Cassville, N. J., Aug. 20, 1906. Cary was caught when a well caved in. Van Hise ran four miles and worked for many hours at the risk of his own life to rescue Cary, whom he had not known. Cary begged Van Hise to save himself, but he would not desist.

Albert E. Flatt of Port Morris, N. J., gets a gold medal for rescuing three boys and trying to save the life of Nathan B. Ayres, who broke through ice Dec. 6, 1905. Flatt found four boys in the water and saved three of them, named John Ayres, Willie Todd, and James Wood.

Mrs. Mary E. Eaton, who lives on the second floor of 288 Seventh Street at Avenue D, was happy last night over the news that she would receive $60 a month for the future, and her seven children would be free from want because of an award of the Carnegie Hero Fund.

"It was on the 21st of last September that my poor husband, William, lost his life at the foot of this street saving the two little boys, Johnny Shack and Jimmie Maloney, in the dinner hour. I am glad to have the money, but it will not give me back the man I lost," Mrs. Eaton said.

The Deaf Business Man May Hear a Whispered Confidence

Deafness handicaps all sufferers, but none more so than the business man. Diplomatic transactions—the "State secrets" of the office, cannot be shouted.

The electric marvel—the "Acousticon," enables the deaf to hear ordinary conversation instantly, permanently, unless the auditory nerve is entirely destroyed. The least conspicuous device ever invented, and the only perfectly satisfactory and successful one.

A small receiver, held comfortably in position, like the telephone earpiece, a neat little "sound gatherer," worn as a part of the dress, and a diminutive battery carried in the pocket comprise the whole—but it restores a lost sense, and places the deaf on an equal footing with those more fortunate who hear.

The "Acousticon" increases sound 400 per cent.

No statement need be taken without proof. Let the deaf come to us and hear, before paying a cent. If unable to call, write us and we will state how the "Acousticon" may be tested without cost before purchasing.

Constant use of the "Acousticon" in very many cases, by renewing the activity of the organs of hearing, removes the cause of the trouble.

On a large scale it is now installed in many of the leading churches, theatres, as well as in the Public Buildings in Washington.

Don't mislay this advertisement—cut it out now, while it is before you, and call or write at your convenience.

Treasurer of Coney Island Jockey Club and Widely Known Turfman.

Gen. John H. Bradford, 64 years old, Treasurer of the Coney Island Jockey Club and one of the best-known horsemen in the country, died yesterday from pneumonia at his home, 279 Lexington Avenue.

Gen. Bradford caught a cold several days ago, and it rapidly developed into pneumonia. He was graduated from Harvard in 1865. He had been a prominent figure in racing, and although he owned no horses he was always to be found at the tracks when the racing was going on. He had thousands of friends, and his judgment or a horse was generally accepted as final.

Gen. Bradford was a member of the Union, Riding, Manhattan, and Turf and Field Clubs. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Elizabeth C. Phipps, daughter of the late Gardiner Phipps of Cincinnati, and one son, John H. Bradford, Jr. He was the personal representative in this country on all turf matters for W. K. Vanderbilt.

Prof. Leslie A. Lee.

PORTLAND, Me., May 20.—Prof. Leslie A. Lee of Bowdoin College, noted for his research expeditions in Labrador and South America, died to-day at the Maine General Hospital, where he was operated upon yesterday for an intestinal trouble. Prof. Lee was born in Woodstock, Vt., in 1852. For seven years, beginning in 1881, he was connected with the United States Fish Commission, in which capacity later he went on an expedition from Washington to San Francisco, making scientific investigations and paying special attention to the waters of Patagonia and the Straits of Magellan. In 1891 he organized and personally conducted the Bowdoin Labrador expedition.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, May 20.—The Giants were shut out to-day by St. Louis, Raymond holding the visitors down to three hits. He had the Indian sign on them from the start to the finish, and the local team supported him in fine style. Up to the eighth inning Seymour was the only Giant to scratch out a hit. Nicklin batted for McGinnity in a determination to stem the tide of almost certain defeat and added the second safe hit. St. Louis managed to get a player over the plate in the third on a two-base hit and a couple of sacrifices, which was the only run scored during the game.

With his characteristic manner Manager McGraw announced before the game that the slump of the Giants was over and that the team would make up for lost time, but the result did not bear out his prognostication, as the visitors were not only defeated by a single run, but were blanked, making their Western record up to date two games won and seven lost, and if this does not complete the discomfiture of the New York's mananger and players they can reflect upon the fact that they are nursing the fifth position in the second division of the championship race.

Raymond was at his best. He dished up one of the most unpalatable articles of baseball pitching that the Giants have run into this season. He had a splendid and varied assortment of curves and shoots and made the opposing batters look like cheap selling platers. In addition Raymond is the pitcher for whom McGraw has been angling. If there was any doubt in the mind of the Giants manager before the game as to the pitching ability of Raymond it was dispelled into thin air before the visitors returned to the clubhouse.

The pitching of "Iron Man" McGinnity would have won any ordinary game, as he kept the seven hits made off him well scattered, and permitted but one St. Louis player to score, but that solitary tally will keep the scrappy manager busy thinking about it until the teams face each other again to-morrow. TRANCE IS FIRST IN BOUQUET STAKES

Fast Filly Cleverly Beats Fitz Herbert for Belmont Park Feature Event.

ROSEBEN WINS HANDICAP

Veteran Sprinter, with High Weight Up, Romps In on a Mudy Track—Two Favorites Successful.

The racing at the Belmont Park course yesterday approached perilously close to the dreary, but there were enlivening incidents and a fair crowd of visitors finished the day satisfied with the sport that settled the question of the dead heat at Jamaica between Trance and Fitz Herbert in favor of the filly, brought back to the winning list the veteran sprinter and former champion Roseben, and produced a mild sensation in the winning of the long-chance horse Masaniello. The weather was gloomy and the track so bad from the rain which continued through the day that the fields were much reduced by scratches, but at that big fields ran for several of the cheaper races.

The feature of the programme was the race for the Bouquet Stakes, five furlongs, for two-year-olds, and this did not lose anything of its interest to the crowd generally, even when it was cut down to a four-horse race. The starters in which popular interest centred were Trance and Fitz Herbert, both owned by professional trainers. Trance and Fitz Herbert ran a dead heat for the Elmhurst Stakes at Jamaica about two weeks ago, and the question of which should have won then has been productive of interminable argument ever since. The weight of opinion, however, was in favor of Trance, and this showed in the betting yesterday, when Trance started the favorite at 5 to 4 on, with Fitz Herbert at 11 to 10, the two others in the race running for the bookmakers.

From the signal for the start the rivals were the leaders, fighting out their old battle, with Trance always the best. The filly was in front, but only a narrow margin at the end of three furlongs, yet carrying Fitz Herbert so fast that he was under the whip in a few more strides in his effort to keep up, and from the moment that he was straightened out Musgrave, on Trance, eased up a bit, and galloped on, content with the half length lead Trance then had. Trance won at the end, still with a little in hand, a half length away from Fitz Herbert, which was ten lengths away from the third horse, Ruble.

Roseben, with a handicap of 140 pounds, was disregarded by the public in the sprint handicap, first on the card, as his earlier races this Spring were far from his old form, but he was backed by his stable at that and started second choice, with Aletheuo the favorite in a field of four runners. The only semblance of a contest was immediately after the start, Roseben drawing out in the early rush, and leading clear of his field through the remainder of the distance and winning in a big gallop by six lengths from Aletheuo, second.

Roseben-Jack Atkin Race Proposed.

Promptly after the running of the first race at Belmont Park yesterday, when Roseben won, D. C. Johnson, owner of Roseben, made a proposition for a special race between Roseben and Barney Schreiber's four-year-old colt Jack Atkin. Jack Atkin's owner is at present in California, and no arrangements could be made in his absence. Johnson, however, formulated general terms for a meeting of the horses, which may possibly be brought about in a special race. The conditions suggested by Johnson were that the horses run at the Sheepshead Bay meeting, in a six-furlong race, with weight for age, which would be 133 pounds on Jack Atkin and 130 on Roseben. Before any further progress is made in the matter, it will be necessary for the Coney Island Jockey Club to offer a prize for such a race.

TALK OF ANOTHER RACE.

Automobile Club of America May Hold One at Savannah.

Reports from Savannah declare that the Automobile Club of America is contemplating the promotion of another international race to be run as a substitute for the Vanderbilt Cup race. They say that S. M. Butler, secretary of the Automobile Club of America, visited Savannah on Friday and Saturday of last week, and while there laid a plan before the Executive Committee of the Savannah Automobile Club proposing such a race. They further declare that the proposition was received with favor, and were ready to offer a trophy to be known as the Savannah Automobile Association Trophy, to be contested for annually, the race to be run over the Savannah course in November.

Circumstantial details are further given that the letters from France declaring the Vanderbilt Cup race could not secure foreign entries on account of the change of conditions and the violation of the agreement reached by the Federation of Recognized Automobile Clubs for international races were shown to the Savannah officials, backed by a declaration that twenty foreign entries could be secured for a race under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America, and that as many American entries would compete. The advices conclude that the Savannah officials expect to hear further from Secretary Butler within a few days.

Neither Mr. Butler nor Mr. Morrell of the Contest Committee of the Automobile Club of America could be seen last night, but it was acknowledged at the club that Secretary Butler had made the trip South and recently returned, and it was said there that a statement in the matter might be secured to-day. The members of the Vanderbilt Cup Commission, however, state that they are assured of a sufficient foreign entry despite the statements of the protest of the Automobile Club of France, and that the conditions of the Vanderbilt Cup race could not be altered if the commission were disposed to alter them. The race will be held as announced, and foreign cars will compete, probably to the number of ten cars. A. R. Pardington supplemented Chairman H. D. Thompson's declaration that there would be no change in the rules. It may be assumed that both gentlemen voiced the sentiments of W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., in the matter.

It is difficult to imagine two international cup races in one year being successfully run on the high-speed basis, especially two races so close together as these would be. The Vanderbilt Cup race would naturally have the advantage of such a conflict by reason of its long-established position and the fact that it is now generally accepted that the race will be held near New York. However, the possibilities of a second race are interesting as indicating how far the rupture between the American Automobile Association and the Automobile Club of America may go next year, when the differences in rules might have weight with foreign manufacturers, who would be compelled to build different cars for the Vanderbilt Cup and Grand Prix races or submit to conditions which allow American manufacturers somewhat greater latitude than the Grand Prix regulations do.

THOMAS CAR GOES ABROAD.

American Contestant in Grand Prix Shipped to France.

When the steamer Adriatic left its pier yesterday it carried the special racing car built by the Thomas Company to compete in the Grand Prix in France, and the four men who will prepare the machine and race it over the Dieppe circuit. The four men in the party were Lewis Strang, who was engaged to drive the car after his victory in the Briarcliff race; Montague Roberts, who had previously been slated to drive the car, and two mechanics in the employ of the Harry S. Houpt Company; Gus Guichard, and William Knlepper. It is undetermined whether or not Guichard or Knlepper will sit in the mechanic's seat for Strang, Marquise, the regular mechanic who was engaged with Strang, having broken with the Thomas Company a few days ago. Roberts will have charge of the preparation of the car on the course.

On the steamer Lucania Harry S. Houpt and his wife and Miss Dorothea McCartney, his niece, sailed for France at the same time. Mr. Houpt will act as manager of the Thomas entrant, and will have full charge of all matters relating to the race. He will go direct to Paris and complete preliminary arrangements for the car at Dieppe. The machine is said to have made ninety-six miles in time trials at Buffalo.

Glidden Pilot in Maine.

Secretary Dal Lewis of the A. A. Touring Board, who is laying out the route of this year's tour in his Premier pathfinder, arrived at Poland Springs yesterday, having run from Boston to Portland on Monday and thence to Poland. He will proceed to Saratoga in the next three days, finishing the 1,700-mile tour.

PHIPPS BOYS POLO VICTORS.

Carry Meadow Brook Teams to the Front at Westchester Club.

With three members of the Phipps family comprising the Meadow Brook second team, the Westbury quartet won the first game in the opening polo tournament yesterday on the Westchester Country Club field. Squadron A was the defeated team, the score being 9 goals to 4¼ for Meadow Brook at the end of the ten six-minute periods. The teams played on even handicaps, the total of each being nine. The victors were superbly mounted, their ponies outclassing those of the squadron in both speed and endurance, while in powerful and accurate hitting the Meadow Brook players had decidedly the best of it in the first part of the match. At the end of the fifth period hey had earned eight gaols, and not until the sixth period did the squadron make its first point, J. H. Hunt scoring.

The troopers then put more snap into their play, McClure and Neilson alternating in long runs with the ball and splendid hitting. Paul Rainey made an admirable back, and shared honors with J. S. and Howard Phipps in fast riding and spectacular hitting.

The winners will play the Westchester team for the Country Club Cups to-morrow in the final game. The line-up:

TRAVIS IS LEADER IN BIG GOLF FIELD

Wins Gold Medal in Metropolitan Championship Event at Baltusrol.

TRAVERS A CLOSE SECOND

Douglas, Whigham, and Macdonald, All Ex-National Title Holders, Are Among the Eligibles.

Walter J. Travis carried off the honors yesterday in the thirty-six-hole qualifying round on the Baltusrol Club links near Short Hills, N. J., which opened the tenth annual metropolitan golf championship tournament. He won the gold medal for the best score of the day, his total for the double round being 159, his halves being 78 and 81 respectively. Travis's score of 78, made in the morning, was the best eighteen-hole record of the day. The next best was 79, made by Fred Herreshoff in the morning, and by Findlay S. Douglas in the afternoon. Travis's card of 78 is:

Out ....5 4 3 5 4 4 6 4 4—39
In ....4 4 4 3 4 6 5 4 5—39—78

Jerome D. Travers, the present local champion, played the best golf that he has done this season on local links. He gave the ex-National champion a hard fight for the gold medal, and finished the day's play only three strokes behind Travis, his score of 162 tying that of John Reid, Jr., the former Yale player, for second place. The big men all showed that they were in fine golfing trim, for Douglas finished fourth with a total of 164.

The tournament, notwithstanding the rain and disagreeable playing conditions, was notable for the large number of starters, seventy-four teeing off, and the high quality of the field. Besides those mentioned, H. J. Whigham and Charles B. Macdonald, both former National champions, qualified among the thirty-two eligibles to continue at match play for the local honor. Whigham, who is now registered from the Garden City Club, played the best game he has done here for some time, qualifying among the leaders at 174. Gilman P. Tiffany, the Hudson River champion, and Frank Reinhart, an ex-intercollegiate champion, got among the eligibles. The championship eligibles and the second cup set are:

HORSE SHOW CUP RETURNED.

William Baisley Gives Up Trophy and Apologizes for Hazel Delmar's Entry.

G. P. Baisley, owner of Hazel Delmar, which was awarded the Cosden Cup at the Horse Show held in connection with the Speedway Parade on May 2, has returned the trophy to Dr. H. D. Gill, Chairman of the Horse Show Committee, and apoligized for the error in the entry of his mare, which made her ineligible for the class. Dr. Gill has accepted the cup and apology and the incident is closed.

The trouble was caused through the entry of Hazel Delmar in the class for three-year-olds and under, whereas the daughter of Delmar-Hazel was four years old and ineligible for the class. Mr. Baisley contended that as Hazel Delmar was born May 28, 1904, she was not four years old until the 28th of this month, although the laws of trotting and running horses state that the ages of all horses reckoned from January of each year. Mr. Baisley, in his letter of apology, disclaims any wrong intention, and says he entered Hazel Delmar as a three-year-old because he thought that was her age, and expressed regret for so doing.

In accordance with the ruling of the Executive Committe of the Road Drivers' Association the cup will be awarded to H. A. Thompson's Amarythus, which was placed second to Hazel Delmar in the show.

One American Left in British Golf.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 20.—Play in the British women's open golf championship contest was resumed to-day. In the third round both the American entrants were successful. Miss Anita Phipps of Springfield, Mass., beat Mrs. Bourn 1 up, and Miss Phelps defeated Mrs. Ames 4 up and 3 to play. In the fourth round Miss Phipps again was victorious, vanquishing Miss Black by 1 up. Miss Phelps, however, lost to Miss Titterton by 5 up and 4 to play. Miss Phipps, therefore, is the sole representative of America left in the contest.

Deep sea fishermen who braved the ominous weather had plenty of sport on the Taurus off Seabright yesterday. It rained during the greater part of the trip, and the water was somewhat rough, but the fishermen forgot their inconveniences in their successful catches. Seabass were plentiful, ranging up to five pounds, and were frequently landed. Here is a sample of some of the prominent catches: H. Moglia, 15 seabass, 10 blackfish; H. Peters, 15 seabass, 15 blackfish; Paul Frey, 18 seabass; John Weston, 17 seabass; F. Zamolia, 14 seabass, 8 blackfish; J. O. Hill, 15 seabass; Emil Kovernick, 8 seabass, 12 blackfish; H. Sudek, 5 seabass, 17 blackfish; F. Zaradil, 5 seabass, 12 blackfish; E. Stephan, 4 blackfish, 1 cod.

Kineo in Moosehead Lake will be the meeting place this year of the Maine Sportsmen's Fish and Game Association, making the thirteenth annual outing of that body.

At the mouth of Coney Island Creek, near the Harway Avenue Bridge, Bridge Tender Billy Courtney says that fish were ravenously hungry yesterday, judging from the many good catches that were made. Fluke were in the majority, but there were numerous tomcods and hake in the collections. Bill Stone, a veteran fisherman of that locality, got twenty fluke and eight tomcods early in the morning, while Dan Stone secured fifteen fluke and three hake.

Seabright, close inshore, was also the anchoring place of the fishing steamboat Angler yesterday. Purser Foster says that while there was plenty of fog and rain, and the water was lumpy, there were many evidences of fish, but only a few were caught. Seabass and blackfish were in the majority, but the best haul reported was nineteen seabass and five blackfish, by William Senswick, an enthusiastic Tenth Avenue angler.

SAYS TOBACCO TRUST IS PUBLIC BENEFIT

Counsel for the Corporation Tells Court It Is Far From a Monopoly.

NO RESTRAINT ON TRADE

He Contends That the Company Was Not Organized to Control the Price of the Product.

The attorneys for the Tobacco Trust began their innings yesterday in the hearing before Judges Ward, Lacombe, Coxe, and Noyes of the United States Circuit Court for the submission of final argument on the Government's suit to have the trust dissolved. The keynote of the defense was sounded by Junius Parker, who asserted that the business of the company, on whatever facts might have been presented was within the law, and the trust asked the Government:

"What are you going to do about it?"

Mr. Parker, as counsel for the company, asserted that the operations of the trust had been to the benefit of the tobacco planter, the manufacturer, and the consumer, and that instead of restraining commerce between the States and with foreign nations the company had actually fostered it. In pursuance of this theory of trust beneficence Mr. Parker unfolded for the court the story of the life of James B. Duke, President of the American Tobacco Company, who began his career as a farmer's boy, and in 1890 was President of a concern capitalized at $250,000, which was put into the trust on the basis of a $7,000,000 capitalization.

"This," said Mr. Parker, referring to the formation of the trust, "was simply the organization of a corporation and the acquisition by it of the properties of five manufacturing concerns. The company was not organized to create a monopoly nor was it ever contemplated that other companies should be purchased. Nor was there any idea of controlling the price of the raw product, for on the contrary the price of leaf tobacco has steadily increased since the formation of the American Tobacco Company."

Mr. Parker said that the trust was moved to branch out into other lines of tobacco manufacture by observing the growth throughout the country of a hostility to paper cigarettes. The acquisition of various plug concerns leading up to the formation of the Continental Tobacco Company in 1898 he attributed to a natural process of drifting that happened to bring the various corporations together. The Continental Company, once formed, according to Mr. Parker, was obliged to go into the licorice business in self-preservation, because it needed the root for its manufacture of plug tobacco, and was afraid of being shut out of its markets.

"Great wealth gives great power," said Mr. Parker, "but there is not a line of evidence here showing that the power of this defendant has been used to the detriment of any one or of any manufacturer. It is beyond the power of this defendant to crush a competitor who has a brand that the public desires. It is beyond the power of this defendant to regulate prices."

Adjournment was taken until 11 o'clock this morning.

CUT IN COTTON GOODS

By Marshall Field & Co. for the South and West—Business Better Here.

Following an official cut in the prices of standard grades of cotton goods, made public yesterday, it became known in the dry goods trade that Marshall Field & Co. had notified their customers on Tuesday of reductions in their quotations for the same grades, amounting in some cases to from ¼ cent to 1¾ cents a yard below the prices quoted by the manufacturers' agents. The cut in prices announced yesterday by the Eastern factors is the second since October.

A representative of Marshall Field & Co. said yesterday that the cuts had been made to their own customers who were principally in the West and South, and that the prices had been fixed independently of the quotations of the manufacturers' agents. The prices quoted yesterday range up to about 35 per cent. less than the prices prevailing last Fall.

Taking three of the standard grades of bleached cotton goods as examples, the cuts have been as follows: Lonsdales, Marshall Field's price, 7½ cents per yard; agents' price, 7¾ cents per yard; price last Fall, 11 cents per yard. "Hopes," 6¾ cents, 7 cents, and 10¼ cents respectively. "Fruit-of-the-loom," a standard grade in which the agents have not yet announced a cut, was reduced by Marshall Field & Co to 7¾ cents. The last price fixed by the agents was 9½ cents.

A representative of the H. B. Claflin Company, the largest distributor of cotton goods in the East, said yesterday that it would not be possible to buy goods from Marshall Field & Co. in any quantity at the prices named. As to their cut in agents' prices, that, he said, had no real significance, as the market had been below the official quotations in some grades for some time.

Marshall Field & Co. reported business very dull. The H. B. Claflin representative said, on the contrary, that many large orders were coming into that concern.

SAYS COUNTRY NEEDS REST.

President of Cotton Manufacturers Thinks There's Been Too Much Reform

RICHMOND, Va., May 20.—The American Cotton Manufacturers' Association met here in annual session to-day. In his annual report President S. B. Tanner reviewed conditions of the cotton trade during the past year and the causes contributory to the depression, taking an optimistic view. He said:

"Above all things, perhaps, the country needs quiet and rest. The high degree of prosperity which preceded the present panic evoked infinite schemes for letting everybody have everything that they wanted. Seriously, there has been too much activity in the name of reform. This simply confused and hindered real reform. The outlook is not yet bright, but there are indications that we have seen the worst, and that in the future the tide will turn in our favor."

Minetto Cloth Co. Sold for $500,000.

OSWEGO, N. Y., May 20.—The plant of the Minetto Shade Cloth Company, located at Minetto, near here, was to-day sold to the Columbia Shade Cloth Company of New York, the consideration, it is stated, being $500,000. Announcement is made that contemplated plans for the betterment at the plant include the erection of a new cotton mill to employ 2,000 hands.

Indicted Gambler Sent to the Tombs.

Edward McNaught, who was indicted under the name of Edward A. Clark for keeping a gambling house at 163 West Thirty-fourth Street, as a result of The World's exposures, was arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday and committed to the Tombs. At the time the arrests were made, McNaught left town, but was discovered in Atlantic City. He was arrested yesterday by Detective Roberts of the District Attorney's staff.

REVIVAL IN WOOLEN TRADE.

Many Evidences of Returning Prosperity, President Fletcher Says.

Members of the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers, who gathered yesterday at the Hotel Astor to attend the semi-annual meeting of the organization, were elated at what they said was evidence of returning prosperity in the trade and the approaching end of the period of depression which followed the financial flurry last Fall. The sentiment of most of the members was voiced by the President, Joseph E. Fletcher of Providence, R. I., who said:

I think that we have a sufficient cause for mutual congratulation in the indications which at present point to the return of confidence, and of the general prosperity which should quickly follow. There is a decidedly better feeling in the wool market, and I have recently heard of several worsted yarn spinners, whose production is well taken care of, and in one or two instances I have even been informed that they are seeking facilities outside of their own plants. The policy of curtailment has demonstrated its own wisdom, and it is this policy undoubtedly, more than any other, which is responsible for bringing about the restoration of confidence and general good feeling. This is not confined alone to our own industry. In my own locality I know of some mills that are running on full time, and have even heard that in one or two exceptional instances night work will very shortly be commenced.

The association represents 17,000 looms in the United States. Its members are independent of the so-called Woolen Trust.

POLICE FIND STOLEN BONDS.

French Authorities Get Those Taken from Mail Bags on La Savoie in 1907.

The French police, it was announced yesterday, have recovered practically all of the securities stolen by the mail thieves who looted the registered mail bags of the ocean liner Savoie in January, 1907.

One of the parcels of bonds stolen had been mailed to a foreign customer by Redmond & Co. of 33 Pine Street. The bonds were insured by the banking house and the loss was made good long ago by the insurance company.

Redmond & Co. said yesterday that their information was that all but about $2,000 par value of the securities had been recovered and the missing ones had been located by the French police. The bonds recovered are:

The bonds recovered are: $3,000 Pennsylvania Railroad Company convertible 3½ per cent., 1915, Nos. 8,159 and 42,701 and 42,702; $4,000 New York Central & Hudson River refunding 3½ per cent., 1997, Nos. 79,366-9; $2,000 Southern Pacific first refunding 4 per cent., 1955, Nos. 8,151, 8,153, 8,154, and 8,156, of $500 each.

The insurance companies have had to prove ownership, which has delayed the recovery of their losses for about a year.

Picked Up a Live Trolley Wire; Killed

John Armstrong, employed in Wenzen's Hotel, Dongan Hills, S. I., picked up a live trolley wire yesterday which the wind had blown down in Richmond Road near the Moravian Cemetery and was instantly killed. Many people saw the man stoop over to pick up the wire and shouted to him not to touch it.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, 9TH JUDICIAL District, Westchester County.—KENSICO RESERVOIR, Section No. 10.

Public notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of The City of New York to make application to the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended. In April, The New York Times gained over 20,000 agate lines of financial advertising as compared with corresponding month of last year. This was a larger gain than the combined gain of the next two New York newspapers making a feature of financial news.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Sell Off Again—Call Money Rates, 1½@1¾ Per Cent.

MORE GOLD ENGAGEMENTS

Movement Nears $30,000,000 Mark—Wall Street Watching the Steel Meetings.

There was continued in yesterday's stock market the distributing movement which so seriously affected prices on Tuesday, but sales were conducted with more regard for prices, and at the close of the day, while the list as a whole was under the level of the previous night, the losses in the leading stocks were confined to a point or more. The trading was deceitful in appearance; there were long periods of dullness at the end of each wave of selling, but the volume of business was the greatest of the year thus far. There were exceptions to the reactionary tendency of the market as a whole. The Gould stocks, including Wabash and Missouri Pacific, were conspicuously strong during the greater part of the session, largely as a result of the new knowledge that relations between the Harriman and Gould interests had been re-established upon a friendly basis. Here and there through the list were to be found other issues which went against the current and closed with gains, but the explanations were in all cases purely technical. News developments of the day were mixed in character. From the West came complaints that excessive moisture was interfering seriously with the planting of corn, but grain markets were very little influenced by such reports, prices both here and in Chicago selling off. The recognized authority in the iron and steel trade in its weekly resumé of conditions in these lines noted the presence of a better inquiry for pig iron, but spoke once more of the small volume of genuine business. More interest than usual attaches to the meetings of steel makers now in progress in this city, for rightly or wrongly there has come into existence a feeling that the gatherings at this time are critical so far as the maintenance of the present scale of prices is concerned. Reports have been persistent that some of the large independents have already made reductions, but so far such stories have failed of confirmation. One of the unfavorable matters commented upon on the Stock Exchange yesterday was the earnings report of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for the month of April. The road lost in that period $2,082,000 in gross earnings and $1,334,000 in net. Announcement was made of another reduction in the price of cotton goods by the Chicago house which led the way to lower prices in these lines.

Further engagements of gold made during the day brought the total of shipments thus far up to $29,142,000, and the strength of the foreign exchange market made it clear that exports are not yet over. The banks reported a gain from the Sub-Treasury in spite of gold withdrawals and reduced their loss for the week to $2,563,000. Somewhat firmer rates for both call and time money were quoted. The Controller issued a call for the condition of all National banks as of May 14, the returns on which should furnish interesting reading.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was quoted in London at 24⅛d per ounce and in New York at 53⅛c. Mexican dollars were 47c.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Crop news was conflicting yesterday. There was good weather in the Southwest, but low temperatures prevailed in Spring wheat States, with considerable rain. A better cash demand was reported at Minneapolis. Liverpool closed 1⅛ to 1¼d net higher, Berlin was 1⅝c higher, and Antwerp ⅝c higher, while Budapest closed ⅝c net lower. Export business of 12 loads was reported. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, $1.05 elevator and 99½c free on board afloat, late July; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.13⅞, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.12⅜ free on board afloat.

CORN.—Prospect for larger receipts created a bearish feeling yesterday. The total interior movement proved to be nearly 200,000 bushels more than the corresponding day last year. Liverpool closed ½d net higher. Cash corn in New York was steadier, with No. 2 quoted 78c in elevator and 76 free on board afloat.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 20.—The local market opened irregular this morning, but the undertone soon became soft. Atlantic was an exception to the general weakness, gaining a point on Western buying and selling at 19. The balance of the list continued weak throughout the session, with occasional rallies. The close was steady and at a slight recovery.

Traders Conserving Profits.

There was nothing in yesterday's developments in the stock market calculated to clarify the situation for the ordinary trader, and it is a question whether the professional operators on the floor or the rank and file of the brokerage fraternity was able to discover the precise influencing cause for the sharp reaction in the market. The recession of the preceding day had traveled to the interior in the shape of more or less sensational news, and undoubtedly precipitated considerable selling by holders of stocks who had not taken the precaution of keeping stop-loss orders against their commitments and were not disposed that their paper profits should vanish without an effort to save them. Some of the wire houses reported considerable selling of long stock, and in some instances apparent short selling, although it might possibly be simply the limitation of losses on accounts in other houses. It is not unusual for a certain class of traders who are long of a block of stock in one office to safeguard their profits by selling an equivalent amount in another office, and then closing each trade individually at their leisure. This means a double commission, but that is a small item to many traders. Commission houses without wires reported selling orders also.

⁂

Bond Prices Hold Well.

Those who watched the tape in the trading session took comfort from the fact that apparently there was not any material pressure in the bond division, and even the speculative issues did not show any recession in price comparable with the break in stocks. This may have no special significance, indicating only that the character of the buying of these bonds was better than in the stock list, and that the holders of these speculative issues were content that the price approximated the value of the bonds and reflected conditions more closely than the stock prices did. Generally, the bond market, that is the outside bond market, acted very well. There appears to be a demand for large-sized blocks of first-class bonds; the offerings are limited and the prices asked well above what might be called the nominal market.

Consolidated Gas Acrobatics.

Consolidated Gas did some high and lofty tumbling yesterday, and added a little to the puzzle of the market. There has been nothing in the news the last few days which might be regarded as directly affecting that security, but the stock having opened yesterday ex dividend at 121, or adding the dividend at a price equivalent to 122, it advanced sharply and subsequently touched 127, from which figure it reacted. Naturally this gave rise to rumors of all sorts and suggestions of possible impending advances of a generous nature. Any one can see the logic of the connection between a sharp advance in the stock and a bullish rumor evolved after the fact. Presumably the final decision as to the constitutionality of the 80-cent gas law will not be decided by the United States Supreme Court until next November. The court itself will not take the matter under advisement until the second week in October, but in the meantime there will be plenty of opportunity for those with imagination or with a complete disregard of the fundamental factors of accurate knowledge and logic to evolve bearish or bullish rumors, according as their market position may inspire them. Undoubtedly a decision favorable to the company would be a bullish card on the market.

Talk of a Bear Raid.

Some were inclined to characterize the break in prices of the preceding day and some of the further reactions yesterday as the result merely of a raid on the market. These were insistent that it was merely a preconcerted attack by certain big traders who wanted either to obtain the profits that might accrue to them from short commitments at the high prices, to limit the losses that had already developed because of the advancing market, or to eliminate some of the company that might have become too numerous on the long side of the account. One of the best-known profesional operators on the floor expressed his opinion in this fashion: "Did you ever see a market that has been advanced so sharply as the one which did not suffer a sharp reaction at the most unexpected time? Is not that true, even though the market was to continue to higher prices eventually? There is just one thing about this break, however, that I cannot fathom, and that is whether it is a temporary recession or a culmination of the movement."

⁂

Big Output of New Bonds.

It is not surprising that there are heavy offerings of new securities every day, but it is a question whether normal conditions in the investment markets have been so far restored that they are ready and able to absorb all the securities of an investment character that are being offered. The flotation of the Pennsylvania loan gave a strong impetus toward better conditions in the high-grade securities markets, and undoubtedly the oversubscription of that issue has made it possible to float other bonds which are not by any means in the same class. Bond men say that the success of many issues has been surprising, but they are inclined to voice a warning against an indiscriminate offering of all classes and kinds of so-called investment securities. They hint also that one or two of the offerings, regarding which no detailed figures were given out concerning the subscriptions, were not what might be called an enthusiastic success. That there is any danger of the piling up of a large amount of undigested and indigestible securities it is not suggested, but on the other hand some bond men would feel better if there was less activity in getting out promiscuous issues.

STEEL TRUST SALES GROWING HEAVIER

April's Business Beat That of March and No Cuts in Prices Seem Likely.

A REVIVAL LOOKED FOR

Sales of Iron on the Increase and Inquiries Better—Steel Men to Confer at Dinner To-night.

The business of the Steel Corporation during April has shown an improvement over March, which, as was officially announced by President Gary when the annual report was made public, was considerably better than the business done in either February or January.

While no official announcement was made yesterday from the Steel Corporation's offices, the information that the Trust's business continues to improve steadily came from one of the officials of the company, who has been in New York this week attending the conferences of the Presidents of the subsidiary companies, which are being held as a preliminary to the meeting to-day of the committees of the newly organized iron and steel association.

President Corey has been holding extended conferences with the sales agents of the corporation since Monday, and especial attention has been given to the situation abroad. Denial is made by representatives of the foreign selling agency of the United States Steel Corporation that the surplus products of the Trust have been "dumped" on the foreign market. It was said yesterday by a representative of the Steel Product Export Company, which markets the Steel Corporation's output abroad, that the business done abroad since last Fall had been obtained at very small price reductions from the quotations here. He said that business had been especially brisk in the Far East, including Australia, China, and Japan.

Denials were made yesterday by representatives of the Lackawanna Steel Company, the Republic Iron and Steel Company, and the Cambria Steel Company, which have been specifically named in stories recently circulated of price-cutting among the independent steel manufacturers, that these concerns had shaved down official quotations for finished steel. The representatives of these and other independent steel companies will meet the United States Steel Corporation officials at another of the "Steel and Iron" dinners to be given at the Waldorf to-night.

Commenting on the iron and steel situation The Iron Age says:

> A good deal of interest has developed in the pig iron markets. The inquiries have been numerous in all markets, but many of the buyers seem still imbued with the idea that it is not safe to take hold at over $10 to $10.50 for No. 2 foundry at Birmingham.
>
> Along the Atlantic Coast interest has broadened and some business has been done at further concessions in prices on foundry irons.
>
> The steel trade shows very little change. The meeting of the representatives of the steel companies Thursday is looked forward to with some interest. The feeling is growing that prices of finished iron and steel are out of line with intermediate products and that more business is being withheld, awaiting a readjustment of prices, than is generally assumed.

The Iron Age reported yesterday that the Sloss-Sheffield Steel Company had sold 50,000 to 60,000 tons of foundry iron on the basis of $10.75 for No. 2 at Birmingham. A representative of Hugh W. Adams & Son, representing the Sloss-Sheffield Company, said last night that the reported sale at the price stated was false. The price, he said, was $11.50 and the company had not withdrawn from the market, as reported, but had iron for sale at $11.50. Pittsburg advices, he said, were optimistic.

The Iron Trade Review says to-day:

> News concerning the pig iron market for all parts of the country is much more encouraging than at any time since the panic. The improvement noted last week has been followed by sales aggregating 70,000 tons of pig iron by a large Southern interest and many smaller sales. Inquiries have been received in large volume, and the feeling in the trade is distinctly better.
>
> A noteworthy feature is the eagerness of brokers to place orders, many of them evidently coming to the conclusion that bottom prices have been reached. It is, of course, impossible to predict whether the improvement will continue. Many inquiries have no doubt been sent out to test prices, but the market has for the most part stood the tests very well.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Trading on European Exchanges Falls Off and Prices Decline.

LONDON, May 20.—Money was quiet and a shade harder in the market to-day, while discounts were easy.

On the Stock Exchange a general profit-taking movement caused an easier tendency in most departments. Consols led the gilt-edged securities, while home rails were affected by poor traffic returns Foreigners and Kaffirs were the steadiest sections on Continental support, and diamond shares were steadier after the weakness following the non-success of the negotiations for an agreement between the Premier and the De Beers companies.

American securities, after yesterday's drop on Wall Street, opened from 1 to 3 points lower with business in the forenoon confined chiefly to profit-taking for Continental account. Later the New York opening caused an uncertain movement. There was no expansion of business, and the market closed irregular and dull. Copper shares were weak.

Bar silver was steady at 24½d per ounce.

Money, 1¼@1½ per cent.

PARIS, May 20.—Trading on the Bourse to-day opened heavy on realizations, but the closing was firm.

BERLIN, May 20.—Trading on the Boerse to-day opened heavy on the advices from New York, domestic and Government securities, however, held firm. Later there was a general improvement on advices from London.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Silk and Woolen Dress Goods Pay High Rates—Other Decisions.

It was decided yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that silk and woolen dress goods are dutiable property under the provision in the Dingley tariff for woolen goods, and not subject to assessment as woolen fabrics.

General Appraiser Fischer handed down a decision upholding the claim of the New York Flexible Metallic Hose & Tubing Co., it being held that flexible copper tubing covered with woven copper wire is dutiable at the rate of 2½ cents per pound under the provision in the law for "copper pipes."

It was maintained by the government that the merchandise should be assessed for duty at the rate of 45 per cent. ad valorem and 1¼ cents per pound under paragraph 137. The protest of the importers is upheld, and the collector is directed to make a reliquidation.

Judge Somerville handed down a decision upholding the claim of Joseph Joseph & Bros., of New York., it being held that cotton waste composed of jute and cotton mixed is free of duty as "cotton waste." The contention of the government that the merchandise is dutiable at 10 per cent. is overruled.

DROP IN ANACONDA EARNINGS.

But President Ryan Says Cost of Production Now Is the Lowest in Years.

The report of the Anaconda Copper Company, the principal subsidiary of the Amalgamated, for the year ended Dec. 31, was made public yesterday. The showing is a large falling off from the previous year.

Sales of gold, silver, and copper in 1907 totaled $12,038,715, or $8,916,818 less than in 1906. The balance shown was $3,147,773, a falling off of $5,436,396.

Dividends paid amounted to $6,300,000, which represented a decline of $600,000 from the previous year. The payment of this sum in dividends, which is nearly $3,000,000 in excess of earnings, left a deficit of $2,921,780, which, deducted from the previous surplus, left a total surplus of $6,261,462.

President Ryan's report says that production figures for March and April show a considerably higher grade of ore and a lower cost per pound of copper than at any time during recent years. The retiring Board of Directors was re-elected, with the exception of W. T. Bull, who was succeeded by Urban H. Broughton.

WESTERN MARYLAND CONTROL

Lien Bonds Lodged with Krech Committee and Not John D. Rockefeller.

Control of the Western Maryland general lien bonds, it was stated on authority yesterday, is lodged with the Krech Committee and not with John D. Rockefeller, who, according to a published statement yesterday, had obtained complete control of the stock and general lien bonds of the Western Maryland with authority to dispose of the road to any interests to which he saw fit to sell.

The Rockefeller interests have had a large interest in the Western Maryland since its acquisition by the Goulds, and are represented on the Majority Bondholders' Committee, of which Alvin W. Krech is Chairman. The situation in this respect, it was stated yesterday, stands as it has for a long time. While the views of Mr. Rockefeller will naturally be consulted because of his large interest, the Krech Committee is in complete control.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

WALTER N. BUSSELL.—Walter N. Bussell, caterer, 122 West Forty-fifth Street, and at Newport, R. I., has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $13,857 and nominal assets of $2,938, consisting of accounts, $288, and china, linen, tables, &c., $2,650, of which $2,160 is in New York and $500 at Newport. His principal place of business has been at Newport in the Summer season for the last eighteen years. Among the creditors are George C. Lawton, $5,182, secured; Newport Casino Company, $700 rent in 1904, and Emma and Price Jones, $1,000, secured, all of Newport.

R. E. TYROLER & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against R. E. Tyroler & Co., (corporation,) wholesale millinery, 29 East Twenty-first Street, by these creditors: Greenwich Hat Works, $345; Kaufman & Aron, $15, and Walser Manufacturing Company, $244. It was alleged that the corporation is insolvent, and on May 14 the Board of Directors passed a resolution that it was unable to meet its obligations and was willing to be adjudicated bankrupt. The corporation was incorporated Dec. 31 last with a capital stock of $25,000, Rudolph E. Tyroler President and Wallace C. Ayer Secretary. Mr. Tyroler had been in this business since January, 1905, with branches in department stores in Brooklyn, Buffalo, Cincinnati, and Kansas City. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against him on Dec. 2, last, which was dismissed a few weeks later on a settlement at 65 cents on the dollar, payable Feb. 1, May 1, and Nov. 1, 1908, and he was succeeded by the corporation. The liabilities are reported to be over $40,000.

MONTAGUE M. SMITH.—Montague M. Smith, 35 East Twenty-first Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $6,454, and nominal assets of $750, consisting of ten shares of stock of the J. K. Parker Company, which he has pledged. The debts were mostly contracted as a partner in the firm of Smith & Campbell, cloaks, 450 Broadway, who made an assignment on May 7, 1896.

JOHN KELLY.—John Kelly, saloon keeper, 841 Columbus Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $24,798 and no available assets. He was formerly a partner in the firm of Kelly & Monaghan, who had saloons at 841 Columbus Avenue and 2,647 Third Avenue. Mr. Monaghan died on May 27, 1907, and chattel mortgages on both places were foreclosed on March 2 last. The largest creditor is James Everard, $10,500. Kelly & Monaghan began business in 1899.

JACOB SEWANSKY.—Jacob Sewansky, 52 Lenox Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,957 and no assets.

LEO RUBIN.—Schedules in the assignment of Leo Rubin, dealer in suits and skirts at 1,463 First Avenue, show liabilities of $1,997, nominal assets of $1,083, and actual assets of $965.

Out of Town.

BOSTON.—The schedules in the bankruptcy proceedings of William A. Stetson, the William A. Stetson Company, the Ford Morocco Company, and the Boston Chrome Leather Company, all engaged in the leather business in this city, were filed in the United States District Court yesterday. The personal schedule of William A. Stetson shows liabilities of $2,821,565, with no assets. Of the liabilities $2,291,143 are unsecured. The liabilities of the William A. Stetson Company are $2,833,232, of which $1,272,524 are secured, while the assets amount to $1,303,992. The heaviest creditor is Baring Brothers & Co. of New York and London, which has an unsecured claim of $755,056, principally for loans on letters of credit.

CINCINNATI.—Giving liabilities as $796,657 and assets of only $32,845, Chapman C. Archer, attorney at law, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday in the Federal Court. Mr. Archer's failure is laid to the stated collapse of the Cypress Lumber Company, in which he was a partner. The company had $379,460 debts, which are secured; $408,298 unsecured liabilities on open accounts, and the remainder of the amount is made up of debts of the company and Archer's personal obligations.

The Lohbauer Park auction sale was resumed at the stand of Joseph P. Day in the Vesey Street Salesroom soon after 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and continued until 6 P. M. The crowd, possibly on account of the unfavorable weather, was not so large as on the first day of the sale, but the room was comfortably filled, and there was no lack of buyers. Yesterday's sales amounted to 310 lots for a total of $126,735, or an average of about $410 a lot. On Tuesday 257 lots were sold for $177,035, or an average of $689 a lot. This is worth reading

We publish to-day a beautiful book describing our 500-acre Residential Park.

The property is the very finest in the Borough of Queens, New York City. The book is the most attractive realty book which has ever been published in New York.

The American people have only a very meagre conception of the bigness of New York City. They do not know that of all the people in the United States one in every twenty lives in New York City; and if the Jersey suburbs are included these figures should be one in every fifteen.

It is a fact that the population of New York has been increasing at the rate of 7% a year. If this rate of increase should continue the population in 1934 will exceed 25,000,000. This is hardly possible, but the thought is astounding. In 1934 your little boys will be only in their young manhood.

The yearly birth rate doesn't mean anything when applied to New York. There are babies born every month in the year in practically every city and town in the world who will eventually become residents of New York.

New York City real estate is the safest form of investment and it is a kind of wealth which all the world is working day and night to increase.

When population doubles real estate values quadruple. City or country, east or west, this statement holds good.

If you put your money out at 6% interest it will double in 16⅔ years. You can put it into New York City realty and double its value in five years; perhaps in one year.

Financial storms are always above ground. They rarely affect real estate, except to blow the dust off.

A financial panic may wipe out a bank or an industrial enterprise, but it can't possibly destroy a city lot.

In the world's real estate New York City is the cream, and in New York City the Borough of Queens offers the best opportunity for quick profit: and in the Borough of Queens the most beautiful spot is Jamaica Estates.

Our new book, which is published to-day, tells you all about it. Write for a copy. There is no charge. Mention to-day's advertisement.

FREE TO YOU

To each reader of The New York Times who writes to-day or to-morrow for our new illustrated book on "Jamaica Estates" we shall send free of expense a copy of "Investment Nails and a Hammer." This little book is crowded to the brim with interesting facts about New York City. It has already made a great big hit, as a hammer and nails should. There is no charge this week for either book. BOGUS ART CHARGE REPEATED BY EVANS

Counsel Declare That Allegations Against Dealer Clausen Were Not Made Haphazard.

SIR PURDON CLARKE'S VIEW

No Spurious Picture in Art Museum, He Says—Counterfeit Figurines Were Accepted.

William T. Evans, tired of answering questions concerning his case against William Clausen, the alleged spurious picture dealer, has left New York, and it is said that he will not return until to-morrow. Meantime the following official statement was given out yesterday at the office of his attorneys, Lawrence & Burnett:

> Mr. Evans is absent from the city and will return Friday. If he cares to say anything further in connection with the Clausen matter he will do so at that time.
>
> Mr. Evans has proceeded in this matter at great sacrifice to his own feelings and in the discharge of what he considers a public duty.
>
> Assuredly he would not have withdrawn the pictures in question from his gift to the National Gallery of Art and subjected himself to an expense of several thousand dollars for the purchase of other and unquestionably genuine paintings in their stead if he had not been assured that the pictures withdrawn were spurious.
>
> In beginning his suit against William Clausen for fraud and deceit in the sale to him of these pictures Mr. Evans did not act hastily, but very deliberately. Nothing was done until after the most ample opportunity had been given Mr. Clausen to establish the history of these pictures, but repeated inquiries demonstrated that the pictures had no ascertainable history before they made their appearance in Mr. Clausen's store.

Sir Caspar Purdon Clarke, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, said yesterday: "The making of spurious pictures is not a new one. It has been going on for hundreds of years, especially in Italy, where it is almost a trade. So long as art objects have value they will be imitated. This museum, as all other museums, has a curator, whose business it is to look after matters of this sort. At present Mr. Bryson Burroughs is the Curator.

"We do not have sporadic investigations. We are investigating all the time, and so far as we know at this time no picture is labeled incorrectly in the Metropolitan. As soon as any picture is challenged its history is thoroughly gone into by the Curator.

"We have just accepted a gift of some spurious Tanagra figurines. These are to be placed near some real figurines, and it is thought that they may have an educative effect in teaching people the difference between the two. This same principle might be carried into effect in regard to pictures."

Ex-Capt. Wendel Ill; Trial Delayed.

As investigation shows that owing to a recent operation for appendicitis ex-Capt. Louis Wendel of the First Battery, New York National Guard, will not be able to appear in court for some time. His trial on the charge of grand larceny in connection with his handling of the battery's accounts was adjourned indefinitely yesterday by Justice Goff, sitting in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court.

FREES ACCUSED MOTORMAN.

Jury Takes the Same View of His Case That Jerome's Office Did.

When John Ryan, a New York City Railway motorman, was acquitted yesterday of assaulting Harry Cornwell of 401 West 149th Street, a passenger on his car, with the brass controller on May 19 last year, the District Attorney's office was vindicated of the criticism of Judge Rosalsky, who said on May 8, when Assistant District Attorney Dana recommended that Ryan be discharged of his bail for lack of evidence:

"If any investigating committee wants any proof as to whether charges against any one in the control of this company were dismissed, here you have it."

The case went to trial yesterday before Judge Foster, and the jury acquitted after 7 minutes' deliberation.

None of the witnesses had actually seen Ryan strike Cornwell with the controller.

POLAR LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Herbert Bridgman Sails To-day to Attend Its Sessions in Brussels.

Herbert L. Bridgman of Brooklyn, delegate from this country to the International Polar Commission, which convenes in Brussels on Friday of next week, will sail this morning on the White Star liner Adriatic, for Southampton, to attend the two days' session of the commission. These will be devoted to discussions and changes of the organic law of the commission, scientific communications, appointment of a provisional board of the commission, and arrangements for the next meeting.

COLUMBIA COMMENCEMENT.

Large Attendance of Alumni Expected for May 27.

The alumni representation at the Columbia University commencement exercises on May 27 is expected to be larger than ever before.

This year will take place the dedication of the statue of Alexander Hamilton, the gift of the Alumni Association of Columbia College. The statue was modeled by William Ordway Partridge of the Class of 1885, and will be placed in front of Hamilton Hall on South Field, facing north.

TRIES TO GIVE AWAY A CHILD.

Hempstead Mystified by Actions of a Woman—Disappears in Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., May 20.—A well-dressed woman called at the home of Mrs. John Murray here to-day and asked her to take charge of a little girl. The woman said the child's mother had disappeared while the three of them were taking a walk in the woods. Mrs. Murray refused to take the little girl, and the strange woman called on Mrs. Chris Holman, who also refused to take the youngster.

Later in the day the woman and child were seen riding through the town in the direction of the woods in an automobile.

To Hear Case Against Miss Richman.

Contrary to expectation, the petitions from the lower east side asking the transfer of Miss Julia Richman from Public School District No. 3, will probably come before the Committee on Elementary Schools next Tuesday afternoon, even before they go to the Board of Education, and it is possible that a report on the matter will be made to the board at its regular meeting the next day.

TO ERECT MONUMENT FOR DOG LIFE SAVER

He Had No Pedigree, but Aroused the Neighbors When Tuttle House Caught Fire.

WENT TO FAMILY'S RESCUE

Woke Them Up Just in Time, Then Saved the Cat at the Cost of His Own Life.

The citizens of Grand View, between Nyack and Piermont, on the Hudson, are making ready to erect a monument to the memory of the little dog that was the hero of the fire which burned down the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Tuttle on May 15.

It was only an ordinary dog, said a resident of Grand View yesterday. He didn't have a name, and certainly didn't have a pedigree. He could be described accurately as "just dog." But in spite of this, on Sunday last, they buried the unheralded dog in the grounds of the Wayside Chapel, down beside the Hudson, and the women put flowers on the grave, as befits the funeral of a hero, even if he was only a dog. Now, the people of Grand View want to mark the place with a stone, telling the story of that ordinary cur.

The neighbors of Mr. Tuttle were aroused by the shrill and persistent barking of a small canine in the early hours of May 15. It was loud enough and long enough to cause several of them to open the windows, probably with the object of shying boots at the annoying howler. A look at the dog running up and down, barking frantically, evidently trying to call some one's attention, caused one neighbor to shut his window with a bang, dash down to the front door, seize a heavy cane, and go forth on a hunt for burglars.

One view of the Tuttle house, however, toward which the little dog started on a mad run, supplied the explanation. It was undoubtedly ablaze. By this time several more of the neighbors came running up. With all the excitement without, there was no sign of alarm within. Those inside were sleeping soundly while the fire gained headway.

The crowd yelled and pounded on the door, which was securely locked, but failed to open it or to rouse the Tuttles. Then there came a little pause. It didn't look like a nice place to go into, with the flames burning higher every minute. The neighbors looked at each other, each one waiting for the other to step forward.

While they hesitated, the little dog, which had been running around in frantic circles, took matters into his own hands. With one reproachful look at the group of men, he dashed on to the piazza and through the front window. About a minute later, out through the smoke staggered Mr. Tuttle, badly burned about the feet. Behind him trotted the little dog, which being only a plain common dog, had forgotten the rules of "ladies first," and aroused the first sleeper he found. But if he wasn't a gentleman, he was a hero, and back he ran. Soon out of the smoke came Mrs. Tuttle, waked just in time.

The dog looked questioningly, as if to ask, were there any more, but as no one answered, he made a third dive through the drawing room window.

"Stop him!" some one cried, for the house was a blazing furnace by this time, but the little dog was gone. The crowd waited and soon once more the hero emerged triumphantly, carrying in his mouth the family cat, which had been overcome by smoke.

Dropping pussy over the piazza railing he jumped through the window, back into the burning house, on his fourth and last trip. But the neighbors didn't forget. On Sunday, when the ruins of the house had cooled off sufficiently, they made a search and found the body of the plain, common dog.

PICTURES FROM THE PARIS SALON

Four pages of the Picture Section of next Sunday's Times will be devoted to reproductions of paintings now on exhibition in Paris at the annual Salon of the Society of French Artists. One whole page will be given to Louis Beroud's great panel canvas, "The Rush for Fortune," a picture which is attracting much attention from the visitors. Another striking painting which has been selected for reproduction is a spirited battle scene, showing Joan of Arc at the head of her troops. This is by Frank Craig. Still another battle scene is the destruction of the French Admiral Leissegues's flagship by the British in 1806, by Charles Fouqueray. But the pictures are not all of struggle and battle. Many motives of life are depicted in canvases by Richemont, Martin-Davel, Rousseau-Decelle, MacEwen, Jay, Watkins and others. Altogether twenty-two selections have been made from over 3,000 canvases shown. No such splendid pictorial representation of this great art exhibit has ever been made in a New York paper.

In addition the Picture Section will contain a large two-page reproduction of the group photograph taken in front of the White House at the recent Conference of Governors. It shows not only the Governors of the various States, but the President and Vice President, Cabinet Members, Supreme Court Justices and many distinguished guests.

The demand for this exceptional number of The Sunday Times is certain to be great, and readers are requested, in order to facilitate the distribution of the edition, to place their orders with news dealers as early as possible.

IN THE SUNDAY TIMES NEXT SUNDAY

HIS DOG SUIT DISMISSED.

Mr. Goldick Got No Damages for the Purchase of Frond's Pomeranian.

The case of Goldick against Ferond in the Tenth District Municipal Court, involving the dead Pomeranian dog which was alleged to have a communicable sort of mange, has ended in favor of the defendant.

E. Goldick of 611 Ockton Place, the Bronx, bought from Jules Ferond of 236 West Forty-sixth Street, a dealer in dogs, a Pomeranian last Winter, and he gave it to his wife. The dog died after some two months, whereupon Mr. Goldick brought suit against Mr. Ferond for the purchase price, $50.

Mr. Goldick alleged that the dog had been ill when sold, and that his wife had caught mange from the afflicted animal. Judge Joseph reserved decision, and then dismissed the suit.

MAY PUNISH MUM WITNESS.

Charles Barry Refuses to Testify in Carpenter-Breidenbach Swindle.

Charles Barry, who was taken from the Tombs by order of Judge Hough yesterday, to testify before Referee Peter B. Olney, in connection with the bankruptcy proceedings against George H. Carpenter instituted by Rudolph A. Breidenbach, the Maiden Lane diamond merchant, proved to be of no value to Receiver William Lesser as a witness.

The referee was very anxious to obtain from Barry particulars as to the reasons that had led Breidenbach to part with $182,000; it being alleged that Barry had introduced Carpenter to Breidenbach. Barry, however, declined to answer questions.

He declined to state what his business was, or whether he was acquainted with George H. Carpenter, Maurice C. Dreschfield, or Oliver S. Ticer.

He declined to answer on advice of counsel, he said, but not on the ground that the answers would tend to incriminate or degrade him.

The witness was taken back to the Tombs after the referee had directed that a copy of the minutes be prepared for presentation to Judge Hough for punishment for contempt.

George H. Carpenter, who is himself out on bail on a charge preferred by Oliver S. Ticer of Brooklyn, who alleges that he made a loan to Carpenter under false representations, was examined by both the referee and counsel for Breidenbach, and admitted that he had given Ticer a note which had never been made good, and said that he had made the note in good faith. With regard to Mr. Breidenbach's diamonds, he said that he had given blank notes to Dreschfield, with instructions to obtain the best possible terms with regard to payment of the amount owed. He stated to the referee that he had a valid claim against the Monarch Company for $92,930. It was this company in which Carpenter was said to have had one share of stock when he made his note to Ticer.

Carpenter explained that at the time of incurring the obligation he had purchased a large amount of securities. These securities, which, he said, included $245,000 preferred Monarch Corporation, had been carried for him until the inauguration of bankruptcy proceedings on March 12, when "every one seemed to hedge." The case will go on to-day.

YOUNGEST GOVERNOR HERE.

Higgins of Rhode Island Takes a Look at City Hall.

Gov. James H. Higgins of Rhode Island visited the City Hall yesterday under the guidance of President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen. He was entertained last night at the Manhattan Club by Mr. McGowan, and will be present to-day as the guest of the city at the parade of fireboats.

The Governor enjoys a double distinction—he is the youngest Governor, being only 32 years, and is a Democratic executive in a Republican State. Asked to explain the latter phenomenon, he laughed and said:

"I suppose the world is getting better."

He went on to say that the delegates from his State to the Democratic National Convention are divided in their opinions between the Nebraska man and Gov. Johnson.

The Governor was much interested in the City Hall, particularly the Governor's Room, and agreed that the present building with its historical associations is better than a new modern office building.

District Attorney Lets Bud Hauser Go.

Bud Hauser was discharged in the Tombs Court yesterday on request of Assistant District Attorney Paul Krotel, who told Magistrate Walsh that the complainant and witnesses in a larceny case, which the District Attorney's office hoped to prove against Hauser, were in Europe. Hauser was discovered recently by the District Attorney's office through an alleged assault on a racing man in the Waldorf-Astoria. He had disappeared in 1902 after being arrested on the complaint of Jerome Eberman of 215 West 116th Street, who accused him of using knock-out drops to obtain $4,000 worth of bonds from him.

ANOTHER TENEMENT WRECKED BY BOMB

Fifth Explosion in East Eleventh Street Works Havoc and Terrorizes Tenants.

THREATS MADE TO OWNER

Supposed Black Handers Demanded Money from Him and a Physician Who Works for Charity.

The fifth bomb to be exploded in East Eleventh Street between First and Second Avenues was set off yesterday morning under the stairs of the tenement house at 316. It wrecked the first floor of the building, blew out windows of the other four floors, ripped out the woodwork, and brought down the plastering all through the building.

No one was killed, but a score of the tenants were cut or bruised by falling glass, plaster, and woodwork. They were treated by two ambulance surgeons from Bellevue. The reserves of the East Fifth Street Station were called out.

The bomb was planted in a closet under the stairs. This closet backed on the little apartment where Dr. A. Caccini of 56 West Twelfth Street does charity work among the poor Italians of the neighborhood.

"I suppose," said the physician yesterday, "that some one thought that because I did free work in the quarter I must have plenty of money. I got a number of letters threatening my life, but did not bother about them. I turned them over to my lawyer, and he referred them to Detective Petrosino. I did not expect any trouble at all, for there is no such thing as a Black Hand Society here. I will continue to treat the poor of the neighborhood despite the bomb explosion."

The building is owned by Francisco Spinella, who, while working about the neighborhood in his shirt sleeves repairing his houses, is considered wealthy. He, as well as Dr. Caccini, has received threatening letters. The blackmailers specified $700 as the sum they wanted from Spinella. The landlord also turned these letters over to Detective Petrosino.

The bomb fuse was a long one and made so much smoke that Mrs. Grazia Conti, who lives on the third floor and is up early every morning, smelled it and told the janitress, Mrs. Chiro, who traced the smoke to the closet under the stairs. When she opened the door and was met by a puff of smoke she rushed for a bucket of water. Mrs. Conti, with her seven-month-old baby in her arms, and Mrs. Chiro were at a safe distance when the bomb exploded. Mrs. Conti, however, was hurled across her front room clinging to her baby. All of the tenants rushed pellmell for the street.

That the bomb contained dynamite was shown by the great hole torn in the floor, the impact being downward. In the hallway the high wainscotting for 50 feet was ripped from the walls, and in the vestibule the marble wainscotting was smashed.

The block is packed with Italians, the ground floors being given to restaurants, grocery stores, and small shops. More than 1,000 men, women, and children filled the street, frightened and calling for protection from the Black Hand.

NAILED A SMOKE MAKER.

Health Commissioner Darlington Himself Abated the Nuisance.

Health Commissioner Darlington standing at a window in his office yesterday afternoon noticed the high chimney of a big Fifth Avenue hotel puffing black smoke. Dr. Darlington pressed a button and said to the clerk who responded:

"Telephone the manager of that hotel that if that black smoke doesn't stop instantly, it means an arrest."

There must have been a mighty hustling in the hotel, for almost instantly the smoke began to fade and it continued to fade until the thin, pale stream issuing from the chimney could scarcely be seen. The incident brought out that Commissioner Darlington looks skyward more times a day than many men in New York.

Perhaps the most complacent man in New York yesterday regarding the weather was the Health Commissioner.

"This is good, this healthful weather," said he; "it settles the dust."

SUICIDE AT HOTEL MANHATTAN

Insurance Broker of Montreal Leaps from His Room on Thirteenth Floor.

Percy G. Marling, an insurance broker of Montreal, Canada, committed suicide by jumping from the window of his room on the thirteenth floor of the Hotel Manhattan early yesterday morning. Mr. Marling arrived in town last Saturday. Shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday morning, employees of the hotel found the body lying in a court on the Forty-third Street side of the building.

Coroner Acritelli was notified and went to the hotel. He said it was plainly a case of suicide and gave permission for the removal of the body to an undertaker's.

Mr. Marling had made preparations for leaping from the window by pinning the curtains out of the way. He had been in bed and was dressed only in a nightshirt when found. In his pockets were a gold watch and chain, but little or no money.

First Fresh Air Party at the Seashore.

The New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor opened its fresh-air season yesterday by sending 236 tired mothers and puny children from the tenements to Sea Breeze, its home at West Coney Island. This is the largest and the earliest first party that the association has ever sent. That so many were ready to go in spite of the rainy day was taken as indicating the unusual hardships to which the poor have been subjected during last Winter and Spring. The association appeals for help. Contributions will be acknowledged by R. S. Minturn, Treasurer, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

Loses $463,000 on Coney Fares.

Howard Abel, Controller of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, explained yesterday at the inquiry of the Public Service Commission into the 10-cent Coney Island fare that the company is losing $463,000 a year on its Coney Island traffic. He said that the reason why the company incurs this loss is that it hopes to build up the territory so that it will be made profitable from short rides.

FOLEY'S IRISH STEW ROUTS A CORPORATION

Grocer's Hot Breakfast Used Freely by His Wife to Strew on Workmen in Pole Hole.

A LITTLE SHINDY FOLLOWS

It Ends in Police Court, but the Foleys Are Triumphant in Long Island City.

For the third time within recent months the Foleys of Long Island City succeeded in foiling the attempts of the Queens County Lighting Company to erect on the sidewalk in front of the Foley grocery, Fourth Avenue and Eighth Street, a pole for the support of their wires.

The first attempt to put up the pole was frustrated by Mrs. Foley with a liberal dose of boiling water. The second also resulted in absolute failure. Yesterday Mrs. Foley was still at the fore. The workmen appeared at 8 in the morning, before Mr. Foley was up, and while Mrs. Foley was taking down the shutters.

When the foreman of a gang of excavators appeared before the sacred side door of the Foleys, and, pointing to a spot, said "Dig," Mrs. Foley bustled before them.

With a knowledge born of former experience she demanded:

"Where's your permit?"

"Here it is," said the Superintendent of the men, exhibiting a permit bearing all of the signatures necessary in Long Island City for "the oppression of the poor and tax paying," to quote a Follan saying.

"Is it signed in regular order?" asked Mrs. Foley, raising her voice in the hope that her slumbering lord would hear.

"It is," said the foreman. "Here is the signature of the clerk, and here the head of the department."

"But there is one signature lacking," asid Mrs. Foley.

"There is? What is that?"

"John Foley!" shouted the wife so that her better half heard, understood, and dressed.

The foreman and Superintendent laughed.

Then at a sign from them the workmen began to dig in the centre of the pavement at the feet of the contending parties.

Mrs. Foley hurried to the kitchen.

"God forgive me," said she to the Foley maid of all work. "John wanted this Irish stew for his breakfast, but just tell him that it has been sacrificed in a noble cause."

With the kettle coyly held behind her, Mrs. Foley advanced to the chief workman engaged in digging up the Foley flagstones.

"You know what happened to the oppressor of the poor," she said, with a look that the workman took to be flirtatious. "You know what happened."

"Now, what did happen?" he asked Mrs. Foley with a broad smile.

"Sure he burned," said Mrs. Foley, pouring some of the Irish stew upon his leg, "and so did the rest of you."

More of John's Irish stew was strewn upon the trouser legs of the working gang that sought to disturb the flagstones of the house of Foley. They fled in terror.

Ultimately John L. Streever, the Superintendent, returned to the attack, but Mr. Foley was up and dressed by that time. He and the Superintendent engaged in a fist fight which was broken up by a policeman who insisted that both Foley and Streever go to the Fifth Street Court. There Magistrate Fitch allowed both parties to go with the understanding that they would present their respective sides before him to-morrow. This they agreed to do.
